Kidnap Plot Smashed; Police Rescue Victim

Moscow Boasts Of Air, Sea Power

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Russian people were told today the United States and its military allies would be subject to crushing blows by air and underseas fleets in the event of a new world war.

The Moscow radio gave full treatment in its domestic service to a 2,000-word article in the government newspaper Izvestia aimed mainly at U.S. foreign policy.

Washington's "policy of strength ultimately leads to war, and war under modern conditions means colossal destruction," said the article, written by an anonymous "general in reserve."

"The only way (to a peaceful solution of international controversies) is the way of negotiation, based on a sober calculation of the rights and interests of the big and small countries."

Pair Who Asked $300,000 Nabbed

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19 (AP)—A bizarre kidnaping was solved early today with the rescue of a well-to-do young San Francisco real estate man and capture of his two kidnapers without a penny of the demanded $300,000 ransom being paid. The demand had been cut from $500,000.

The kidnaping last Saturday noon of Leonard Moskovitz, 36, was the most widely-kept secret in the history of San Francisco's police department.

All newspapers, wire services and radio stations knew about it Saturday, and followed every detail of a police hunt, but to protect Moskovitz' life, didn't say a word until two former private detectives were captured early today and held as the kidnapers.

One Caught In Phone Booth

They were identified as Harold Jackson, 57, who once ran a 100-man agency protecting San Francisco's waterfront, and Joe Lear, 43, former private eye and cabbie, now a hearing aid salesman. Both are from Sacramento, Calif.

The end came when Lear was caught in a sidewalk telephone booth, used previously to telephone ransom demands to the victim's family.

Fifteen minutes later, guided by Lear, Police Inspector Al Nelder kicked open the door of a house in a good San Francisco residential district, arrested Jackson at gunpoint and rescued Moskovitz.

The kidnapers at that time were still negotiating for delivery of the ransom, originally set at $500,000 but reduced to $300,000 when the Moskovitz family said it couldn't raise a half million dollars.

Moskovitz said he was lured to the kidnaping hideout by Jackson, posing as a possible client interested in some real estate property.

Threatened With Knife

Negotiations were conducted by telephone calls to Moskovitz' twin brother, Alfred, in Burlingame, Calif., 19 miles south of San Francisco, and by three letters, all in Leonard's handwriting.

The kidnapers had threatened to emasculate Leonard if the ransom was not paid and to kill him if the police were notified.

He was kept roped, chained or taped most of the time in a house at 167 Arbor St. in the Glen Park district of San Francisco. He was repeatedly threatened with a six-inch hunting knife, but never harmed. At night he lay on the floor with a saucer balanced on each knee, so any sudden movement would send them clattering to the floor and alert the kidnapers.

COFFEE WORRIES — Mrs. Leonor Kretzer Sullivan, St. Louis, Mo., styles herself a typical "harassed housewife" but, also, she is a Democratic member of Congress who wants the Eisenhower administration to do something about the price of coffee. Pointing to 15 cents a cup and $1.10 a pound prices, she said it's "almost un-American." (AP Wirephoto)

Bricker Rejects Substitute Plan In Treaty Dispute

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) today rejected a proposed compromise in his drive for a constitutional amendment to limit the president's treaty-making powers.

The compromise was drafted by the GOP leadership in the Senate splitting fight over the issue on the Senate floor.

Bricker called a news conference to announce he had found the substitute proposal unacceptable. The compromise was offered by Sen. Knowland of California, Senate Republican floor leader, and Sen. Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the GOP Policy Committee there.

Wouldn't Change Situation

The Ohio Senator said the substitute would not change the present situation in which treaties can override state laws.

While the compromise establishes a point that a treaty which conflicts with the Constitution would be invalid, Bricker said, it still would deny Congress and the states the right to nullify its provisions so far as they affect domestic affairs.

"If they want to test this by moving to strike out that clause in my amendment, I'm willing to let a majority of the Senate decide the issue," Bricker stated. "I don't see how any compromise can be reached on this issue."

Ike May Take Case To People

This placed the controversy about where it was last Friday, when an administration official said President Eisenhower is ready to take his case against the Bricker amendment to the people if such a course is necessary to preserve his executive powers.

Knowland has indicated he will continue his efforts to find an area of agreement on the controversial question.

Rosenbergs' Attorney Faces Disbarment

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The attorney for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg faced disbarment proceedings today for his emotional outburst at the funeral of the executed atom spies.

"Of course, I shall defend myself," said Atty. Emanuel H. Bloch of the disbarment action.

The New York City Bar Assn. went into the Appellate Division of the state Supreme Court to accuse Bloch of conduct unbecoming a lawyer.

When the atom spies were buried last June after their execution, Bloch stood over their graves and declared:

"I place the murder of the Rosenbergs at the door of President Eisenhower, Mr. Brownell and J. Edgar Hoover. They did not pull the switch, true, but they directed the one who did pull the switch."

Man Who Beat Baby To Death Sentenced

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP) — A man who said he threw his 2-year-old son across a room, stepped on him and beat him to death, was sentenced today to 25 years in prison on a murder charge.

Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Criminal Court sentenced James Dodd Sr., 32, who had pleaded guilty to the charge. The state had demanded a jury trial and the death penalty if Dodd did not plead guilty.

Sydney Greenstreet, Movie Villain, Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19 (AP)—Sydney Greenstreet, suave, 280-pound movie villain whose rumbling giggle was a sign he had the hero trapped, died today of natural causes. He was 74.

Born in England, Greenstreet made his movie debut in 1941 in "The Maltese Falcon" after 41 years' stage experience. It remained his favorite film role.

Agile despite his heft, Greenstreet was the menace in numerous other pictures, including "Casablanca," "Passage to Marseille," "Conflict," "Between two Worlds," "The Conspirators," "Mask of Dimitrios," "Christmas in Connecticut," "The Verdict," "The Hucksters," "The Velvet Touch" and "Flamingo Road."

Report Armed GI Heading For Capital Sets Off Alert

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — A report that an AWOL Air Force sergeant was en route here armed with a high powered rifle to tell congressmen his grievances against the military set off an exciting police alert today.

Capitol guards set a watch about senators and House members from Florida and New York, since the airman was said to live alternately in those two states. He was reported driving a 1952 auto bearing Florida licenses.

Officials at Westover Air Force Base, Mass., identified the missing airman as M. Sgt. Victor Petoniak, 43, a veteran of 24 years service. They said he left the base without permission several days ago while "undergoing observation at the base hospital."

The officers said Petoniak was known to own a high-powered rifle but they didn't know whether he had it with him.

Capitol police said the Air Force reported Petoniak called Andrews Field in nearby Maryland this afternoon to say he was en route here. He was quoted as saying he wanted to see his senators and congressmen to try and get something done about "certain grievances."

Special alerts were sounded at all entrances to the capitol and the Senate and House office buildings. A search of the grounds was made too, but by time business for the day ended no one answering Petoniak's description had turned up.

An aide to Sen. Smathers (D-Fla) told a reporter Petoniak wrote the Senator last summer complaining bitterly because the Air Force had refused to transfer him from Westover to MacDill field near Tampa, Fla.

Senators Attack, Benson Defends Surplus Aid Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-SD) told Secretary of Agriculture Benson today the United States should press for barter and exchange "before we talk about giving anything away" in the disposal of huge U. S. farm surpluses abroad.

And Sen. Schoeppel (R-Kan) sharply reminded Benson that Congress is on record "against dumping our farm surpluses or any give-away program."

Benson Undergoes Quiz

The two Midwest Senators spoke out as Benson, testifying at a crowded hearing before the Senate Agriculture Committee, underwent lengthy questioning about the Eisenhower administration's plan to send a billion dollars worth of government farm surpluses overseas. Benson said there is no intention of giving the entire billion dollars worth away, and he declared:

"A good part of it could be sold."

Benson said conferences have already begun on the possibility of paying foreign governments in surplus U.S. grains, instead of cash, for the construction of U.S. military bases abroad.

"Cooling" Period Signalled

"Payment in farm commodities instead of cash," he said, "would offer any country a pretty good way to build up their standards of living and open up new markets for the United States."

Even before Benson testified, facing his second day of critical and sometimes hostile questioning, the administration signalled a six-week "cooling off" period before any Senate showdown on President Eisenhower's controversial farm program is undertaken.

Chairman Aiken (R-Vt) of the Senate Agriculture Committee told newsmen he would not push for a vote on the issue of flexible farm price supports until about March 1. Aiken is quarterbacking the new program which the President outlined to Congress on Jan. 11.

Dulles Urges Russia To Be Constructive

Warns Big 4 Parley 'Tactics Of Division' Will Not Fool West

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the Berlin foreign ministers conference will be a waste of time if Russia pursues a policy of trying to divide and frighten the West.

On virtually the eve of his departure for Europe, he warned Moscow the West is "not to be fooled" by such tactics. He expressed hope Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov will show up at the opening session Monday in a "constructive mood."

If he does, Dulles said, he will find the American, British and French foreign ministers responsive and there will be plenty to do.

A-Pool To Be Discussed

Later in the day the State Department announced that Dulles and Molotov have agreed to discuss at Berlin President Eisenhower's proposal to pool some atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

The announcement said the conversations would be a continuation of "the preliminary exchange of views on procedures relating to negotiations concerning atomic energy." This preliminary exchange was begun here with Georgi Zarubin, the Soviet ambassador.

Dulles stressed that the Big Four conference "could have large historical significance"—if Russia agrees to unify Germany through free elections and to give Austria a peace settlement.

Hopes Talks Not Extended

Dulles said he hoped the Big Four session would wind up in three weeks, permitting him to attend an inter-American foreign ministers conference scheduled to be held in Caracas, Venezuela, March 1.

Accompanied by two assistant secretaries of states and an assistant secretary of defense, Dulles is due to leave for Europe aboard the President's personal plane, the "Columbine," Thursday noon.

In advance of the meeting, Dulles hinted in anwering questions that the United States would be willing to change its present defense policy of relying heavily on atomic weapons, if Russia would agree to an acceptable plan for controlling atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Korean Pact OK'd By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved today the mutual defense treaty by which the United States overcame South Korea's opposition to last summer's armistice.

But by the same unanimous vote it limited the pledge of U. S. armed assistance to cases of "external armed attack" on territory which the United States recognizes as being under South Korean control.

The committee, spelling out those limitations in an interpretive clause, in effect warned that this country will not support any South Korean aggression.

Committee Chairman Wiley (R-Wis) said he expects the full Senate to ratify the treaty next week. South Korea already has approved it.

Volcano Threatens 12 Villages In Java

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Jan. 19 (AP)—Twelve villages with a combined population of about 18,000 were in the danger zone today of erupting Merapi, a noted killer volcano.

The eruption, which started yesterday, already has killed 37 Javanese and injured 79. Thousands have fled their homes in terror before the boiling lava flow.

Merapi is in Central Java about 300 miles southeast of Jakarta. It is in one of the world's most densely populated areas, with about 1,900,000 persons living on the fertile eastern and southern slopes and in the surrounding valleys.

Committee Links Hawaii, Alaska Statehood Bills

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Statehood for both Hawaii and Alaska was approved today by the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, which packaged the legislation in one bill for early consideration by the Senate.

A rough course still lies ahead for the measures, however.

Sen. Butler (R-Neb), committee chairman, said he thought the two bills would be separated on the Senate floor and debated one by one. He also conceded his committee still could reverse its action on one or both of the territories.

Strength In Dual Bill

Sen. Anderson (D-NM), a senior member of the committee, says it will be wise to keep the bills together because it will take the combined strength of Alaska and Hawaii statehood supporters to pass either bill.

Both the Republican and Democratic platforms in 1952 advocated statehood for the two territories. President Eisenhower has urged Congress twice to admit Hawaii to the union but he has not endorsed statehood for Alaska now.

Hawaii long has been regarded as a Republican stronghold, although the Democrats made gains there in the last general elections. Alaska has generally voted Democratic, although Republicans now have a majority control of the Alaskan legislature.

"Partisan Issue"

Anderson said he thought "the partisan issue" would be removed if the two bills were presented to the Senate at the same time. Democrats in Congress have accused the GOP administration of supporting Hawaiian statehood alone in hopes of getting two more Republican senators into the Senate and regaining a majority there.

M'Arthur Disputes Japanese Report

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today disputed a Japanese report he used Japanese minesweepers in a violation of international law in a war landing operation by American Marines at Wonsan, Korea, in 1950.

He said the minesweepers had been used since the end of World War II to clear suspected old Japanese mines from Wonsan and other areas and that they were not involved in any belligerency.

The former Far East commander said there was no violation of either international or Japanese law.

2,000 Californians Face Flood Threat

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19 (AP)—Some 2,000 persons today were urged to evacuate their homes in the community of Sierra Madre, threatened by a flood of water, mud, rocks and debris.

R. Merritt Baker, Sierra Madre administrator, issued the warning after the Weather Bureau said two to four inches of rain are expected tonight.

Man Who Killed Friend Who Said 'Boo!' Sentenced

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 19 (AP)—A former deputy constable who shot fatally a longtime friend who stepped up behind him and said "Boo!" was sentenced to eight years in prison today.

He is Fred Gray, 53, who pleaded guilty in Criminal Court.

The victim was Marshall Thompson, 30, who was struck in the chest by a .38-caliber bullet in a restaurant last June 24.

Gray was sentenced on a voluntary manslaughter charge, amended from murder.

Unemployment Continues Rise

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The government reported today 467,500 workers filed initial unemployment benefit claims during the week ended Jan. 9 — the largest weekly figure since August 1945 when World War II ended.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security said 1,816,000 workers were claiming unemployment compensation benefits from the various states for the week ended Jan. 2.

The bureau said the 467,500 new claims reported for the Jan. 9 week could not properly be added to the 1,816,000 total claims for Jan. 2 because some of those initial claims usually soon find new jobs.

However, the figures indicated that unemployment probably is well over two million. The census bureau reported unemployment at 1,850,000 in December.

Bradley's Son-In-Law Killed In Plane Crash

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, former chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, was notified that his son-in-law, Maj. Henry S. Beukema, was killed in the crash of a jet plane today near Langley Field, Va.

Atomic Sub Has Ultra-Ultra Interior For "Habitability"

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The colors, the lights, the bunks, the space are enough to make an old pigboatman cry: "This ain't the old Navy."

And it isn't. This is the navy of the deadly Nautilus, the world's first atomic-powered submarine, which will be launched Thursday.

It's also a Navy preoccupied by "habitability."

It would do no good for an atomic-powered submarine to be able to stay at sea indefinitely if its crew couldn't stand up under the wearing days in their cramped quarters.

To keep men's minds and bodies at their peak on long atom sub cruises the Navy called in industrial designers J. Gordon Lippincott and Walter P. Margulies.

As a result, the Nautilus will be the most livable sub ever built. It is the first craft of its kind in which livability has been a main concern from the outset.

One aim of the designers was to give the crew's quarters a different look. This would give the men a feeling of being away from their jobs when not on watch.

Special berths, with foam rubber mattresses and bedside lights, were installed. There are specially designed shaving mirrors, and washing and drying machines for the laundry.

In the crew mess area, bright red seat cushions and yellow walls give visual relief from the narrow range of colors used elsewhere.

The mess tables are designed to be folded away or can be converted into benches for use at movie shows, card games and letter writing.

The sub's hull is the first with two decks, one for officers and the other for crew.

A. & P. Breakup Effort Given Up By Government

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The federal government today abandoned efforts to break up the A. & P. food chain, whose red-front stores are a shopping mecca for American housewives in 40 states.

In return, however, the nation's largest food chain—with 6,000 retail stores—agreed to dissolve the Atlantic Commission Co., its produce buying subsidiary.

Atlantic was accused of working both sides of the street—buying for A. & P. at the same time it was selling to competitors.

Four-Year Suit Ended

The consent decree signed here by Federal Judge Edward A. Conger ended a bitter four-year anti-trust civil suit. Charging monopoly, the government originally tried to break the food chain into seven independent and competing units. But it said today A. & P. has begun "to mend its ways."

A. & P. said its breakup would "result in complete remodeling of the entire economic structure of the country."

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Brownell declared of today's compromise:

"Nothing in the decree will deter A. & P. from continuing to sell groceries at prices which would normally result from the efficiency of its buying and selling operation or from any lawful use of its merchandising skill and extensive distribution facilities."

Policy Upheld, Burger Says

In much the same vein, the A. & P. president, Ralph W. Burger, said in a statement:

"The agreement reached with the Anti-Trust Division constitutes recognition of the fact that there is nothing basically wrong with our traditional policy of selling good food cheap.

"The agreement to dissolve our fresh fruit and vegetable buying subsidiary and adhere to certain buying practices will not interfere with our continuing to give our customers more food for their money."

Communists Hotly Object To Transfer

Singing, Flag-Waving Anti-Reds Start Their Journey To Freedom

PANMUNJOM, Wednesday, Jan. 20 (AP) — Singing, flag-waving anti-Red Chinese and Korean prisoners of war began the journey from Indian custody to freedom today despite hot Communist objections.

They streamed out of their camps in the Korean demilitarized zone and marched the two miles over frost-whitened plains to receiving centers in Allied territory.

These were the men whose fate had prolonged the Korean war for more than a year while armistice negotiations wrangled. The decision, that no captive should be forced to go home against his will, was a victory for the Allied side.

And music, welcome signs and exuberant Chinese Nationalists, South Koreans and Americans greeted the captives. Trucks wheeled up, loaded the prisoners and moved southward in convoy along a barricaded and heavily guarded route.

Chinese To Go To Formosa

The Chinese were en route to a camp near Inchon port where landing ships waited to transport them in a few days to the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa.

The Koreans were going into South Korea — and into the ranks of the Republic's army if they wished.

The Chinese POWs began moving out of their compounds at 6 p.m., EST, Tuesday.

The North Korean start was called for 7 p.m., but Indian guards held them up 1½ hours because the prisoners refused to march in loose files. Instead they insisted on bunching up, apparently a move to prevent any who wanted repatriation from breaking ranks.

Indian Brigadier Gurbaksh Singh, chief of the custodial force, said the Communists had blared loudspeaker propaganda at the prisoners throughout the night.

Reds Blare Death Warning

"They kept us awake all night," the brigadier said. "The prisoners heard it and started beating their drums. It made a hell of a noise. We didn't get any sleep."

The Communist loudspeaker warnings, heard also on the Allied side warned that the prisoners would "be killed by Communist gunfire" if they tried to return to the Allied side.

The 21 Americans, one Briton and 327 South Koreans who chose communism remained in their silent camp. The Reds had refused to accept them, at least for a time.

The Communists denounced India's move in handing back the prisoners, a decision which the U.N. Command made clear would lead to the release as civilians of 14,321 Chinese and 7,718 North Koreans—all anti-Red—Saturday.

Convict Studies Way To Freedom

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Prison was no dead end for Stephen Boles, 46, a stubborn man with a pliant mind. In 19 years behind bars he studied his way to freedom—and took time out to win a bride.

Once, 10 years ago, freedom slipped through Boles' fingers. But he went right back to studying law in prison and today he is a free man.

Boles was arrested in a cigar store robbery in 1934. Only 26 then, he was sent up for 30 to 60 years as a second offender.

Like many convicts before him, he turned to the study of law to try to undo the sentence of the court. In 1944, he talked himself into a new trial on the grounds his sentence was illegal.

The sentence was cut to 35 years. So back to the prison law books went Boles.

He won a second new trial early this year, on grounds he had not been properly represented by counsel at the 1944 retrial.

Today, General Sessions Judge John A. Mullen turned Boles free.

Warns Big 4 Parley 'Tactics Of Division' Will Not Fool West

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the Berlin foreign ministers conference will be a waste of time if Russia pursues a policy of trying to divide and frighten the West.

On virtually the eve of his departure for Europe, he warned Moscow the West is "not to be fooled" by such tactics. He expressed hope Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov will show up at the opening session Monday in a "constructive mood."

If he does, Dulles said, he will find the American, British and French foreign ministers responsive and there will be plenty to do.

A-Pool To Be Discussed

Later in the day the State Department announced that Dulles and Molotov have agreed to discuss at Berlin President Eisenhower's proposal to pool some atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

The announcement said the conversations would be a continuation of "the preliminary exchange of views on procedures relating to negotiations concerning atomic energy." This preliminary exchange was begun here with Georgi Zarubin, the Soviet ambassador.

Dulles stressed that the Big Four conference "could have large historical significance"—if Russia agrees to unify Germany through free elections and to give Austria a peace settlement.

Hopes Talks Not Extended

Dulles said he hoped the Big Four session would wind up in three weeks, permitting him to attend an inter-American foreign ministers conference scheduled to be held in Caracas, Venezuela, March 1.

Accompanied by two assistant secretaries of states and an assistant secretary of defense, Dulles is due to leave for Europe aboard the President's personal plane, the "Columbine," Thursday noon.

In advance of the meeting, Dulles hinted in anwering questions that the United States would be willing to change its present defense policy of relying heavily on atomic weapons, if Russia would agree to an acceptable plan for controlling atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Korean Pact OK'd By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved today the mutual defense treaty by which the United States overcame South Korea's opposition to last summer's armistice.

But by the same unanimous vote it limited the pledge of U. S. armed assistance to cases of "external armed attack" on territory which the United States recognizes as being under South Korean control.

The committee, spelling out those limitations in an interpretive clause, in effect warned that this country will not support any South Korean aggression.

Committee Chairman Wiley (R-Wis) said he expects the full Senate to ratify the treaty next week. South Korea already has approved it.

Volcano Threatens 12 Villages In Java

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Jan. 19 (AP)—Twelve villages with a combined population of about 18,000 were in the danger zone today of erupting Merapi, a noted killer volcano.

The eruption, which started yesterday, already has killed 37 Javanese and injured 79. Thousands have fled their homes in terror before the boiling lava flow.

Merapi is in Central Java about 300 miles southeast of Jakarta. It is in one of the world's most densely populated areas, with about 1,900,000 persons living on the fertile eastern and southern slopes and in the surrounding valleys.

Committee Links Hawaii, Alaska Statehood Bills

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Statehood for both Hawaii and Alaska was approved today by the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, which packaged the legislation in one bill for early consideration by the Senate.

A rough course still lies ahead for the measures, however.

Sen. Butler (R-Neb), committee chairman, said he thought the two bills would be separated on the Senate floor and debated one by one. He also conceded his committee still could reverse its action on one or both of the territories.

Strength In Dual Bill

Sen. Anderson (D-NM), a senior member of the committee, says it will be wise to keep the bills together because it will take the combined strength of Alaska and Hawaii statehood supporters to pass either bill.

Both the Republican and Democratic platforms in 1952 advocated statehood for the two territories. President Eisenhower has urged Congress twice to admit Hawaii to the union but he has not endorsed statehood for Alaska now.

Hawaii long has been regarded as a Republican stronghold, although the Democrats made gains there in the last general elections. Alaska has generally voted Democratic, although Republicans now have a majority control of the Alaskan legislature.

"Partisan Issue"

Anderson said he thought "the partisan issue" would be removed if the two bills were presented to the Senate at the same time. Democrats in Congress have accused the GOP administration of supporting Hawaiian statehood alone in hopes of getting two more Republican senators into the Senate and regaining a majority there.

M'Arthur Disputes Japanese Report

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today disputed a Japanese report he used Japanese minesweepers in a violation of international law in a war landing operation by American Marines at Wonsan, Korea, in 1950.

He said the minesweepers had been used since the end of World War II to clear suspected old Japanese mines from Wonsan and other areas and that they were not involved in any belligerency.

The former Far East commander said there was no violation of either international or Japanese law.

2,000 Californians Face Flood Threat

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19 (AP)—Some 2,000 persons today were urged to evacuate their homes in the community of Sierra Madre, threatened by a flood of water, mud, rocks and debris.

R. Merritt Baker, Sierra Madre administrator, issued the warning after the Weather Bureau said two to four inches of rain are expected tonight.

Man Who Killed Friend Who Said 'Boo!' Sentenced

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 19 (AP)—A former deputy constable who shot fatally a longtime friend who stepped up behind him and said "Boo!" was sentenced to eight years in prison today.

He is Fred Gray, 53, who pleaded guilty in Criminal Court.

The victim was Marshall Thompson, 30, who was struck in the chest by a .38-caliber bullet in a restaurant last June 24.

Gray was sentenced on a voluntary manslaughter charge, amended from murder.

Unemployment Continues Rise

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The government reported today 467,500 workers filed initial unemployment benefit claims during the week ended Jan. 9 — the largest weekly figure since August 1945 when World War II ended.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security said 1,816,000 workers were claiming unemployment compensation benefits from the various states for the week ended Jan. 2.

The bureau said the 467,500 new claims reported for the Jan. 9 week could not properly be added to the 1,816,000 total claims for Jan. 2 because some of those initial claims usually soon find new jobs.

However, the figures indicated that unemployment probably is well over two million. The census bureau reported unemployment at 1,850,000 in December.

Bradley's Son-In-Law Killed In Plane Crash

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, former chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, was notified that his son-in-law, Maj. Henry S. Beukema, was killed in the crash of a jet plane today near Langley Field, Va.

A. & P. Breakup Effort Given Up By Government

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The federal government today abandoned efforts to break up the A. & P. food chain, whose red-front stores are a shopping mecca for American housewives in 40 states.

In return, however, the nation's largest food chain—with 6,000 retail stores—agreed to dissolve the Atlantic Commission Co., its produce buying subsidiary.

Atlantic was accused of working both sides of the street—buying for A. & P. at the same time it was selling to competitors.

Four-Year Suit Ended

The consent decree signed here by Federal Judge Edward A. Conger ended a bitter four-year anti-trust civil suit. Charging monopoly, the government originally tried to break the food chain into seven independent and competing units. But it said today A. & P. has begun "to mend its ways."

A. & P. said its breakup would "result in complete remodeling of the entire economic structure of the country."

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Brownell declared of today's compromise:

"Nothing in the decree will deter A. & P. from continuing to sell groceries at prices which would normally result from the efficiency of its buying and selling operation or from any lawful use of its merchandising skill and extensive distribution facilities."

Policy Upheld, Burger Says

In much the same vein, the A. & P. president, Ralph W. Burger, said in a statement:

"The agreement reached with the Anti-Trust Division constitutes recognition of the fact that there is nothing basically wrong with our traditional policy of selling good food cheap.

"The agreement to dissolve our fresh fruit and vegetable buying subsidiary and adhere to certain buying practices will not interfere with our continuing to give our customers more food for their money."

Atomic Sub Has Ultra-Ultra Interior For "Habitability"

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The colors, the lights, the bunks, the space are enough to make an old pigboatman cry: "This ain't the old Navy."

And it isn't. This is the navy of the deadly Nautilus, the world's first atomic-powered submarine, which will be launched Thursday.

It's also a Navy preoccupied by "habitability."

It would do no good for an atomic-powered submarine to be able to stay at sea indefinitely if its crew couldn't stand up under the wearing days in their cramped quarters.

To keep men's minds and bodies at their peak on long atom sub cruises the Navy called in industrial designers J. Gordon Lippincott and Walter P. Margulies.

As a result, the Nautilus will be the most livable sub ever built. It is the first craft of its kind in which livability has been a main concern from the outset.

One aim of the designers was to give the crew's quarters a different look. This would give the men a feeling of being away from their jobs when not on watch.

Special berths, with foam rubber mattresses and bedside lights, were installed. There are specially designed shaving mirrors, and washing and drying machines for the laundry.

In the crew mess area, bright red seat cushions and yellow walls give visual relief from the narrow range of colors used elsewhere.

The mess tables are designed to be folded away or can be converted into benches for use at movie shows, card games and letter writing.

The sub's hull is the first with two decks, one for officers and the other for crew.

Singing, Flag-Waving Anti-Reds Start Their Journey To Freedom

PANMUNJOM, Wednesday, Jan. 20 (AP) — Singing, flag-waving anti-Red Chinese and Korean prisoners of war began the journey from Indian custody to freedom today despite hot Communist objections.

They streamed out of their camps in the Korean demilitarized zone and marched the two miles over frost-whitened plains to receiving centers in Allied territory.

These were the men whose fate had prolonged the Korean war for more than a year while armistice negotiations wrangled. The decision, that no captive should be forced to go home against his will, was a victory for the Allied side.

And music, welcome signs and exuberant Chinese Nationalists, South Koreans and Americans greeted the captives. Trucks wheeled up, loaded the prisoners and moved southward in convoy along a barricaded and heavily guarded route.

Chinese To Go To Formosa

The Chinese were en route to a camp near Inchon port where landing ships waited to transport them in a few days to the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa.

The Koreans were going into South Korea — and into the ranks of the Republic's army if they wished.

The Chinese POWs began moving out of their compounds at 6 p.m., EST, Tuesday.

The North Korean start was called for 7 p.m., but Indian guards held them up 1½ hours because the prisoners refused to march in loose files. Instead they insisted on bunching up, apparently a move to prevent any who wanted repatriation from breaking ranks.

Indian Brigadier Gurbaksh Singh, chief of the custodial force, said the Communists had blared loudspeaker propaganda at the prisoners throughout the night.

Reds Blare Death Warning

"They kept us awake all night," the brigadier said. "The prisoners heard it and started beating their drums. It made a hell of a noise. We didn't get any sleep."

The Communist loudspeaker warnings, heard also on the Allied side warned that the prisoners would "be killed by Communist gunfire" if they tried to return to the Allied side.

The 21 Americans, one Briton and 327 South Koreans who chose communism remained in their silent camp. The Reds had refused to accept them, at least for a time.

The Communists denounced India's move in handing back the prisoners, a decision which the U.N. Command made clear would lead to the release as civilians of 14,321 Chinese and 7,718 North Koreans—all anti-Red—Saturday.

Convict Studies Way To Freedom

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Prison was no dead end for Stephen Boles, 46, a stubborn man with a pliant mind. In 19 years behind bars he studied his way to freedom—and took time out to win a bride.

Once, 10 years ago, freedom slipped through Boles' fingers. But he went right back to studying law in prison and today he is a free man.

Boles was arrested in a cigar store robbery in 1934. Only 26 then, he was sent up for 30 to 60 years as a second offender.

Like many convicts before him, he turned to the study of law to try to undo the sentence of the court. In 1944, he talked himself into a new trial on the grounds his sentence was illegal.

The sentence was cut to 35 years. So back to the prison law books went Boles.

He won a second new trial early this year, on grounds he had not been properly represented by counsel at the 1944 retrial.

Atom Pool Talks Held

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin met with Secretary of State Dulles late today in their second preliminary talk on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace proposal.

The meeting lasted 20 minutes; Zarubin declined to comment when he left.

Report Armed GI Heading For Capital Sets Off Alert

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — A report that an AWOL Air Force sergeant was en route here armed with a high powered rifle to tell congressmen his grievances against the military set off an exciting police alert today.

Capitol guards set a watch about senators and House members from Florida and New York, since the airman was said to live alternately in those two states. He was reported driving a 1952 auto bearing Florida licenses.

Officials at Westover Air Force Base, Mass., identified the missing airman as M. Sgt. Victor Petoniak, 43, a veteran of 24 years service. They said he left the base without permission several days ago while "undergoing observation at the base hospital."

The officers said Petoniak was known to own a high-powered rifle but they didn't know whether he had it with him.

Capitol police said the Air Force reported Petoniak called Andrews Field in nearby Maryland this afternoon to say he was en route here. He was quoted as saying he wanted to see his senators and congressmen to try and get something done about "certain grievances."

Special alerts were sounded at all entrances to the capitol and the Senate and House office buildings. A search of the grounds was made too, but by time business for the day ended no one answering Petoniak's description had turned up.

An aide to Sen. Smathers (D-Fla) told a reporter Petoniak wrote the Senator last summer complaining bitterly because the Air Force had refused to transfer him from Westover to MacDill field near Tampa, Fla.

Saved State 3 Million, W. Va. Governor Says

Marland Reviews Accomplishments

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 19 (AP) — Gov. Marland estimated today that close to three million dollars has been whittled from the annual cost of state government since he took office a year ago.

On the first anniversary of his inauguration as West Virginia's youngest governor, Marland reviewed for a press conference audience what he regards as the accomplishments of his administration so far.

Twenty-four newspaper, wire service, and radio and television station representatives crowded into the governor's office in the capitol for the occasion.

Marland classed two achievements as the most important ones to date in terms of, as he put it, giving the taxpayers more for their money. He described the two as:

1. "A general shaking down and reappraisal—and reorganization in some instances—of the Road Commission."

2. "Installation of inventory control over state property."

About $25,000 has been pared from the annual administrative expenses of the Road Commission, Marland reported. The average number of commission employes, other than administrative personnel here, was cut to 4,583 last year, a decrease of 1,434 from 1952.

The Road Commission in the past year has sold for $54,000 a total of 245 units of surplus road equipment with a "book value" of $42,000, the governor said. He explained:

"We had more equipment than we could use with the money we've got."

Marland credited the inventory control system—which he conceded "has only scratched the surface" so far—with already achieving savings of $200,000 to $300,000 a year, without counting road equipment purchases.

Inventory control makes possible transfers of surplus supplies and equipment between state agencies and thereby eliminates new purchases in many instances, the governor explained.

He said the inventory system had uncovered "a veritable gold mine of equipment and supplies" which can be shifted around among departments as needed.

The ancient Chinese divided the time of their day into 100 parts instead of the 24 that we do.

Employe Death Benefit Tax Revision Backed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee agreed today that all employe death benefits of up to $5,000 should be free of income taxes.

The committee also approved taxing the interest received in installment payments of life insurance policies of $50,000 or more. All life insurance proceeds are tax-free now.

Present law permits a $5,000 employe death benefit exemption only where the benefit is paid as part of a contract. The new proposal extends the exemption to outright, spontaneous gifts which are not part of a contract.

GM Will Spend Billion Dollars For Expansion

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—General Motors today put a billion dollars behind its confidence in the immediate future and the long term demand for its product.

Its president, Harlow H. Curtice, announced the corporation will spend that sum in expanding the production facilities of its various divisions. The announcement, one of the most significant in automotive industry history, was made to a luncheon meeting of business men and industrialists.

Curtice's optimistic outlook was seconded by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., General Motors board chairman. He said he thought Curtice may have been conservative. "My opinion," Sloan said, "is that before it (the expansion program) gets through it probably will be a billion and a half."

The luncheon meeting was preliminary to the opening Thursday of General Motors 1954 motorama, a huge presentation of the corporation's various products and engineering research.

Time Bomb May Have Shattered Comet Jetliner

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Civil Aviation Minister Alan Lennox-Boyd said tonight a time bomb may have been placed in the Comet jet airliner that crashed in the Mediterranean 10 days ago killing 35 persons.

A theory that the sleek plane was either sabotaged or fell victim to some kind of criminal plot is one of several being investigated.

Asked about the theory on his return from Italy, Lennox-Boyd told reporters at the airport:

"I would not like to align myself with any theory but considering the medical evidence it is a possible interpretation of what might have occurred."

The Comet, the pride of Britain's merchant air fleet, crashed off the island of Elba, Napoleon's old place of exile, a few minutes after taking off from Rome. It was bound for London from Singapore and had made stops at Karachi, Pakistan, and Beirut, Lebanon, as well as Rome.

All passengers and crewmen aboard lost their lives. Doctors noted that the 15 bodies recovered from the water had burns on the legs which could have resulted from an explosion. The disaster apparently struck suddenly and the faces of the dead showed no hint of fright.

NATO To Construct Training Facilities

PARIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—A $47,713,330 program for the construction of training facilities was announced today by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The facilities will be established in six European countries of the 14-nation alliance. Digging and building are actually under way on some of the projects and are about to begin on others, a NATO communique said.

Construction of bombing and gunnery bases are to be built. Areas for training ground forces up to divisional size are planned. Anti-aircraft artillery and tank gunnery ranges also will be set up.

Man Is Critically Hurt In Refinery Blast At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP) — An explosion set fire to a big tower at the Esso Standard Oil Refinery here tonight, burning one man critically and sending flames 150 feet into the air.

The blast occurred in a "cracking coil," where petroleum is refined. The coil had 3,000 to 4,000 gallons of oil in it.

Frederick C. Roth, chief operator of the unit, was enveloped in flames. Two workmen pulled him out.

One hour and six alarms after the explosion, firemen said they had the blaze under control. Earlier they had warned residents of the area to flee for fear the flames touch off explosions in other nearby cracking coils.

Even if a person is a good sleeper, he changes his position completely from 22 to 45 times a night.

Contino, Back From Korea, 'Glad It's Over'

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Army Sgt. Dick Contino, the accordionist, returned today from Korea and said he was glad he had served but also was "glad that it's over."

The tall, tanned young man, who served a term for draft evasion, was warmly welcomed by members of his family as he debarked from a Navy transport.

"Constructive" AMA Medical Aid Program Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Rep. Wolverton (R-NJ) said today he hopes the American Medical Assn. will come forward with "a constructive program" for helping average Americans meet heavy medical expenses.

Wolverton is chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, now investigating public health needs. He said in a statement that comments by Dr. Edward J. McCormick, AMA president, indicated "a total failure . . . to recognize the serious problem that exists for the average citizen to carry the heavy burden incident to hospital expenses."

Dr. McCormick said he is not sure that private health insurance organizations need a government reinsurance program as proposed by President Eisenhower.

Home-For-Veep Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—An official home for the vice president would be provided under a bill introduced today by Sen. Bridges (R-NH). Cost of the home would be limited to $300,000.

Wife Calms Crazed Patient

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP)—A man being treated for gunshot wounds went berserk at the touch of a hypodermic needle early today, smashing hospital windows, hurling broken glass at doctors and nurses, and threatening to leap from the seventh floor.

In the midst of his rampage he tumbled through a flimsy latticework covering and into a ventilating unit in the University Hospital delivery room. He decided to stay there.

After 15 police, firemen and hospital staffers failed, his little, soft-spoken wife coaxed him out.

"You're trying to kill me," accused 28-year-old Willie McCullum, Negro.

Moments earlier he had been lying on an operating table, calmly submitting to treatment for arm wounds which police said had been inflicted by a male relative.

When a local anaesthetic was injected, he bolted from the table, dashed down a corridor and into the delivery room. There he climbed onto a head-high gallery enclosing the ventilating unit, drove his fist through several windows and proclaimed he would jump to the street.

THE NEW LINCOLN FOR '54

You'll never be satisfied with old-fashioned driving

One drive in the new Lincoln for 1954 will show you the big change that has come to motoring.

Gone is the ride that sways on the slightest curve. Gone is the bulging hood, the swollen fenders which make parking a chore. Instead you have greater control and superb performance.

The new Lincoln has been built from the wheels up, from taillights to front grille, in a different way. It takes its functional lines from the new look of modern design; its colors and fabrics from the newest trends in home decoration. When you put this new look in motoring in motion you discover an amazing difference.

First, there's supreme comfort. Even around curves you ride with cushioned ease and far less sway because of ball-joint front wheel suspension, exclusive with Lincoln among America's fine cars.

Then you'll find new liveliness in the new Lincoln. Its V-8 engine is more efficient than ever! And the new 4-barrel carburetor makes Lincoln's superb performance even smoother, more responsive.

Won't you come in, see and try the Lincoln or Lincoln Capri. In our opinion, you'll never be satisfied with old-fashioned driving again.

LMDA

Man Is Critically Hurt In Refinery Blast At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP) — An explosion set fire to a big tower at the Esso Standard Oil Refinery here tonight, burning one man critically and sending flames 150 feet into the air.

The blast occurred in a "cracking coil," where petroleum is refined. The coil had 3,000 to 4,000 gallons of oil in it.

Frederick C. Roth, chief operator of the unit, was enveloped in flames. Two workmen pulled him out.

One hour and six alarms after the explosion, firemen said they had the blaze under control. Earlier they had warned residents of the area to flee for fear the flames touch off explosions in other nearby cracking coils.

Even if a person is a good sleeper, he changes his position completely from 22 to 45 times a night.

Contino, Back From Korea, 'Glad It's Over'

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Army Sgt. Dick Contino, the accordionist, returned today from Korea and said he was glad he had served but also was "glad that it's over."

The tall, tanned young man, who served a term for draft evasion, was warmly welcomed by members of his family as he debarked from a Navy transport.

"Constructive" AMA Medical Aid Program Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Rep. Wolverton (R-NJ) said today he hopes the American Medical Assn. will come forward with "a constructive program" for helping average Americans meet heavy medical expenses.

Wolverton is chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, now investigating public health needs. He said in a statement that comments by Dr. Edward J. McCormick, AMA president, indicated "a total failure . . . to recognize the serious problem that exists for the average citizen to carry the heavy burden incident to hospital expenses."

Dr. McCormick said he is not sure that private health insurance organizations need a government reinsurance program as proposed by President Eisenhower.

Home-For-Veep Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—An official home for the vice president would be provided under a bill introduced today by Sen. Bridges (R-NH). Cost of the home would be limited to $300,000.

Wife Calms Crazed Patient

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP)—A man being treated for gunshot wounds went berserk at the touch of a hypodermic needle early today, smashing hospital windows, hurling broken glass at doctors and nurses, and threatening to leap from the seventh floor.

In the midst of his rampage he tumbled through a flimsy lattice-work covering and into a ventilating unit in the University Hospital delivery room. He decided to stay there.

After 15 police, firemen and hospital staffers failed, his little, soft-spoken wife coaxed him out.

"You're trying to kill me," accused 28-year-old Willie McCullum, Negro.

Moments earlier he had been lying on an operating table, calmly submitting to treatment for arm wounds which police said had been inflicted by a male relative.

When a local anaesthetic was injected, he bolted from the table, dashed down a corridor and into the delivery room. There he climbed onto a head-high gallery enclosing the ventilating unit, drove his fist through several windows and proclaimed he would jump to the street.

THE NEW LINCOLN FOR '54

You'll never be satisfied with old-fashioned driving

One drive in the new Lincoln for 1954 will show you the big change that has come to motoring.

Gone is the ride that sways on the slightest curve. Gone is the bulging hood, the swollen fenders which make parking a chore. Instead you have greater control and superb performance.

The new Lincoln has been built from the wheels up, from tail-lights to front grille, in a different way. It takes its functional lines from the new look of modern design; its colors and fabrics from the newest trends in home decoration. When you put this new look in motoring in motion you discover an amazing difference.

First, there's supreme comfort. Even around curves you ride with cushioned ease and far less sway because of ball-joint front wheel suspension, exclusive with Lincoln among America's fine cars.

Then you'll find new liveliness in the new Lincoln. Its V-8 engine is more efficient than ever! And the new 4-barrel carburetor makes Lincoln's superb performance even smoother, more responsive.

Won't you come in, see and try the Lincoln or Lincoln Capri. In our opinion, you'll never be satisfied with old-fashioned driving again.

Performance proof: Lincoln again won 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th places over all stock cars in the 1,912-mile Mexican Pan-American Road Race.

Don't miss the big television hit, "TOAST OF THE TOWN" with Ed Sullivan. Sunday 3:00 to 4:00 P. M. Station WJAC-TV Channel 6

Newspapers Reveal Soviet Population Is 210,000,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP) — The population of the Soviet Union is now about 210 million. Soviet newspapers which arrived here today disclose there are 700 districts of 300,000 persons each for the Supreme Soviet elections in March. The population in 1939 of the same area now comprised in the Soviet Union was about 194 million.

Here are some of the things revealed in the election plans:

Moscow appears to have a population of some 5,400,000, a gain of about 300,000 from the last elections four years ago. Leningrad appears to have 3,300,000 — no change from 1950.

No other Soviet city seems to exceed a million in population, but four approach this figure. Sverdlovsk in the Urals, Kiev and Kharkhov in the Ukraine, and Gorky on the Volga River apparently have around 900,000 inhabitants.

The bulk of the population continues to live in the European portion of the country. Almost 150 million live in the European part of the Russian republic.

The Urals industrial area — including the oil-rich Bashkirian republic — which is located on the borders between Europe and Asia can be estimated to have a population of 13 million.

Central and Western Siberia from the Urals to Lake Baikal is populated now by about 17 million people while the Soviet far east from Lake Baikal to the Pacific has only about 7 million inhabitants.

Soviet Central Asia has around 18 million inhabitants apparently and the three trans-Caucasus republics around 8 million.

Of the 16 republics making up the U.S.S.R., the vast Russian republic has over half the population of the country — 121 million, the Ukraine has 43 million inhabitants, Belorussia 9 million, Uzbekistan 7 million, Kazakhstan 6 million and the rest are all less than 4 million.

Dean Reveals He Lost His Temper During Allied Retreat And Fired .45 At Red Tank

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean vented his anger over the Communists' overwhelming odds against his retreating 24th Division early in the Korean War by standing in Taejon's shattered streets and firing his .45 at a Red tank.

"I wasn't silly enough to expect to do anything with a pistol," he said. "That was just plain rage and frustration — just Dean losing his temper again and doing something foolish."

Dean's account of his tank-hunting is given in the first installment of "My Three Years As a Bad Man," appearing today in the Saturday Evening Post.

His tank exploits occurred July 20, 1950, the day he was cut off from most of his division. After more than a month of trying to find his way back to his lines, he was captured Aug. 26. He was released last September after more than three years as a prisoner.

"In the fighting I made some mistakes and I've kicked myself a thousand times for them," he wrote.

"I lost ground I shouldn't have lost. I'm not proud of that record and I'm under no delusions that it was any masterly campaign.

"Other men resisted torture but I wasn't tortured. Others bluffed the Communists steadily whereas I was lucky enough to do it only once in a while. Others starved and I was fed — even learned to like kimchee (a highly-seasoned vegetable dish). Others died for a principle but I failed in a suicide attempt."

Security Guaranty To Russia?

As the American, British and French governments prepare for the meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers originally set for Berlin on January 25, a proposal to Russia for some kind of mutual non-aggression treaty is understood to be at least under consideration. This would be a counter-move to the Russian argument that the contemplated European defense (EDC) army, with units from a re-armed Germany, is meant for aggression, so that Russia can't afford to withdraw the Red armies from eastern Germany.

The French also are afraid that the German units in EDC would put Germany in a position to commit aggression again. So the French may call for American-British guaranties against aggression on France if any are to be offered Moscow against aggression on Russia.

Non-aggression treaties in the past have pledged each signatory to accept the existing borders of another. But what are the borders of the Soviet Union today? There would be strong opposition in the West, and especially in this country, to accepting the Russian-Polish occupancy of former German land east of the Oder-Neisse, or the Russian absorption of the Baltic states, or Communist control of Czechoslovakia and Balkan states.

Talk today about any non-aggression treaty with Russia is apt to refer to the Locarno treaty with Germany in 1925. This accepted the existing German borders on the West, and pledged Britain, Italy, Belgium and France to act together to resist any encroachment by Germany there.

That 1925 treaty was denounced by Russia as letting a rebuilt Germany expand to the east at the expense of Russia. So in the early 1930's an eastern Locarno treaty was projected, by which Germany's eastern border also would have been solidified and Russia would have joined in guaranteeing Germany's western borders. But Hitler, who came to power in 1933, rejected this eastern Locarno idea and in 1936 he made the western Locarno treaty a scrap of paper by re-arming the Rhineland.

Italian Leadership

Politics in Italy, as in France, has a comic opera slant to the average American. Governments fall and new ones rise. New leaders come to prominence over night—men whose names are totally unfamiliar on this side of the Atlantic.

Who, Americans are asking, is Amintori Fanfani, who is in the process of forming a new coalition government to replace the cabinet which dissolved when Premier Pella resigned. Premier-designate Fanfani is an experienced politician who has served in all but one Italian cabinet since 1947. He was formerly a professor of economics and has been a member of the left wing of the Christian Democratic party, the entity which holds a slim control in the divided Italian Chamber of Deputies.

The importance of Fanfani's appearance on the political scene at this time is the following he will probably be able to attract from among the membership of the other parties (excluding the Communists and probably the Monarchists). He has been an ardent champion of land reform—parcelling out great estates to the poor. Advocates of such a course brought about the downfall of the previous Pella government.

It seems to be clear that the new Italian government that is set up will be preoccupied with domestic affairs, with less emphasis on foreign policy, including membership in NATO and the Trieste problem. It will mark a turning point further to the left in Italy.

How long the new government will stay in office, or whether its successor will be still more radical or will again veer to the right, can only be disclosed as time goes on.

Russian Air Power

It is a well known fact that the Russians invented everything under the sun, but Mervin Strickler, education director for the national Civil Air Patrol, and the first man to be granted the degree of doctor of aviation education (Stanford University, 1951), says the Muscovites have not claimed credit for their prowess in aviation because to do so would be to honor czarist and white Russians.

Too many people believe, Strickler says, that the Russians were backward in the early development of powered flight. But 150 years ago the Russians became the third nation in the world to use balloons for military purposes, being preceded only by France and Denmark.

It is also a matter of record, he says, that one of the men implicated in the assassination of Alexander II in 1881 whiled away the hours in prison before his execution by making some extremely workable sketches for balloons with engines—dirigibles.

The Russian Duma in 1911 appropriated $5,000,000 for military aviation. In 1914 Igor I. Sikorsky, a white Russian, who later came to the U. S., developed the biggest land plane known up to that time—about the general dimensions of a B-17 Flying Fortress.

In warning against underestimation of Russian air power today, Strickler points out that Russia has maintained aircraft production at approximately 37,000 planes a year, close to peak World War II production. There can be no doubt that Russian air power is formidable.

Covered Bridge Topics

Believe it or not, the caption on this essay is the name of a magazine. It is published by the Society for the Preservation of Covered Bridges, with headquarters in Boston.

But most of the Saturday Evening Post article is about a fellow named Richard Sanders Allen, postmaster of the village of Round Lake, N. Y., population 750. Allen is the main contributor to the magazine. He is also the foremost "collector" of covered bridges in North America, if not the world.

Allen's checklist, recently brought up to date, includes 1,870 covered bridges in the United States and 623 in Canada. Pennsylvania leads the pack of 33 states in which covered bridges are found, with 429. Ohio is next with 379. Oregon is third, with 286.

The Post article is full of surprising facts about covered bridges. They do not go back to colonial days, but only to 1804 when, so far as Allen knows, the first one in America was built across the Schuylkill at Philadelphia. The longest such bridge, 1,282 feet, is in New Brunswick.

Why were bridges roofed and walled? Maybe partly to keep horses from shying at the water, but mostly, says Allen, to keep the decks dry to make them last longer. Some covered bridges, in fact, have outlasted steel structures built as replacements.

Bones, Buttons, And Pins

Children 1 to 4 years of age are more likely than any one else to swallow objects accidentally. This is understandable because these tots are close to the ground and love to explore their environment. Older folk are next on the list, especially those with false teeth. They specialize in swallowing bones because their dentures have no feeling. These people are unaware that the piece of chicken or fish harbors a bone until it goes down the hatch. Between these two age groups are the adults who make mistakes and occasionally swallow a toothpick, safety pin, tack or nail.

In a study of this problem in California, Doctors Bernard H. Feder and Garth G. Myers found that 95 patients sought help along this line over a period of three and a half years. One of the series was a 26 year old woman who swallowed three open safety pins. During the operation, these physicians were able to find and close the pins without making an incision into the intestines. Later, they discovered that this woman had been trying to commit suicide. A young man developed acute appendicitis and X-ray disclosed a tenpenny nail in the lower right abdomen. Later, when confronted with the evidence, he admitted that four years previously he had swallowed the nail "just before going to prison in order that he might have a weapon when incarcerated." These examples demonstrate that swallowing foreign bodies is not always accidental.

My interest in this subject was stimulated during my college days by the untimely death of a young business man in town. While under the influence of alcohol he swallowed a sharp chicken bone that lodged in his esophagus (gullet). Feeling no pain, he did nothing about it until thoroly sober 12 hours later. By then the bone had penetrated thru the gullet and into the central part of the chest cavity. In those days we had no penicillin and chest surgery was in its infancy. He died within three days.

This brings up the question of what to do when a pin, coin, marble, or toy has been gulped inadvertently. There is no harm in eating bread to help push the intestinal contents along but it also is advisable to consult a physician even tho the possibility is good that the object will complete its journey without causing trouble. X-rays usually are taken and if the foreign body has passed safely thru the gullet into the stomach, there is no need for alarm. Most physicians prefer to wait and let nature take its course. Subsequent X-rays may be required.

But if the object is large, pointed, or jagged and has not moved or passed within 48 hours, operation may be necessary. On the other hand, if it is blunt and there are no symptoms, it is safe to wait four to six hours. The intestinal tract is able to protect itself; and animal experiments have demonstrated that the bowel enlarges when pricked with a pin, to facilitate passage. The bowel also has the ability to turn pins so that they may pass thru head first.

Conditions are not always so favorable, however. An emergency is created when an object sticks in the throat or gullet. It is here that the use of the esophagoscope is essential to remove the obstruction. Pins, bones, and bits of wire account for 90 per cent of all perforations. Toothpicks and wood splinters are responsible for the remainder.

Yes, if the animal was infected. I would suggest that you tell your physician or the local health department what happened.

Ike's First Year In Office One Of Great Changes And Education; Has Changed His Mind About "Creeping Socialism," Taken On New Advisers

WASHINGTON—It is now exactly one year since Dwight Eisenhower entered the White House, a year that has been one of great education and has seen great changes. Here is a thumbnail sketch of the Ike of today:

IKE AND BUSINESS — A year ago Eisenhower's economic theories sounded like a National Association of Manufacturers pamphlet. Now he has swung back halfway to the ideas expressed at the F Street Club right after the war which so shocked Republican backers. "If men's lives were conscripted in wartime," Ike said at the F Street Club dinner, "Why shouldn't profits be conscripted too?" . . . Ike is more conservative than in those immediate prewar years, but less hands-off policy toward business. Nor does he believe that the doctrine of states' rights, so loudly proclaimed a year ago, constitutes a cure-all for everything.

IKE AND ECONOMY—No longer does the President believe he can balance the budget. Nor does he view government - spending with anathema, as he did a year ago. He is willing to put his foot in government-spending water as an offset to recession worries. But he is a long way from taking the big spending plunge. . . . And some of the economists around him recall that it takes a lot of spending to halt a business slide once it starts. . . . Ike has changed his mind about creeping socialism and the Tennessee Valley; has already set aside $105,000,000 to start another "creeping socialism" project on the St. Lawrence, once the seaway project passes Congress. . . . The economy bloc in the Eisenhower administration, notably Secretary George Humphrey and Budget Director Joe Dodge, still remain Ike's close friends, but he doesn't follow their advice as much as formerly. . . . Sometimes the chief executive is unhappily torn between the two wings of his official family.

MEN AROUND IKE — A man who's had little experience in civilian government is almost completely dependent on the men around him. That's why it's significant that a new flank of advisers has moved in around the President. . . . They aren't liberal by the Harry Hopkins standard, but they are far more progressive than the big-business golfing partners who used to move over from Sea Island to Augusta when Ike went to the "Georgia White House." . . . Some wiseacres call them "hucksters" rather than liberals, and it's true that the new flank is passionately concerned with upping Ike's Gallup Poll rating. . . . However, they include Kevin McCann, president of The Defiance College; Charles Moore, up-and-coming former public relations adviser to Ford Motors; Dr. Arthur Burns, liberal head of the Council of Economic Advisers; C. D. Jackson, former publisher of Fortune magazine and the man who pushed Ike into the atomic-pool speech; and Robert Cutler, Boston banker who got into the White House through Justice Felix Frankfurter. . . . This group is unanimously anti-McCarthy and unanimously opposed to the right-wing GOP. They are pulling Ike to get back to the middle-of-the-road course where he once had the support of many Democrats.

IKE AND CONGRESS—Congressional relations is a field that greatly worries the President. At first he figured he could "goodwill" members of Congress, that White House luncheons, personal conversations would keep congressmen in line. . . . Now he is a wiser man. Nothing but a strong and successful policy, he has begun to realize, can keep Congress with him. . . . And he still hasn't learned this completely. . . . When Senator Knowland kicked over the traces on funneling of defense orders to depressed areas; when Sam Rayburn reacted vigorously to criticism of Democratic spending, the President was hurt and bewildered. He still is a long way from understanding politics.

IKE AND FOREIGN POLICY—This is the field that Eisenhower knows best and where he is determined to chalk up notable achievements. Here he has been more consistent than in domestic policy, but sometimes so cautious that his own advisers get inpatient. . . . It took time to get him to make the $15,000,000 food gift to East Germany last spring, a move actually initiated by the State Department and which met with immediate success. Later, when an old-clothes drive was planned to help the East Germans, the summer White House in Denver misplaced Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's letter for three weeks and the clothes drive never did get under way. . . . The President also hesitated three months before he made his speech proposing the pooling of atomic energy, and the speech was rewritten more than 20 times. . . . On foreign affairs generally, Ike has switched from the China bloc's view that the U.S.A. must concentrate on the Far East. He is now veering more toward Europe. . . . His over-all policies remain the same as those laid down in the Truman administration but, after all, both Dulles and Eisenhower were among those appointed to carry those policies forward.

IKE THE MAN—After one year in the White House, the President works harder than before. Sensitive to criticism that he is lazy, he plays less golf and makes more decisions himself. During early months as President Ike tried to delegate almost everything, even bawled out his staff when they called him back from Burning Tree on the instruction of the National Security Council to make a major decision on Korea. . . . The President still loses his temper, still chews out his staff, still likes to delegate authority. It is these bursts of temper that send up his blood pressure and worry his doctors. . . . But Ike knows that his entire career is now in the balance and is determined that the verdict of history will be favorable. . . . In many respects he does not like the presidency, wishes he had never been persuaded to run. Few people realize the loneliness of living in the White House, the inability to relax, the impossibility of obtaining privacy. . . . Though he doesn't like his job, Dwight Eisenhower is determined to do the best he can, but he is also determined that he will not run again.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — (INS) — The excruciating hair-splitting over the Berlin meeting places of the Big Four foreign ministers conference on Germany, Austria and other reigning topics is a measure of the continuing hazard and frustration of doing business with the Russians.

And it strengthens the President's position: Let them show some positive sign of willingness to cooperate, in the name of peace, before we start throwing our hat in the air.

Once, in the days directly after the war, the four great powers in Germany met in Berlin in an atmosphere of cordiality which now seems like a Graustarkian dream.

Gen. Eisenhower and Marshal Zhukov were especial friends.

"On the part of Zhukov and his assistants there was discernible only an intense desire to be friendly and cooperative," Ike wrote later in his "Crusade in Europe" (Doubleday.) "Looking back on it, that day still seems to have held nothing but bright promise for the establishment of close relations with the Russans. That promise, eventually lost in suspicion and recrimination, was never to be fulfilled. But so far as the friendly association between Marshall Zhukov and myself was concerned, it continued to grow until the moment I left Europe in November 1945. That friendship was a personal and individual thing and unfortunately was not representative of a general attitude."

There were rounds of dinners, the giving and acceptance of decorations ("the decorations presented to Montgomery and me (by Zhukov) were among the few I have seen that have great intrinsic rather than exclusively sentimental and symbolic value," Ike wrote. "Designed in the form of a star, each contains some 80 or 90 diamonds surrounding a group of synthetic rubies, in the center of which is a small enameled representation of the Kremlin.")

By 1949, during the airlift, American reporters in Berlin were being told that if the Red army marched they were to go with their families to the Allied control compound—once the scene of accord—and there await capture, along with the small American armed force.

Now, in an atmosphere that reeks with suspicion, the Big Four again seeks a round table in Berlin. The old meeting place still exists, but the Reds will have none of it. They threatened to meet only in the Russian embassy in the Soviet sector. The Allies countered with a suggestion that every fourth meeting be held at the Russian embassy. The Reds reluctantly agreed to meet there only one half the time. Britain and France said, "What's the difference? Getting together is the important thing." The U. S. held out, grudgingly agreeing finally to the following preposterous, face-saving solution:

The first week's meetings will be held at the Allied compound. The second week's will be held at the Russian embassy. The third week's—and there probably will be a third week if we have to filibuster—will be at the Allied compound. Before a fourth week's meetings could start, there would have to be another conference on where they would be held, on one side of the Brandenburg Gate or the other.

Where will the files be kept? Will there be two complete communications centers, for the transmission of news reports? Or will there be a free load for reporters, with one side trying to outdo the other in splendid viands and lustrous potions—as is the case when the scene shifts from the official hotel of the New York Yankees to the hotel of the Brooklyn Dodgers during a World Series? More importantly, will someone have the gumption to get up at the conference and say, "Don't you think we're acting like a bunch of kids?"

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Just why did the diplomats wrangle for several days on whether the four-power conference should be held in East or West Berlin?

On the surface, it seems a trivial matter to be arguing about nowadays. But back of it is a significant story which tells a good deal about "cold war" tactics and the way in which the Allies are constantly beset by Communist maneuvers and tricks. It foretells why the whole four-power conference will be a sham and will reflect only the deliberate effort of the Communists to gain a propaganda advantage.

The Soviet purpose in insisting that at least half of the sessions of the four-power conference be held in East Berlin was to tell the entire Communist world that the Western Allies are coming to Soviet-controlled territory to beg for "peace." It is essential from the Moscow viewpoint to portray the Allies as craven characters petitioning the Soviet government for a chance to make the necessary concessions and surrenders that will give the Communists the kind of "peace" they want.

Reached Compromise

The Allied negotiators have known all along, of course, the Soviet objective in arguing about the site of the conference, and for a while they stood firm against holding the meetings in Soviet-controlled territory and then proposed a rotation among the four occupied zones, which meant that one in four meetings would be held in East Berlin. But, as is the case with such arguments, the Communists theorize that, if they bicker long enough the Allies will become exhausted and finally someone on the Allied side will say: "Well, after all, let's get on with the conference. There's no sense in arguing about a mere meeting place. Let's give them what they want or make a compromise."

The Moscow regime, to be sure, has wanted a four-power conference to be held and, rather than see the conference collapse, would have agreed to have all the meetings held in West Berlin, if the Allies had cared to make a stand on it. The compromise finally reached provides that the first week's meetings shall be held in West Berlin, the next week's in East Berlin, and the following week's in West Berlin again. The conference probably will last several weeks, if not months, and it has been left open where the fourth week's sessions will be held.

From the Communist viewpoint, it is imperative to show that the Moscow government is dictating to the Western Allies. The argument about the site offered one way to do it. If, on the other hand, an impression of superiority cannot be attained, then the effort is to achieve at least a position of equality — by rotating the meetings between East and West Berlin.

It will be recalled that, at the time the United Nations organization was first brought into being in San Francisco in the spring of 1945, diplomatic etiquette called for the American secretary of state to preside at the plenary sessions, which were more or less ceremonial anyway. But Mr. Molotov objected at the outset, and finally somebody discovered that he would agree to a formula whereby each of the four nations would select a chairman who would preside at a different session. So four co-chairmen were chosen. When it came the turn for Foreign Minister Molotov to preside, he opened the session with a remark substantially as follows:

"I am glad to preside over this session of the United Nations and to be speaking to the world in the Russian language."

National pride was strong, of course, but the evident aim was to convey to the people back home that, even when international meetings are held in the United States, the Soviet foreign minister presides.

Good For Home Consumption

The forthcoming four-power conference has been sought by Moscow solely as a propaganda maneuver. The Soviet press will use the occasion to enhance, if it can, the prestige of the Malenkov government. Unquestionably the Moscow regime lives in fear of an uprising. The recent outbursts in East Germany were hurtful to the prestige of Moscow behind the iron curtain.

Originally, the Western Allies insisted that some concrete deeds be manifested by the Soviets before there was a four-power conference. But the Western governments retreated on this. To refuse to talk with Moscow usually brings criticism—much of it inspired by Communist agents or sympathizers, who argue that the West is intolerant or stubbornly unwilling to "negotiate peace."

Plenty of private organizations and individuals in the Western world echo this same thought, so the American government and the Allied governments find it necessary to keep on talking — though they know nothing can or will come of it. That's because the Soviets are not ready to give up the victories they think they can get through the "cold war" and by pressing constantly against the over-eager, divided and trade-hungry governments which make up the strange alliance in the West.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Travail Of Free Government

When any President of the United States delivers a message to Congress or delivers a major speech, the editorial response must be immediate. We in the newspapers and the hurried men on radio are required by our trades to set forth immediate reactions. It is one of the travails of a free society.

To ponder, to investigate, to wonder—these take time, and taking time is rejected as laziness, of not meeting "dead-lines." Indeed, often the lines are really dead, because history plays havoc with small episodes, leaving not even a toeprint on the sands of time.

This is to be a critical session of Congress. As a result of its legislative progress and its effect upon the economy of the nation, we shall either restore a sound, modified capitalistic economy under a mixed Republican-conservative-Democratic management, or we shall have a depression and the Socialists will come to power in 1954 under the guise of the left-wing Democrats and the ADA. This alternative faces the United States, no matter what the happy wellwishers who love a phrase such as "Middle-of-the-Road" say.

Critical moments in history are never in the middle of anything. They are the outburst of a proletariat which wearies of paying the price of errors. The burden in the past has normally fallen on the peasants; in our society, it falls most heavily on the industrial workers who too often own nothing but their legal rights. They possess no homes, no farms to produce food, no tools. In our society, they usually possess no skills and have only their home to sell.

Thus, from 1929 to 1939, the United States faced the devilish spectre of 10,000,000 unemployed, to be solved only by war. Whatever the politics or the morality of war, it absorbed the unemployed, produced a labor scarcity, gave the unions the opportunity to make demands which reduced the efficiency of the worker but got him more pay and better conditions. It also produced more taxes, debased the dollar, loaded the country with debt, created a class-conscious urban proletariat where none existed before.

For the United States, it was a turn in history, from a society as it developed since 1609, to a society as it has been altering since 1929.

This is the problem of President Eisenhower, and his course will not be an easy one. The "State of the Union" message is a challenging document because it sets a program for arresting the disintegration of a society. It is stated in political terms and therefore will receive a political response. In moral terms, it would have been better understood by the American people, who, in their bewilderment, are looking for a Moses to take them back over the Jordan out of the confusions of Egypt. No one who seeks it can, however, miss the moral note in the Eisenhower message and what to the hurried seemed like compromises are the halts in a steady march toward a restoration of the leadership of an idea in American life—the idea of individual dignity and self-reliance.

Those who believe that this is a smooth road to drive over in one of those low-slung fancy modern cars do not see the rocks to break axles, the ruts into which it is possible to skid, the thank-you-ma'ams made by wind and weather, the erosions that unthinking man produces to his undoing. It is a road that leads to all sorts of "four-corners," unmarked and confusing. A wrong turning is so easy, and, on this road, often attractive. And one wrong turn can lead miles away from where one wants to go. And maybe, in the end, it does not pay to go back. The sun has set. It is too late.

President Eisenhower needs not only courage but philosophy, a sense not of his place in history, but of his country's role in civilization. His unhurried approach to problems, his refusal to act until he has, as he calls it, been briefed on the subject, his search for the facts and his avoidance of pressures may help him to meet the challenge of his moment in the affairs of man. But the decision is not really his; it rests in whatever is the majority of the Congress.

Security Guaranty To Russia?

As the American, British and French governments prepare for the meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers originally set for Berlin on January 25, a proposal to Russia for some kind of mutual non-aggression treaty is understood to be at least under consideration. This would be a counter-move to the Russian argument that the contemplated European defense (EDC) army, with units from a re-armed Germany, is meant for aggression, so that Russia can't afford to withdraw the Red armies from eastern Germany.

The French also are afraid that the German units in EDC would put Germany in a position to commit aggression again. So the French may call for American-British guaranties against aggression on France if any are to be offered Moscow against aggression on Russia.

Non-aggression treaties in the past have pledged each signatory to accept the existing borders of another. But what are the borders of the Soviet Union today? There would be strong opposition in the West, and especially in this country, to accepting the Russian-Polish occupancy of former German land east of the Oder-Neisse, or the Russian absorption of the Baltic states, or Communist control of Czechoslovakia and Balkan states.

Talk today about any non-aggression treaty with Russia is apt to refer to the Locarno treaty with Germany in 1925. This accepted the existing German borders on the West, and pledged Britain, Italy, Belgium and France to act together to resist any encroachment by Germany there.

That 1925 treaty was denounced by Russia as letting a rebuilt Germany expand to the east at the expense of Russia. So in the early 1930's an eastern Locarno treaty was projected, by which Germany's eastern border also would have been solidified and Russia would have joined in guaranteeing Germany's western borders. But Hitler, who came to power in 1933, rejected this eastern Locarno idea and in 1936 he made the western Locarno treaty a scrap of paper by re-arming the Rhineland.

Italian Leadership

Politics in Italy, as in France, has a comic opera slant to the average American. Governments fall and new ones rise. New leaders come to prominence over night—men whose names are totally unfamiliar on this side of the Atlantic.

Who, Americans are asking, is Amintori Fanfani, who is in the process of forming a new coalition government to replace the cabinet which dissolved when Premier Pella resigned. Premier-designate Fanfani is an experienced politician who has served in all but one Italian cabinet since 1947. He was formerly a professor of economics and has been a member of the left wing of the Christian Democratic party, the entity which holds a slim control in the divided Italian Chamber of Deputies.

The importance of Fanfani's appearance on the political scene at this time is the following he will probably be able to attract from among the membership of the other parties (excluding the Communists and probably the Monarchists). He has been an ardent champion of land reform—parcelling out great estates to the poor. Advocates of such a course brought about the downfall of the previous Pella government.

It seems to be clear that the new Italian government that is set up will be preoccupied with domestic affairs, with less emphasis on foreign policy, including membership in NATO and the Trieste problem. It will mark a turning point further to the left in Italy.

How long the new government will stay in office, or whether its successor will be still more radical or will again veer to the right, can only be disclosed as time goes on.

Russian Air Power

It is a well known fact that the Russians invented everything under the sun, but Mervin Strickler, education director for the national Civil Air Patrol, and the first man to be granted the degree of doctor of aviation education (Stanford University, 1951), says the Muscovites have not claimed credit for their prowess in aviation because to do so would be to honor czarist and white Russians.

Too many people believe, Strickler says, that the Russians were backward in the early development of powered flight. But 150 years ago the Russians became the third nation in the world to use balloons for military purposes, being preceded only by France and Denmark.

It is also a matter of record, he says, that one of the men implicated in the assassination of Alexander II in 1881 whiled away the hours in prison before his execution by making some extremely workable sketches for balloons with engines—dirigibles.

The Russian Duma in 1911 appropriated $5,000,000 for military aviation. In 1914 Igor I. Sikorsky, a white Russian, who later came to the U. S., developed the biggest land plane known up to that time—about the general dimensions of a B-17 Flying Fortress.

In warning against underestimation of Russian air power today, Strickler points out that Russia has maintained aircraft production at approximately 37,000 planes a year, close to peak World War II production. There can be no doubt that Russian air power is formidable.

Covered Bridge Topics

Believe it or not, the caption on this essay is the name of a magazine. It is published by the Society for the Preservation of Covered Bridges, with headquarters in Boston.

But most of the Saturday Evening Post article is about a fellow named Richard Sanders Allen, postmaster of the village of Round Lake, N. Y., population 750. Allen is the main contributor to the magazine. He is also the foremost "collector" of covered bridges in North America, if not the world.

Allen's checklist, recently brought up to date, includes 1,870 covered bridges in the United States and 623 in Canada. Pennsylvania leads the pack of 33 states in which covered bridges are found, with 429. Ohio is next with 379. Oregon is third, with 286.

The Post article is full of surprising facts about covered bridges. They do not go back to colonial days, but only to 1804 when, so far as Allen knows, the first one in America was built across the Schuylkill at Philadelphia. The longest such bridge, 1,282 feet, is in New Brunswick.

Why were bridges roofed and walled? Maybe partly to keep horses from shying at the water, but mostly, says Allen, to keep the decks dry to make them last longer. Some covered bridges, in fact, have outlasted steel structures built as replacements.

Bones, Buttons, And Pins

Children 1 to 4 years of age are more likely than any one else to swallow objects accidentally. This is understandable because these tots are close to the ground and love to explore their environment. Older folk are next on the list, especially those with false teeth. They specialize in swallowing bones because their dentures have no feeling. These people are unaware that the piece of chicken or fish harbors a bone until it goes down the hatch. Between these two age groups are the adults who make mistakes and occasionally swallow a toothpick, safety pin, tack or nail.

In a study of this problem in California, Doctors Bernard H. Feder and Garth G. Myers found that 95 patients sought help along this line over a period of three and a half years. One of the series was a 26 year old woman who swallowed three open safety pins. During the operation, these physicians were able to find and close the pins without making an incision into the intestines. Later, they discovered that this woman had been trying to commit suicide. A young man developed acute appendicitis and X-ray disclosed a tenpenny nail in the lower right abdomen. Later, when confronted with the evidence, he admitted that four years previously he had swallowed the nail "just before going to prison in order that he might have a weapon when incarcerated." These examples demonstrate that swallowing foreign bodies is not always accidental.

My interest in this subject was stimulated during my college days by the untimely death of a young business man in town. While under the influence of alcohol he swallowed a sharp chicken bone that lodged in his esophagus (gullet). Feeling no pain, he did nothing about it until thoroly sober 12 hours later. By then the bone had penetrated thru the gullet and into the central part of the chest cavity. In those days we had no penicillin and chest surgery was in its infancy. He died within three days.

This brings up the question of what to do when a pin, coin, marble, or toy has been gulped inadvertently. There is no harm in eating bread to help push the intestinal contents along but it also is advisable to consult a physician even tho the possibility is good that the object will complete its journey without causing trouble. X-rays usually are taken and if the foreign body has passed safely thru the gullet into the stomach, there is no need for alarm. Most physicians prefer to wait and let nature take its course. Subsequent X-rays may be required.

But if the object is large, pointed, or jagged and has not moved or passed within 48 hours, operation may be necessary. On the other hand, if it is blunt and there are no symptoms, it is safe to wait four to six hours. The intestinal tract is able to protect itself; and animal experiments have demonstrated that the bowel enlarges when pricked with a pin, to facilitate passage. The bowel also has the ability to turn pins so that they may pass thru head first.

Conditions are not always so favorable, however. An emergency is created when an object sticks in the throat or gullet. It is here that the use of the esophagoscope is essential to remove the obstruction. Pins, bones, and bits of wire account for 90 per cent of all perforations. Toothpicks and wood splinters are responsible for the remainder.

Ike's First Year In Office One Of Great Changes And Education; Has Changed His Mind About "Creeping Socialism," Taken On New Advisers

WASHINGTON—It is now exactly one year since Dwight Eisenhower entered the White House, a year that has been one of great education and has seen great changes. Here is a thumbnail sketch of the Ike of today:

IKE AND BUSINESS — A year ago Eisenhower's economic theories sounded like a National Association of Manufacturers pamphlet. Now he has swung back halfway to the ideas expressed at the F Street Club right after the war which so shocked Republican backers. "If men's lives were conscripted in wartime," Ike said at the F Street Club dinner, "Why shouldn't profits be conscripted too?" . . . Ike is more conservative than in those immediate prewar years, but less hands-off policy toward business. Nor does he believe that the doctrine of states' rights, so loudly proclaimed a year ago, constitutes a cure-all for everything.

IKE AND ECONOMY—No longer does the President believe he can balance the budget. Nor does he view government - spending with anathema, as he did a year ago. He is willing to put his foot in government-spending water as an offset to recession worries. But he is a long way from taking the big spending plunge. . . . And some of the economists around him recall that it takes a lot of spending to halt a business slide once it starts. . . . Ike has changed his mind about creeping socialism and the Tennessee Valley; has already set aside $105,000,000 to start another "creeping socialism" project on the St. Lawrence, once the seaway project passes Congress. . . . The economy bloc in the Eisenhower administration, notably Secretary George Humphrey and Budget Director Joe Dodge, still remain Ike's close friends, but he doesn't follow their advice as much as formerly. . . . Sometimes the chief executive is unhappily torn between the two wings of his official family.

MEN AROUND IKE — A man who's had little experience in civilian government is almost completely dependent on the men around him. That's why it's significant that a new flank of advisers has moved in around the President. . . . They aren't liberal by the Harry Hopkins standard, but they are far more progressive than the big-business golfing partners who used to move over from Sea Island to Augusta when Ike went to the "Georgia White House." . . . Some wiseacres call them "hucksters" rather than liberals, and it's true that the new flank is passionately concerned with upping Ike's Gallup Poll rating. . . . However, they include Kevin McCann, president of The Defiance College; Charles Moore, up-and-coming former public relations adviser to Ford Motors; Dr. Arthur Burns, liberal head of the Council of Economic Advisers; C. D. Jackson, former publisher of Fortune magazine and the man who pushed Ike into the atomic-pool speech; and Robert Cutler, Boston banker who got into the White House through Justice Felix Frankfurter. . . . This group is unanimously anti-McCarthy and unanimously opposed to the right-wing GOP. They are pulling Ike to get back to the middle-of-the-road course where he once had the support of many Democrats.

IKE AND CONGRESS—Congressional relations is a field that greatly worries the President. At first he figured he could "goodwill" members of Congress, that White House luncheons, personal conversations would keep congressmen in line. . . . Now he is a wiser man. Nothing but a strong and successful policy, he has begun to realize, can keep Congress with him. . . . And he still hasn't learned this completely. . . . When Senator Knowland kicked over the traces on funneling of defense orders to depressed areas; when Sam Rayburn reacted vigorously to criticism of Democratic spending, the President was hurt and bewildered. He still is a long way from understanding politics.

IKE AND FOREIGN POLICY—This is the field that Eisenhower knows best and where he is determined to chalk up notable achievements. Here he has been more consistent than in domestic policy, but sometimes so cautious that his own advisers get inpatient. . . . It took time to get him to make the $15,000,000 food gift to East Germany last spring, a move actually initiated by the State Department and which met with immediate success. Later, when an old-clothes drive was planned to help the East Germans, the summer White House in Denver misplaced Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's letter for three weeks and the clothes drive never did get under way. . . . The President also hesitated three months before he made his speech proposing the pooling of atomic energy, and the speech was rewritten more than 20 times. . . . On foreign affairs generally, Ike has switched from the China bloc's view that the U.S.A. must concentrate on the Far East. He is now veering more toward Europe. . . . His over-all policies remain the same as those laid down in the Truman administration but, after all, both Dulles and Eisenhower were among those appointed to carry those policies forward.

IKE THE MAN—After one year in the White House, the President works harder than before. Sensitive to criticism that he is lazy, he plays less golf and makes more decisions himself. During early months as President Ike tried to delegate almost everything, even bawled out his staff when they called him back from Burning Tree on the instruction of the National Security Council to make a major decision on Korea. . . . The President still loses his temper, still chews out his staff, still likes to delegate authority. It is these bursts of temper that send up his blood pressure and worry his doctors. . . . But Ike knows that his entire career is now in the balance and is determined that the verdict of history will be favorable. . . . In many respects he does not like the presidency, wishes he had never been persuaded to run. Few people realize the loneliness of living in the White House, the inability to relax, the impossibility of obtaining privacy. . . . Though he doesn't like his job, Dwight Eisenhower is determined to do the best he can, but he is also determined that he will not run again.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — (INS) — The excruciating hair-splitting over the Berlin meeting places of the Big Four foreign ministers conference on Germany, Austria and other reigning topics is a measure of the continuing hazard and frustration of doing business with the Russians.

And it strengthens the President's position: Let them show some positive sign of willingness to cooperate, in the name of peace, before we start throwing our hat in the air.

Once, in the days directly after the war, the four great powers in Germany met in Berlin in an atmosphere of cordiality which now seems like a Graustarkian dream.

Gen. Eisenhower and Marshal Zhukov were especial friends.

"On the part of Zhukov and his assistants there was discernible only an intense desire to be friendly and cooperative," Ike wrote later in his "Crusade in Europe" (Doubleday.) "Looking back on it, that day still seems to have held nothing but bright promise for the establishment of close relations with the Russans. That promise, eventually lost in suspicion and recrimination, was never to be fulfilled. But so far as the friendly association between Marshall Zhukov and myself was concerned, it continued to grow until the moment I left Europe in November 1945. That friendship was a personal and individual thing and unfortunately was not representative of a general attitude."

There were rounds of dinners, the giving and acceptance of decorations ("the decorations presented to Montgomery and me (by Zhukov) were among the few I have seen that have great intrinsic rather than exclusively sentimental and symbolic value," Ike wrote. "Designed in the form of a star, each contains some 80 or 90 diamonds surrounding a group of synthetic rubies, in the center of which is a small enameled representation of the Kremlin.")

By 1949, during the airlift, American reporters in Berlin were being told that if the Red army marched they were to go with their families to the Allied control compound—once the scene of accord—and there await capture, along with the small American armed force.

Now, in an atmosphere that reeks with suspicion, the Big Four again seeks a round table in Berlin. The old meeting place still exists, but the Reds will have none of it. They threatened to meet only in the Russian embassy in the Soviet sector. The Allies countered with a suggestion that every fourth meeting be held at the Russian embassy. The Reds reluctantly agreed to meet there only one half the time. Britain and France said, "What's the difference? Getting together is the important thing." The U. S. held out, grudgingly agreeing finally to the following preposterous, face-saving solution:

The first week's meetings will be held at the Allied compound. The second week's will be held at the Russian embassy. The third week's —and there probably will be a third week if we have to filibuster —will be at the Allied compound. Before a fourth week's meetings could start, there would have to be another conference on where they would be held, on one side of the Brandenburg Gate or the other.

Where will the files be kept? Will there be two complete communications centers, for the transmission of news reports? Or will there be a free load for reporters, with one side trying to outdo the other in splendid viands and lustrous potions—as is the case when the scene shifts from the official hotel of the New York Yankees to the hotel of the Brooklyn Dodgers during a World Series? More importantly, will someone have the gumption to get up at the conference and say, "Don't you think we're acting like a bunch of kids?"

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Just why did the diplomats wrangle for several days on whether the four-power conference should be held in East or West Berlin?

On the surface, it seems a trivial matter to be arguing about nowadays. But back of it is a significant story which tells a good deal about "cold war" tactics and the way in which the Allies are constantly beset by Communist maneuvers and tricks. It foretells why the whole four-power conference will be a sham and will reflect only the deliberate effort of the Communists to gain a propaganda advantage.

The Soviet purpose in insisting that at least half of the sessions of the four-power conference be held in East Berlin was to tell the entire Communist world that the Western Allies are coming to Soviet-controlled territory to beg for "peace." It is essential from the Moscow viewpoint to portray the Allies as craven characters petitioning the Soviet government for a chance to make the necessary concessions and surrenders that will give the Communists the kind of "peace" they want.

Reached Compromise

The Allied negotiators have known all along, of course, the Soviet objective in arguing about the site of the conference, and for a while they stood firm against holding the meetings in Soviet-controlled territory and then proposed a rotation among the four occupied zones, which meant that one in four meetings would be held in East Berlin. But, as is the case with such arguments, the Communists theorize that, if they bicker long enough the Allies will become exhausted and finally someone on the Allied side will say: "Well, after all, let's get on with the conference. There's no sense in arguing about a mere meeting place. Let's give them what they want or make a compromise."

The Moscow regime, to be sure, has wanted a four-power conference to be held and, rather than see the conference collapse, would have agreed to have all the meetings held in West Berlin, if the Allies had cared to make a stand on it. The compromise finally reached provides that the first week's meetings shall be held in West Berlin, the next week's in East Berlin, and the following week's in West Berlin again. The conference probably will last several weeks, if not months, and it has been left open where the fourth week's sessions will be held.

From the Communist viewpoint, it is imperative to show that the Moscow government is dictating to the Western Allies. The argument about the site offered one way to do it. If, on the other hand, an impression of superiority cannot be attained, then the effort is to achieve at least a position of equality — by rotating the meetings between East and West Berlin.

It will be recalled that, at the time the United Nations organization was first brought into being in San Francisco in the spring of 1945, diplomatic etiquette called for the American secretary of state to preside at the plenary sessions, which were more or less ceremonial anyway. But Mr. Molotov objected at the outset, and finally somebody discovered that he would agree to a formula whereby each of the four nations would select a chairman who would preside at a different session. So four co-chairmen were chosen. When it came the turn for Foreign Minister Molotov to preside, he opened the session with a remark substantially as follows:

"I am glad to preside over this session of the United Nations and to be speaking to the world in the Russian language."

National pride was strong, of course, but the evident aim was to convey to the people back home that, even when international meetings are held in the United States, the Soviet foreign minister presides.

Good For Home Consumption

The forthcoming four-power conference has been sought by Moscow solely as a propaganda maneuver. The Soviet press will use the occasion to enhance, if it can, the prestige of the Malenkov government. Unquestionably the Moscow regime lives in fear of an uprising. The recent outbursts in East Germany were hurtful to the prestige of Moscow behind the iron curtain.

Originally, the Western Allies insisted that some concrete deeds be manifested by the Soviets before there was a four-power conference. But the Western governments retreated on this. To refuse to talk with Moscow usually brings criticism—much of it inspired by Communist agents or sympathizers, who argue that the West is intolerant or stubbornly unwilling to "negotiate peace."

Plenty of private organizations and individuals in the Western world echo this same thought, so the American government and the Allied governments find it necessary to keep on talking — though they know nothing can or will come of it. That's because the Soviets are not ready to give up the victories they think they can get through the "cold war" and by pressing constantly against the over-eager, divided and trade-hungry governments which make up the strange alliance in the West.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Travail Of Free Government

When any President of the United States delivers a message to Congress or delivers a major speech, the editorial response must be immediate. We in the newspapers and the hurried men on radio are required by our trades to set forth immediate reactions. It is one of the travails of a free society.

To ponder, to investigate, to wonder—these take time, and taking time is rejected as laziness, of not meeting "dead-lines." Indeed, often the lines are really dead, because history plays havoc with small episodes, leaving not even a toeprint on the sands of time.

This is to be a critical session of Congress. As a result of its legislative progress and its effect upon the economy of the nation, we shall either restore a sound, modified capitalistic economy under a mixed Republican-conservative-Democratic management, or we shall have a depression and the Socialists will come to power in 1954 under the guise of the left-wing Democrats and the ADA. This alternative faces the United States, no matter what the happy well-wishers who love a phrase such as "Middle-of-the-Road" say.

Critical moments in history are never in the middle of anything. They are the outburst of a proletariat which wearies of paying the price of errors. The burden in the past has normally fallen on the peasants; in our society, it falls most heavily on the industrial workers who too often own nothing but their legal rights. They possess no homes, no farms to produce food, no tools. In our society, they usually possess no skills and have only their home to sell.

Thus, from 1929 to 1939, the United States faced the devilish spectre of 10,000,000 unemployed, to be solved only by war. Whatever the politics or the morality of war, it absorbed the unemployed, produced a labor scarcity, gave the unions the opportunity to make demands which reduced the efficiency of the worker but got him more pay and better conditions. It also produced more taxes, debased the dollar, loaded the country with debt, created a class-conscious urban proletariat where none existed before.

For the United States, it was a turn in history, from a society as it developed since 1609, to a society as it has been altering since 1929.

This is the problem of President Eisenhower, and his course will not be an easy one. The "State of the Union" message is a challenging document because it sets a program for arresting the disintegration of a society. It is stated in political terms and therefore will receive a political response. In moral terms, it would have been better understood by the American people, who, in their bewilderment, are looking for a Moses to take them back over the Jordan out of the confusions of Egypt. No one who seeks it can, however, miss the moral note in the Eisenhower message and what to the hurried seemed like compromises are the halts in a steady march toward a restoration of the leadership of an idea in American life—the idea of individual dignity and self-reliance.

Those who believe that this is a smooth road to drive over in one of those low-slung fancy modern cars do not see the rocks to break axles, the ruts into which it is possible to skid, the thank-you-ma'ams made by wind and weather, the erosions that unthinking man produces to his undoing. It is a road that leads to all sorts of "four-corners," unmarked and confusing. A wrong turning is so easy, and, on this road, often attractive. And one wrong turn can lead miles away from where one wants to go. And maybe, in the end, it does not pay to go back. The sun has set. It is too late.

President Eisenhower needs not only courage but philosophy, a sense not of his place in history, but of his country's role in civilization. His unhürried approach to problems, his refusal to act until he has, as he calls it, been briefed on the subject, his search for the facts and his avoidance of pressures may help him to meet the challenge of his moment in the affairs of man. But the decision is not really his; it rests in whatever is the majority of the Congress.

Hopkins Would Up Md. Senate Membership

Redistricting Bill Planned By Baltimorean

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP) — Del. Hopkins (R-Balto 3rd) said today he would try to increase the number of state senators from 29 to 40 but anticipated the usual resistance from the less populous counties.

Hopkins' effort to give the areas with more residents more votes will be made at the General Assembly next month. It will be a new twist to similar unsuccessful efforts in the past.

But it will have the same effect of giving Baltimore City and a few highly populated counties increased representation while the majority stay the same. Hopkins, only city Republican in the Legislature, admits the controlling smaller counties will be reluctant to surrender any of their weight.

Each county, regardless of population, and six districts in Baltimore City now have one senator. In order to decide how to allot the additional 11 he proposes, Hopkins figured out a population formula. The state's total population would be divided by 40. Each county and the city would get one senator for every 1½ times that many residents.

Hopkins figured this would double Baltimore's number to 12, give Baltimore County two more, and Montgomery, Prince George's and Anne Arundel one more each. Thus 19 counties still would have only one.

These 19, according to Hopkins, now have only 27 per cent of the state's total population, but fill 65 per cent of the Senate's seats. Fifteen of the counties with the least number of people represent about 52 per cent of the Senate votes.

The Hopkins proposal to amend the constitution will require approval of three-fifths of the votes in the Senate and House.

Hopkins said he was departing from past efforts to bring the membership of the House of Delegates into line with the population because he feels the present 123 members are enough.

Talk of revising the House resulted in an amendment to the Constitution freezing the number at 123. Hopkins had a bill to redistribute the representation in the last General Assembly but it didn't get past a committee.

Another Baltimore City delegate, Jerome Robinson, announced he also will introduce a bill to bring the state's law on censorship of movies into line with recent decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The law now empowers the Board of Censors to ban films considered "sacrilegious, obscene, indecent, inhuman or immoral..."

Robinson said he will move to strike out sacrilegious and immoral as reasons.

The United States has about six per cent of the world's population.

Byrd Stands By Claim Mahoney Offered "Deal"

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP)—H. C. Byrd insisted today he "merely told the truth" when he claimed that George P. Mahoney "had offered to run on my ticket as a candidate for comptroller" instead of the Democratic nomination for governor.

Byrd issued what he termed "my last statement" concerning the controversy with his opponent for the nomination over talks of a deal between them last year.

Byrd on a Sunday television program said Mahoney had offered to stay out of the race if Byrd would back him as a candidate for comptroller. Mahoney replied it was the other way around, Byrd had made such a proposal to him.

A spokesman said Mahoney had no immediate comment on the new Byrd statement.

Byrd claimed that the "charge had been made on a Mahoney supporting radio broadcast over a Baltimore station last week that I had offered to support Mr. Mahoney for comptroller. I never have.

"Mahoney Tactics" Hit

"Mahoney tactics, therefore, started this argument. I have merely told the truth."

Byrd's report of their talk last year went this way:

"Mr. Mahoney and I were both present at a Firemen's Exposition at Arcadia in Baltimore County, Wednesday, July 15, and he said he wanted to talk with me.'

"He said his chauffeur would follow with his car if I drove him to his home in Worthington Valley. To this I assented.

"At this meeting, Mr. Mahoney said that he wanted to stay in the state political picture, and to do so, he offered to run for comptroller on my ticket.

"I told him that under no circumstances would I fail to support Millard Tawes for comptroller. At later meetings with Mr. Mahoney, I expressed the opinion that he could not be considered for appointment either as chairman of the State Roads Commission or as chairman of the State Racing Commission.

"At one time, there was even talk about Mr. Mahoney for Secretary of State of Maryland and his then running for higher office. I promised nothing and we agreed on nothing."

Tawes Seeks Reelection

Mahoney, on the other hand, had claimed that one of Byrd's proposals included a promise that he would remain governor, if elected, for only two years, then seek a seat in the U. S. Senate and throw his weight behind Mahoney to succeed him as governor.

Tawes has announced he will file for reelection as comptroller. He hasn't said anything about supporting either Byrd or Mahoney for governor.

Byrd further warmed up his contest by taking a crack at past Mahoney campaigns. Mahoney lost the 1950 governor's nomination to W. Preston Lane, beat former U. S. Rep. Lansdale Sasscer in the 1952 primary for the U. S. Senate and lost the general election to J. Glenn Beall, a Republican.

She said she loves him and will stick by him. Mrs. Lear is shown with Jimmie, her 4-year-old son by a previous marriage.

Aid Pledged British Firms In Red Trade

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The British government pledged all possible aid today to British firms wanting to trade with Red China.

Lord Reading, minister of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Lords that British businessmen wanting to "discuss trade in goods" would be given all proper facilities in the government's power to get to China.

Reading's pledge, made in reply to questions from members of the House, apparently is part of a new program designed to push this country's trade with Communist nations. The government still observes the strict Allied embargoes on potential war goods to these countries but, according to official sources, these embargoes are being reviewed and revised constantly.

Byrd Stands By Claim Mahoney Offered "Deal"

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP)—H. C. Byrd insisted today he "merely told the truth" when he claimed that George P. Mahoney "had offered to run on my ticket as a candidate for comptroller" instead of the Democratic nomination for governor.

Byrd issued what he termed "my last statement" concerning the controversy with his opponent for the nomination over talks of a deal between them last year.

Byrd on a Sunday television program said Mahoney had offered to stay out of the race if Byrd would back him as a candidate for comptroller. Mahoney replied it was the other way around, Byrd had made such a proposal to him.

A spokesman said Mahoney had no immediate comment on the new Byrd statement.

Byrd claimed that the "charge had been made on a Mahoney supporting radio broadcast over a Baltimore station last week that I had offered to support Mr. Mahoney for comptroller. I never have.

"Mahoney Tactics" Hit

"Mahoney tactics, therefore, started this argument. I have merely told the truth."

Byrd's report of their talk last year went this way:

"Mr. Mahoney and I were both present at a Firemen's Exposition at Arcadia in Baltimore County, Wednesday, July 15, and he said he wanted to talk with me.'

"He said his chauffeur would follow with his car if I drove him to his home in Worthington Valley. To this I assented.

"At this meeting, Mr. Mahoney said that he wanted to stay in the state political picture, and to do so, he offered to run for comptroller on my ticket.

"I told him that under no circumstances would I fail to support Millard Tawes for comptroller. At later meetings with Mr. Mahoney, I expressed the opinion that he could not be considered for appointment either as chairman of the State Roads Commission or as chairman of the State Racing Commission.

"At one time, there was even talk about Mr. Mahoney for Secretary of State of Maryland and his then running for higher office. I promised nothing and we agreed on nothing."

Tawes Seeks Reelection

Mahoney, on the other hand, had claimed that one of Byrd's proposals included a promise that he would remain governor, if elected, for only two years, then seek a seat in the U. S. Senate and throw his weight behind Mahoney to succeed him as governor.

Tawes has announced he will file for reelection as comptroller. He hasn't said anything about supporting either Byrd or Mahoney for governor.

Byrd further warmed up his contest by taking a crack at past Mahoney campaigns. Mahoney lost the 1950 governor's nomination to W. Preston Lane, beat former U. S. Rep. Lansdale Sasscer in the 1952 primary for the U. S. Senate and lost the general election to J. Glenn Beall, a Republican.

Aid Pledged British Firms In Red Trade

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The British government pledged all possible aid today to British firms wanting to trade with Red China.

Lord Reading, minister of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Lords that British businessmen wanting to "discuss trade in goods" would be given all proper facilities in the government's power to get to China.

Reading's pledge, made in reply to questions from members of the House, apparently is part of a new program designed to push this country's trade with Communist nations. The government still observes the strict Allied embargoes on potential war goods to these countries but, according to official sources, these embargoes are being reviewed and revised constantly.

Pentagon Yields, Will Let Troops Parade In Boston

BOSTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Pentagon yielded to indignant Boston today and decreed units of the regular armed forces will participate in Boston's annual Evacuation Day Parade March 17.

Official word came to parade chief marshal Patrick. F. Sheehan from U. S. Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) in Washington that the Pentagon had surrendered.

The day, as most everyone knows, also is St. Patrick's Day and the celebration also is partly in honor of Ireland's patron saint.

Army and Navy headquarters here had informed Sheehan, and announced publicly, their services would not be represented because of past "disrespect to the troops" and that the officials feared for the morale of the servicemen.

In Washington the Pentagon told Saltonstall that there had been a mixup over budget cuts but that the armed services would parade.

The official civic celebration notes the day the British suddenly sailed their troops out of Boston harbor after daylight disclosed the despised colonists had overnight erected fortifications atop Dorchester Heights in the peninsular district of South Boston.

Sheehan said he had received no official word that the troops would be allowed to parade if liquor establishments in the district were closed.

"All I know about that," he said, "is that reporters asked me for comment about such a report from Washington."

Miss Mary Driscoll, head of the city's licensing division, said that under the law she could issue no such order.

When first approached about the report Sheehan was full of wrath, exclaiming, "the Pentagon insinuates our people are drunks."

School Aid Proposal Revived By Senators

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Thirty-four senators renewed today a move to use federal revenues from offshore oil and gas deposits to help pay the cost of the nation's schools.

A bill containing the proposal was introduced by Sen. Hill (D-Ala). Thirty-three other senators also sponsored the bill.

Hill said school systems need five billion dollars for new construction to relieve overcrowding, another five billion for repairs and replacements, and 20 billion in all for buildings.

Sponsors of the bill other than Hill include: Kefauver (D-Tenn), Neely (D-WVa) and Kilgore (D-WVa).

Condor Trapper Admits Failure

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—The naturalist engaged to trap a pair of California condors, North America's largest flying birds, today reported failure.

Lewis Wayne Walker telephoned the San Diego Zoo that he had been unable to complete his mission before a new state law put an end to it Friday midnight.

The law revoked a permit issued the zoo and Walker by the State Fish and Game Commission. It was enacted because of protests by the Audubon society and other conservationists. It prohibits the hunting or trapping for any reason of the condors, believed to number no more than 50 or 60.

Walker came out of the snow-covered high mountains north of Los Angeles to communicate with Dr. Charles R. Schroeder, zoo director.

The zoo had hoped to develop a breeding stock in captivity, as it has done with Andean condors from South America. Walker and like-minded naturalists believe the California condors are doomed to early extinction unless some such measure is taken. Their opponents argued that the trapping attempt endangered the breeding balance of the few that are left.

Students Protest School's Name

SALISBURY, Md., Jan. 19 (AP)—Wicomico County high school students protested by petition yesterday a proposal to name a new county high school after an English school.

The students here want the $3,500,000 campus-type structure which is to be completed next year to be named simply Wicomico High School or Wicomico Senior High School.

The Wicomico County Board of Education announced last week the new school would be named the New High School. This, a board spokesman said, would be after one of the famous schools at Oxford University in England.

Student leaders said 800 of the 1,000 members of the student body already have signed a petition of protest. They said a number of businessmen in the county already have signed too and that alumni members would be asked for their support.

Students plan to present the petition to the board of education.

One argument the students give is that the proposed New High School won't be very new in a couple of years.

Students also contend the old high school, which is to be turned over for junior high students, should be called Wicomico Junior High School.

GET THAT Million Dollar LOOK . . . .
FROM THE Million Dollar BEER!

That's right, Old German Beer this month will give away a natural ranch mink stole of matchless beauty, worth hundreds & hundreds of dollars. Old German, the beer that's so dry, so light, so smooth, so fine that its formula is insured for one million dollars, is giving away the one garment that provides a million dollar appearance.

NO EMPLOYEE OF THE BREWERY or its advertising agency nor any wholesaler or retailer or their employees selling Old German Beer is eligible to win the mink stole.

HERE'S ALL YOU DO:

Examine Old German bottle caps. Pry up the cork lining—it's easy with a key or nail file—and you'll find a letter there. Save your letters till you can spell out O-L-D G-E-R-M-A-N. Then send all nine letters or reasonable facsimiles thereof to Queen City Brewing Co., Cumberland, Md. In the same envelope complete this statement in 10 words or less "I prefer Old German Beer because . . ." Winning entry each month will be judged on basis of accuracy, cleverness and clarity. It is not necessary to buy the beer from which the caps come in order to win. The letter will be found in cap-sealed bottles or cans. Judges have no connection with Brewery and their decision is final.

Maryland's multi-million dollar agricultural industry will have a great interest in the action this Congress takes on the President's farm policy recommendations.

There are 36,107 farms in Maryland, containing 2,285,117 acres, which earn millions of dollars every year from the sale of livestock and products, and additional investments in labor and products annually increase the value of farm property and livestock.

Federal government policies—which in effect have a regulating control of the industry—can determine whether in future years the Maryland farmer's standard of living and income increases or declines.

Farm prices had been steadily dropping when President Eisenhower, Secretary of Agriculture Benson, and the 83rd Congress took oaths of office. Fortunately, new government policies halted the decline and farm prices increased 1.2 per cent during the month ending December 15, 1953.

The problems of the agriculture industry have not been solved, however, and while it is difficult to imagine that any complete solution will come from this session of Congress, I think it is assured that the Maryland farmer can expect government price supports to hold the line on basic commodities during the next year.

In the meantime the President, the secretary of agriculture, the Congress, and the American farmer must produce a workable farm program which will insure the farmer of his full share of the income produced by a stable prosperous country, and which will meet the requirements of the nation as a whole.

Price supports at 90 per cent of parity for 1954 are, the President said, "a legal and moral commitment that must be upheld." That is the first phase of President Eisenhower's recommendations to Congress. The second is that the program would provide for flexible parity based upon supply after 1955. Under present law there is authority to use the old or the modernized parity on basic commodities, and this authority expires January 1, 1956.

The President's plan also provides the setting aside of about one-half the commodities now owned by the government, for a variety of purposes, including national defense, the school lunch program, and other diversions, so long as they do not have any effect upon the commercial market. In other words, government owned surpluses cannot be dumped on the open market, thereby depressing current farm prices.

The fundamental problem is one which should cause us to be very thankful, and at the same time it is, to a great degree, our national shame.

While half a world starves, we have huge surpluses. While other farmers throughout the world struggle to scrape a bare existence out of their poor land, our farms are too productive. What a contradiction! Senator Everett Dirksen, discussing the President's recommendations, spoke of the surplus of eggs and after explaining the expensive steps taken by the government to store eggs said, "The hens had become too productive. The balanced ration fed them had become too effective. So there we were, with a surplus."

We have existing surpluses in such commodities as wheat, corn and cotton, which amount to one whole year's normal requirement. It is estimated that by May 1 of this year storage fees alone on surplus commodities will be costing one million dollars a day.

Our farmers are doing too good a job! There was a time when 25 bushels of corn per acre—even in the corn belt—was considered to be a high yield. Today 100 bushels, and even 150, are grown and are no longer cause for comment. Improved techniques of farming, greater use of fertilizer, etc. have brought about tremendous increases in production of basic commodities.

In working out a solution of these problems I hope to learn how Maryland farmers and farm organizations feel about the President's recommendations and the specific proposals which will come before the Senate. The American Farm Bureau Federation has already reported that its president, Allan B. Kline, is backing the program and has called it a "forward-looking program with principles which are essentially sound."

Farmers are urged to study the proposals and to advise those of us in Congress of their feelings and whether or not the program will assist them.

From Horses To Diesels

James B. Ziler, 210 Central Avenue, who retired recently as an engineer on the B&O, started his working career driving horses and a delivery wagon for a local grocer. Before he retired, he had piloted many trains, both steam and diesels, and believes more improvements in rail travel are yet to come.

James B. Ziler Ends Long Career As B&O Engineman

F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

From horses to diesel locomotives is a long jump, but in the last three score years, James B. Ziler, 210 Central Avenue, retired Baltimore and Ohio Railroad engineer, made it.

Starting his working career here as a boy, the first job Ziler held was in the old Kane Grocery store and later in the Smeltz Grocery, where he clerked and drove a delivery wagon and team of horses.

Because his father, brothers and uncles were railroad men, he was naturally attracted to railroading, and when only 14 years of age, he went to work for the B & O here in the car department. He had three brothers also working for the B & O. They worked on tool cars.

It was in February 1905 that Ziler started with the B & O. In 1908 he transferred from the car department to the tool car department where he worked until September 1912, when he transferred to the Connellsville Division and signed on as a fireman.

He worked as a fireman and part-time engineer until December 2, 1922, when he was made a full-fledged engineer. In January 1932 he was furloughed on one day, called back the next and this intermittent employment continued through to 1938. He states, "My service record looks like a checkerboard," but the depression years were pretty bad on everyone.

In 1939, Ziler was given a steady run as an engineer handling freight trains. In 1942 he was elevated to passenger service and hauled many notables and most of the line's crack trains.

He ran between Cumberland and Connellsville, Cumberland and Pittsburgh, and Cumberland and Johnstown during his career, but in recent years has been piloting a steam helper from Cumberland to Sand Patch to help the diesels up this heavy grade.

Ziler never had a wreck, and has a good record as an engineman. His service record shows 49 years all but a month and 20 days with the railroad.

He was born September 21, 1888 at Orleans Road. His father was employed as tunnel watcher at Doe Gully for many years.

On October 27, 1915, he married Miss Julia B. Connelly of West Union, W. Va. He and Mrs. Ziler have one son, Robert M. Ziler who is employed as a yard clerk at the Williams Street offices of the B&O here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ziler own their home at 210 Central Avenue. Mrs. Ziler says the only thing wrong with it is that the house is too close to the railroad and, despite her husband's retirement, "he still thinks he has to go down to the railroad every day."

When Ziler came to Cumberland with his parents in 1900, he recalls that they lived at 714 Elm Streeet. "We even brought our cow with us. Lots of people kept their own livestock in those early days."

After he was married he lived at 728 Maryland Avenue and then moved to 730 Maryland Avenue where they remained for 21 years. He bought his present home in 1948.

Ziler said, "My whole family have been railroad people. We have seen the railroad have its ups and downs and have seen it grow and expand. It is still growing and expanding, and the B&O is planning many improvements here and elsewhere."

Ziler believes diesel power is here to stay, but thinks it is no better than steam in many ways. He piloted diesels, but prefers steam. "Those old babies will realy roll if you open 'em up," he declared.

Ziler has three brothers still living, all retired railroaders. John Ziler and David Ziler retired from the B&O live in Cumberland. Peter Ziler retired from the old C&P at Mt. Savage, resides at Ocean Mines.

Ziler has made no plans for retirement except, "I like Cumberland and am going to stay around a long time just to see what happens."

The Board of License Commissioners for Allegany County set February 2 as the date for a hearing in a complaint against Joseph Spinetta, operator of Lee's Tavern at 60 North Mechanic Street.

Another hearing the same day will be for Eleanor Jackson, operator of the Cotton Club in Frostburg, who was fined $500 in Circuit Court last week on a charge of selling beer on Sunday. The complaint in this case was brought by Edward R. Willison, inspector for the liquor board.

The Jackson woman was previously convicted in 1952 on a similar charge.

From Horses To Diesels

James B. Ziler, 210 Central Avenue, who retired recently as an engineer on the B&O, started his working career driving horses and a delivery wagon for a local grocer. Before he retired, he had piloted many trains, both steam and diesels, and believes more improvements in rail travel are yet to come.

James B. Ziler Ends Long Career As B&O Engineman

F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

From horses to diesel locomotives is a long jump, but in the last three score years, James B. Ziler, 210 Central Avenue, retired Baltimore and Ohio Railroad engineer, made it.

Starting his working career here as a boy, the first job Ziler held was in the old Kane Grocery store and later in the Smeltz Grocery, where he clerked and drove a delivery wagon and team of horses.

Because his father, brothers and uncles were railroad men, he was naturally attracted to railroading, and when only 14 years of age, he went to work for the B & O here in the car department. He had three brothers also working for the B & O. They worked on tool cars.

It was in February 1905 that Ziler started with the B & O. In 1908 he transferred from the car department to the tool car department where he worked until September 1912, when he transferred to the Connellsville Division and signed on as a fireman.

He worked as a fireman and part-time engineer until December 22, 1922, when he was made a full-fledged engineer. In January 1932 he was furloughed on one day, called back the next and this intermittent employment continued through to 1938. He states, "My service record looks like a checkerboard," but the depression years were pretty bad on everyone.

In 1939, Ziler was given a steady run as an engineer handling freight trains. In 1942 he was elevated to passenger service and hauled many notables and most of the line's crack trains.

He ran between Cumberland and Connellsville, Cumberland and Pittsburgh, and Cumberland and Johnstown during his career, but in recent years has been piloting a steam helper from Cumberland to Sand Patch to help the diesels up this heavy grade.

Ziler never had a wreck, and has a good record as an engineman. His service record shows 49 years all but a month and 20 days with the railroad.

He was born September 21, 1888 at Orleans Road. His father was employed as tunnel watcher at Doe Gully for many years.

On October 27, 1915, he married Miss Julia B. Connelly of West Union, W. Va. He and Mrs. Ziler have one son, Robert M. Ziler who is employed as a yard clerk at the Williams Street offices of the B&O here.

Mineral County Jury Returns 12 Indictments

Wageley Is Charged In Shooting Case

A Mineral County grand jury yesterday returned 12 true bills for the January term of Circuit Court in Keyser after Judge Ernest A. See had charged the jury in a routine opening session.

Edmund Wageley was indicted for felonious assault in the shooting of Lawrence Cline, his brother-in-law, last November in Keyser during a family altercation at their home on West Piedmont Street. A second count of attempted assault with deadly weapon was returned against Wageley for allegedly trying to shoot Cline's brother, Harold Cline during the fracas. Lawrence Cline was wounded in the abdomen and spent several weeks in the hospital before recovering.

James Alexander Grady was charged with breaking and entering several places of business in Piedmont, being indicted on five counts of burglary and breaking and entering. He was charged with entering the storehouse operated by Charles R. Evans, taking $136 in goods; robbing a Piedmont restaurant operated by Dorothy Thompson Rhodes and the theft of 40 cents; entering a storeroom belonging to Fred Tichnell's feed store and stealing goods valued at $13; breaking and entering the house of Charles R. Evans and taking goods valued at $71.75, and entering the Tri-Towns Fire Company club rooms, stealing 40 cents.

Ralph Rittenour was indicted on burglary charges and breaking and entering the home of J. L. Stephenson in Elk Garden and stealing goods worth $26, while a second count of forgery of a $10 check also was returned against Rittenour.

Lawrence Paul Taylor was indicted in the burglary of the home of Dr. Thomas Bess, Piedmont, where he is reported to have taken two sets of ear rings valued at $8; two miniature pictures worth $10; one blood pressure manometer, value $30; a medical bag with its contents, value $200; and a suit and overcoat, value $100. Total cost of articles taken from the Bess home was $348.

Troxell Elwood Clark and Oscar Howard Jackson were indicted on two counts of entering an outbuilding adjoining the home of Dorcas McLaughlin, Elk Garden, and taking numerous items valuing $47.95.

W. O. Wells, New Creek District, is foreman of the grandjury.

Municipal Parking

Cite Objections

Next, the committee said, low rates on a city lot would be financed by the taxpayers as a whole, including those who do not use the facilities, and those such as merchants in other sections of the city who are not benefitted by improvement of downtown facilities. The committee views this as unfair discrimination in favor of one group.

The committee also pointed out that a municipal lot would have an adverse effect on individual operators of parking lots, would discourage expansion of private facilities, and would eliminate land from taxes, thus raising other taxes.

The committee declared the city can ill afford to use its borrowing power for any projects not of an essential nature, in view of the large-scale expenditures it faces.

The group said there are essentially four types of persons parking private cars in the business area: The "All-Day Parker," who is usually employed in the heart of the downtown area and parks from eight to 10 hours a day; the "Errand Parker," who likes to park within a half block of where he is going, complete his errand and return in a few minutes; the "Cliental Parker," who stays downtown about two hours, on shopping banking and other business trips, and the "Out-Of-Town Parker," who usually spends a considerable portion of the day shopping.

Not Constant Problem

In the area under study, the committee pointed out, there is metered street space for only 155 automobiles. All metered space in the city is covered by approximately 450 five-cent meters and 50 one-cent meters. In the same area privately-owned lots, open to the public for all three types of parking, have a capacity of 604 cars at one time.

This capacity is not indicative of the daily capacity, for each lot is capable in normal use of handling a turnover of from three to four times this number of autos. Committee members who interviewed operators of lots said it was apparent that lots are not utilized to their full capacity except on rare occasions.

Downtown parking is not a problem, the committee stated, except at certain periods: Mondays, Saturdays and sometimes Fridays, are the busiest days, and the peak hours occur between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Monday nights from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. are also periods of heavy use. Seasonally, the period between Thanksgiving and Christmas is the heaviest.

Education Needed

Parking lot operators reported that there are few times when they cannot handle a large number of additional cars. The committee feels the parking problem is perhaps more a matter of education of the public than of providing additional facilities."

The parker should realize that with only 155 spaces available in the immediate area of downtown, he cannot hope to park on the streets except by good luck.

"The primary use of streets in any city such as this," said the committee, "must be to move traffic, not to provide parking space. It must be recognized that trucks and other vehicles making deliveries or pickups should have the opportunity to stop in the immediate vicinity of business places, and the streets in the downtown area should be reserved for this at any point at which alleys are not available.

"It is economically impractical," the group stated," to attempt to provide parking space to meet any demand, for the spaces used only at peak periods will not return enough revenue to justify their existence. Adequate use of existing lots will justify owners in expanding facilities now available, and will result in private operation and financing of any required facilities.

"Another point made by almost all parking lot operators is that they do not believe merchants using the Park 'N' Shop plan have sufficiently promoted this idea," the committee pointed out. "With more widespread acquaintance with the plan, more shoppers will ake advantage of the opportunity to use existing lots. This system is of benefit to merchants, lot operators and the parker at the same time, and is deserving of more extensive use," the group said.

Keep Long Term

000 recreation bond issue, and $400,000 in Flood Protection Bonds of 1949, which are to be sold within the next two years.

It said it saw no way to avoid another $900,000 which will eventually be required for the city's contribution to the flood control work, largely for bridges. Legislative authority for the issue will have to be secured.

Issues Authorized

A list of bond issues authorized, the committee said, includes $150,000 for rights of way for the proposed Industrial Highway. It pointed out the figure was inadequate, and that city expense for the highway may be about $500,000.

Also authorized are $350,000 of certificates of indebtedness for off-street parking.The act requires the city to service the debt by taxation and the certificates would be the same as bonds in computing debt. The city also has authority to issue bonds to acquire property for a municipal parking lot.

The most serious financial problem facing the city, the report said, is that of sewage disposal. The Board of Health has ordered the city to build the plant, and the Legislature has authorized a bond issue of $1,500,000 for the purpose. The plant is estimated to cost nearly $2,000,000. The city has taken steps to defer the order indefinitely.

The committee said it believes the city will eventually be faced with the necessity of installing a sewage plant.

The plant would be financed by revenue bonds, pledging income from charges to property owners. This would avoid serious impairment of the city's credit, but the added debt would eventually have a bad effect on the credit rating.

Face New Flood Bonds

Other city requirements are a $200,000 revolving fund for street paving, and $100,000 for sewage projects.

State Roads Commission plans on altering the location of Route 40 through Cumberland are not yet clear, the committee said, adding it is probable some sharing will be expected.

Bond retirement during the next three years will cut the debt to $1,539,000, but new bonds issued during that time will boost general debt to $2,439,000, close to the practical debt limit.

Immediately thereafter, the remaining flood control bonds must be issued, running the city's debt up to $3,339,000, at which point credit will almost surely be affected.

Issues Are Listed

Included in the report were four schedules involving city finance:

Present debt — general, $2,105,254.34; water, $2,107,641.39.

Funds immediately required by the city — Urban Development, $350,000; recreation bonds, $150,000; flood protection, $400,000; additional flood bonds, $900,000; total $1,800,000.

Issues authorized but probably not to be used in the near future—Industrial Highway, $150,000; off-street parking certificates, $350,000; Sewage Disposal Bonds, $1,500,000, total $2,000,000. (There is no limit to a 1951 act for a parking lot or garage.)

Problems of capital which may shortly face the city-revolving fund for street work, $200,000; revolving sewer fund, $100,000; city's share of state traffic program, or independent city plan of traffic relief (cost unknown.)

Exchange Club Backs Alternate Route Plan

The Exchange Club last night gave its unanimous approval to an alternate route which has been proposed in place of the State Roads Commission's overhead bridge plan.

James Alfred Avirett, chairman of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission, addressed the club at a dinner meeting at Ali Ghan Country Club, outlining the SRC plan and the alternate plan backed by his commission.

stroys life must also pay the penalty.

One of the highlights of the morning session yesterday was the reading of a 21-page statement signed by Lockard about 2:15 a.m. Sunday, December 13, in the office of State's Attorney Fletcher. Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis, who was a witness to the signing o the statement, was on the stand about 30 minutes as he slowly and deliberately read through the account.

In it Lockard traces his steps on the afternoon of December 11 and up until his arrest that night at a Front Street tavern. After having cashed his Western Maryland Railway check for about $102. Lockard drank several beers with Eline, whom he called "Shorty" and with Herman Henry Sathoff, 631 Maryland Avenue, a fellow worker, in a South Mechanic Street bar.

The statement explained that Lockard and Eline left the place together and stopped in at the Cumberland Loan Company, 42 North Mechanic Street, where Lockard reclaimed a .22-caliber rifle for $3.60. He had received $3 for it when he pawned it October 17.

The two Western Maryland trackmen continued up North Mechanic Street to Market Street, passed by the Queen City Brewing Company bottling plant and crossed the railroad tracks to near the paymaster's office, where Lockard had parked his car.

Eline got into the front seat and Lockard stepped into the back seat, Lewis read from the statement. sound, the statement added.

The defendant then got a cartridge from his jacket pocket, placed it in the rifle and fired at Eline from about one foot away from the back of his head. The mortally wounded man slumped over and made no

The statement continued to relate how Lockard took $80 and a cigaret lighter out of Eline's coverall pocket, left the body in the alley off Bedford Street and tossed the rifle into the Potomac River.

Wageley Is Charged In Shooting Case

..A Mineral County grand jury yesterday returned 12 true bills for the January term of Circuit Court in Keyser after Judge Ernest A. See had charged the jury in a routine opening session.

Edmund Wageley was indicted for felonious assault in the shooting of Lawrence Cline, his brother-in-law, last November in Keyser during a family altercation at their home on West Piedmont Street. A second count of attempted assault with deadly weapon was returned against Wageley for allegedly trying to shoot Cline's brother, Harold Cline during the fracas. Lawrence Cline was wounded in the abdomen and spent several weeks in the hospital before recovering.

James Alexander Grady was charged with breaking and entering several places of business in Piedmont, being indicted on five counts of burglary and breaking and entering. He was charged with entering the storehouse operated by Charles R. Evans, taking $136 in goods; robbing a Piedmont restaurant operated by Dorothy Thompson Rhodes and the theft of 40 cents; entering a storeroom belonging to Fred Tichnell's feed store and stealing goods valued at $13; breaking and entering the house of Charles R. Evans and taking goods valued at $71.75, and entering the Tri-Towns Fire Company club rooms, stealing 40 cents.

Ralph Rittenour was indicted on burglary charges and breaking and entering the home of J. L. Stephenson in Elk Garden and stealing goods worth $26, while a second count of forgery of a $10 check also was returned against Rittenour.

Lawrence Paul Taylor was indicted in the burglary of the home of Dr. Thomas Bess, Piedmont, where he is reported to have taken two sets of ear rings valued at $8; two miniature pictures worth $10; one blood pressure manometer, value $30; a medical bag with its contents, value $200; and a suit and overcoat, value $100. Total cost of articles taken from the Bess home was $348.

Troxell Elwood Clark and Oscar Howard Jackson were indicted on two counts of entering an outbuilding adjoining the home of Dorcas McLaughlin, Elk Garden, and taking numerous items valuing $47.95.

Municipal Parking

Cite Objections

Next, the committee said, low rates on a city lot would be financed by the taxpayers as a whole, including those who do not use the facilities, and those such as merchants in other sections of the city who are not benefitted by improvement of downtown facilities. The committee views this as unfair discrimination in favor of one group.

The committee also pointed out that a municipal lot would have an adverse effect on individual operators of parking lots, would discourage expansion of private facilities, and would eliminate land from taxes, thus raising other taxes.

The committee declared the city can ill afford to use its borrowing power for any projects not of an essential nature, in view of the large-scale expenditures it faces.

The group said there are essentially four types of persons parking private cars in the business area: The "All-Day Parker," who is usually employed in the heart of the downtown area and parks from eight to 10 hours a day; the "Errand Parker," who likes to park within a half block of where he is going, complete his errand and return in a few minutes; the "Cliental Parker," who stays downtown about two hours, on shopping banking and other business trips, and the "Out-Of-Town Parker," who usually spends a considerable portion of the day shopping.

Not Constant Problem

In the area under study, the committee pointed out, there is metered street space for only 155 automobiles. All metered space in the city is covered by approximately 450 five-cent meters and 50 one-cent meters. In the same area privately-owned lots, open to the public for all three types of parking, have a capacity of 604 cars at one time.

This capacity is not indicative of the daily capacity, for each lot is capable in normal use of handling a turnover of from three to four times this number of autos. Committee members who interviewed operators of lots said it was apparent that lots are not utilized to their full capacity except on rare occasions.

Downtown parking is not a problem, the committee stated, except at certain periods: Mondays, Saturdays and sometimes Fridays, are the busiest days, and the peak hours occur between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Monday nights from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. are also periods of heavy use. Seasonally, the period be-'ween Thanksgiving and Christmas is the heaviest.

Education Needed

Parking lot operators reported that there are few times when they cannot handle a large number of additional cars. The committee feels the parking problem is perhaps more a matter of education of the public than of providing additional facilities."

The parker should realize that with only 155 spaces available in the immediate area of downtown, he cannot hope to park on the streets except by good luck.

"The primary use of streets in any city such as this," said the committee, "must be to move traffic, not to provide parking space. It must be recognized that trucks and other vehicles making deliveries or pickups should have the opportunity to stop in the immediate vicinity of business places, and the streets in the downtown area should be reserved for this at any point at which alleys are not available.

"It is economically impractical," the group stated," to attempt to provide parking space to meet any demand, for the spaces used only at peak periods will not return enough revenue to justify their existence. Adequate use of existing lots will justify owners in expanding facilities now available, and will result in private operation and financing of any required facilities.

"Another point made by almost all parking lot operators is that they do not believe merchants using the Park 'N' Shop plan have sufficiently promoted this idea," the committee pointed out. "With more widespread acquaintance with the plan, more shoppers will ake advantage of the opportunity to use existing lots. This system is of benefit to merchants, lot operators and the parker at the same time, and is deserving of more extensive use," the group said.

Keep Long Term

000 recreation bond issue, and $400,000 in Flood Protection Bonds of 1949, which are to be sold within the next two years.

It said it saw no way to avoid another $900,000 which will eventually be required for the city's contribution to the flood control work, largely for bridges. Legislative authority for the issue will have to be secured.

Issues Authorized

A list of bond issues authorized, the committee said, includes $150,000 for rights of way for the proposed Industrial Highway. It pointed out the figure was inadequate, and that city expense for the highway may be about $500,000.

Also authorized are $350,000 of certificates of indebtedness for off-street parking.The act requires the city to service the debt by taxation and the certificates would be the same as bonds in computing debt. The city also has authority to issue bonds to acquire property for a municipal parking lot.

The most serious financial problem facing the city, the report said, is that of sewage disposal. The Board of Health has ordered the city to build the plant, and the Legislature has authorized a bond issue of $1,500,000 for the purpose. The plant is estimated to cost nearly $2,000,000. The city has taken steps to defer the order indefinitely.

The committee said it believes the city will eventually be faced with the necessity of installing a sewage plant.

The plant would be financed by revenue bonds, pledging income from charges to property owners. This would avoid serious impairment of the city's credit, but the added debt would eventually have a bad effect on the credit rating.

Face New Flood Bonds

Other city requirements are a $200,000 revolving fund for street paving, and $100,000 for sewage projects.

State Roads Commission plans on altering the location of Route 40 through Cumberland are not yet clear, the committee said, adding it is probable some sharing will be expected.

Bond retirement during the next three years will cut the debt to $1,539,000, but new bonds issued during that time will boost general debt to $2,439,000, close to the practical debt limit.

Immediately thereafter, the remaining flood control bonds must be issued, running the city's debt up to $3,339,000, at which point credit will almost surely be affected.

Issues Are Listed

Included in the report were four schedules involving city finance:

Present debt — general, $2,105,254.34; water, $2,107,641.39.

Funds immediately required by the city — Urban Development, $350,000; recreation bonds, $150,000; flood protection, $400,000; additional flood bonds, $900,000; total $1,800,000.

Issues authorized but probably not to be used in the near future—Industrial Highway, $150,000; off-street parking certificates, $350,000; Sewage Disposal Bonds, $1,500,000, total $2,000,000. (There is no limit to a 1951 act for a parking lot or garage.)

Problems of capital which may shortly face the city-revolving fund for street work, $200,000; revolving sewer fund, $100,000; city's share of state traffic program, or independent city plan of traffic relief (cost unknown.)

stroys life must also pay the penalty.

One of the highlights of the morning session yesterday was the reading of a 21-page statement signed by Lockard about 2:15 a.m. Sunday, December 13, in the office of State's Attorney Fletcher. Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis, who was a witness to the signing o the statement, was on the stand about 30 minutes as he slowly and deliberately read through the account.

In it Lockard traces his steps on the afternoon of December 11 and up until his arrest that night at a Front Street tavern. After having cashed his Western Maryland Railway check for about $102. Lockard drank several beers with Eline, whom he called "Shorty" and with Herman Henry Sathoff, 631 Maryland Avenue, a fellow worker, in a South Mechanic Street bar.

The statement explained that Lockard and Eline left the place together and stopped in at the Cumberland Loan Company, 42 North Mechanic Street, where Lockard reclaimed a .22-caliber rifle for $3.60. He had received $3 for it when he pawned it October 17.

The two Western Maryland trackmen continued up North Mechanic Street to Market Street, passed by the Queen City Brewing Company bottling plant and crossed the railroad tracks to near the paymaster's office, where Lockard had parked his car.

Eline got into the front seat and Lockard stepped into the back seat, Lewis read from the statement. sound, the statement added.

The defendant then got a cartridge from his jacket pocket, placed it in the rifle and fired at Eline from about one foot away from the back of his head. The mortally wounded man slumped over and made no

Ball Looks 'Em Over Trojans Make Change

To Fight Doe Season "Babe" Is On Her Own

By C. V. BURNS

HERMAN BALL, the one-time Allegany High grid mentor, now scouting for the Washington Redskins, believes there will be slim pickings for the pro football teams at their draft meeting in Philadelphia late this month.

Ball says the tackles and the guards look smaller than in previous years, and he suspects it might be a by-product of the limited substitution rule in college football.

Herman found most tackles weighing between 215 and 225 pounds. They used to go 235 to 250 and get bigger during their pro careers. Guards, he observed, were proportionately smaller.

"You can't expect a 210-pounder to move a 240- pounder in a test of brute strength," Ball explains. "With backs its different. A defensive back can get an angle on a man or use deception to take him out of play, but in the line, charging straight ahead, a small man is under a terrific handicap."

The former Redskins' coach believes the one-platoon system may be partly to blame for the simple reason that big men tire sooner than lighter players. They can wreck the opposition for two periods, but run out of gas in the second half. Under the two-platoon system the monsters have a chance to rest. Smaller men apparently last longer, although this premise could be wrong. At any rate, it looks bad at the draft meeting for pro clubs in need of linemen if we are to take Ball's word for it.

FOR the past three years uncashed pari-mutuel tickets in Maryland amounted to $211,822.50.

Unredeemed tickets are dribbling into the track offices at the rate of between three and four dozen each week but the bulk of the dough eventually will revert to the State.

Betting laws, amended by the 1951 State Legislature, call for all money representing uncashed winning tickets bought after June 1951 to be turned over to the State after being held by the tracks for a three-year period. The tracks pocket all uncollected monies on wagers made prior to that date.

Over the three-year period mentioned Pimlico led with $49,334 worth of unredeemed tickets followed by Bowie $43,224 and Laurel $40,743.

Uncashed mutuel tickets at Cumberland for 1951 and 1952 hit $3,624, Hagerstown $4,098 and Bel Air $4,574, according to the report. Figures for 1953 from these tracks had not been received by the Racing Commission.

WHEN Abe Saperstein of the Globetrotters named an all-time pro-basketball team the other day that included Homer Stonebraker, Nat Holman and Bobby McDermott it brought back memories of the days when The Fort Wayne K. of C. and New York Original Celtics came into this section for the first time in the early 1920s to play the Keyser Collegians in the old K. of P. Armory at Keyser.

Stonebraker was the giant center with Fort Wayne and he was one of the smoothest big men we have ever seen on the court. His teammate, "Tilly" Voss, another giant, didn't come east with the team but the Collegians faced both of them on their road trips through Indiana. Holman played at Keyser when the Celtics had "Horse" Haggerty, Chris Leonard, "Dutch" Dehnert and Johnny Beckman.

Dyke Shaffer always got a kick out of seeing Voss jump against George Parrish, of the Collegians.

"It was a belly-bumping contest when they jumped and they took turns knocking each other down," Dyke recalled.

Stonebraker played here with the Fort Wayne K. of C. the year Griffin "Mac" McGinn brought the Keyser Collegians here and played them under the name of Cumberland Colts.

McDermott never played here although he was scheduled to appear for a game at SS. Peter and Paul gym with Nat Hickey, Dave Banks, Paul Birch, etc. Bobby was reported to be suffering from a nose injury and did not make the trip.

A MAJOR change in Johnstown High School's football policy took place the other day when the school board approved the scheduling of two afternoon games at Cochran Field.

Since 1949 all home games of the Trojans, who by the way used to appear on the Allegany High grid schedules in the 1920s, have been played at The Point Stadium at night.

The Saturday afternoon games will be played on school property which was developed and improved at a heavy cost. There is said to be more scholastic atmosphere at Cochran than The Point. The city had been collecting 10 per cent of the gate receipts from the school for varsity games at The Point. The school will escape the rental charge at Cochran.

WHEN Frank Miller, of Towson, recently proposed an all-out call for a one-day doe season in Garrett county it was met with a retort from Jerry Lamoreaux, of Baltimore, who says he will "fight it to my dying day."

Lamoreaux thinks Maryland's deer season in December is late and catches some bucks at a time when they've shed racks, hence many hunters believe there is a preponderance of female deer. Another point, according to this sportsman, is that bucks are cagey during the gunning season and don't "run" with does.

"After the rutting period males go off alone," Lamoreaux says," and are seldom seen. An earlier hunting season would show more bucks. If we want bucks we're going to have to keep the does. Best way of killing off a herd is to slay the females. Overbrowsing occurs only when deer "yard" and we never have these conditions in Maryland. Deer won't starve — they'll spread out over the available range. We don't need a doe season here."

MRS. GEORGE A. "Babe" Saportas, Maryland's top woman horse trainer, dissolved training partnership with William G. Myers on January 1, and they'll maintain separate stables during the 1954 season.

Now it's up to the owners of the horses to decide just how the stable will be split.

LONACONING, Jan. 19 — Beall High School upped its record to .500 in the Western Maryland Interscholastic Basketball League tonight by trouncing the passers of Valley High School on their home floor by the score of 76-52.

The win gave Beall a league record of 2-2 while Valley suffered its second defeat against a single victory.

Jimmy Sigler led the offensive for Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Mountainers by scoring 22 points on nine field goals and 4 out of 5 at the free throw line. Joe Carter and Mike Finn ably supported the leader with 14 points each.

Richard "Dick" Waddell, Valley's high scoring center, was limited to three baskets but he connected for 10 out of 15 shots at the foul line, and led the losers with a total of 16 points.

Valley lost the services of two regulars through injuries in the final period. Waddell suffered an ankle injury and "Cookie" Robertson was forced out of action with an injured back. Both are expected to be inactive Friday night when the Black Knights tackle Bruce High on the local floor.

Tod Cuthbertson, Valley guard, was the only player ejected on personal fouls.

Valley High's Jayvees defeated Beall in a double overtime battle that preceded the main contest. The score was 39-36. Lineups:

Ball Looks 'Em Over Trojans Make Change

To Fight Doe Season "Babe" Is On Her Own

By C. V. BURNS

HERMAN BALL, the one-time Allegany High grid mentor, now scouting for the Washington Redskins, believes there will be slim pickings for the pro football teams at their draft meeting in Philadelphia late this month.

Ball says the tackles and the guards look smaller than in previous years, and he suspects it might be a by-product of the limited substitution rule in college football.

Herman found most tackles weighing between 215 and 225 pounds. They used to go 235 to 250 and get bigger during their pro careers. Guards, he observed, were proportionately smaller.

"You can't expect a 210-pounder to move a 240- pounder in a test of brute strength," Ball explains. "With backs its different. A defensive back can get an angle on a man or use deception to take him out of play, but in the line, charging straight ahead, a small man is under a terrific handicap."

The former Redskins' coach believes the one-platoon system may be partly to blame for the simple reason that big men tire sooner than lighter players. They can wreck the opposition for two periods, but run out of gas in the second half. Under the two-platoon system the monsters have a chance to rest. Smaller men apparently last longer, although this premise could be wrong. At any rate, it looks bad at the draft meeting for pro clubs in need of linemen if we are to take Ball's word for it.

FOR the past three years uncashed pari-mutuel tickets in Maryland amounted to $211,822.50.

Unredeemed tickets are dribbling into the track offices at the rate of between three and four dozen each week but the bulk of the dough eventually will revert to the State.

Betting laws, amended by the 1951 State Legislature, call for all money representing uncashed winning tickets bought after June 1951 to be turned over to the State after being held by the tracks for a three-year period. The tracks pocket all uncollected monies on wagers made prior to that date.

Over the three-year period mentioned Pimlico led with $49,334 worth of unredeemed tickets followed by Bowie $43,224 and Laurel $40,743.

Uncashed mutuel tickets at Cumberland for 1951 and 1952 hit $3,624, Hagerstown $4,098 and Bel Air $4,574, according to the report. Figures for 1953 from these tracks had not been received by the Racing Commission.

WHEN Abe Saperstein of the Globetrotters named an all-time pro-basketball team the other day that included Homer Stonebraker, Nat Holman and Bobby McDermott it brought back memories of the days when The Fort Wayne K. of C. and New York Original Celtics came into this section for the first time in the early 1920s to play the Keyser Collegians in the old K. of P. Armory at Keyser.

Stonebraker was the giant center with Fort Wayne and he was one of the smoothest big men we have ever seen on the court. His teammate, "Tilly" Voss, another giant, didn't come east with the team but the Collegians faced both of them on their road trips through Indiana. Holman played at Keyser when the Celtics had "Horse" Haggerty, Chris Leonard, "Dutch" Dehnert and Johnny Beckman.

Dyke Shaffer always got a kick out of seeing Voss jump against George Parrish, of the Collegians.

"It was a belly-bumping contest when they jumped and they took turns knocking each other down." Dyke recalled.

Stonebraker played here with the Fort Wayne K. of C. the year Griffin "Mac" McGinn brought the Keyser Collegians here and played them under the name of Cumberland Colts.

McDermott never played here although he was scheduled to appear for a game at SS. Peter and Paul gym with Nat Hickey, Dave Banks, Paul Birch, etc. Bobby was reported to be suffering from a nose injury and did not make the trip.

A MAJOR change in Johnstown High School's football policy took place the other day when the school board approved the scheduling of two afternoon games at Cochran Field.

Since 1949 all home games of the Trojans, who by the way used to appear on the Allegany High grid schedules in the 1920s, have been played at The Point Stadium at night.

The Saturday afternoon games will be played on school property which was developed and improved at a heavy cost. There is said to be more scholastic atmosphere at Cochran than The Point. The city had been collecting 10 per cent of the gate receipts from the school for varsity games at The Point. The school will escape the rental charge at Cochran.

WHEN Frank Miller, of Towson, recently proposed an all-out call for a one-day doe season in Garrett county it was met with a retort from Jerry Lamoreaux, of Baltimore, who says he will "fight it to my dying day."

Lamoreaux thinks Maryland's deer season in December is late and catches some bucks at a time when they've shed racks, hence many hunters believe there is a preponderance of female deer. Another point, according to this sportsman, is that bucks are cagey during the gunning season and don't "run" with does.

"After the rutting period males go off alone," Lamoreaux says," and are seldom seen. An earlier hunting season would show more bucks. If we want bucks we're going to have to keep the does. Best way of killing off a herd is to slay the females. Overbrowsing occurs only when deer "yard" and we never have these conditions in Maryland. Deer won't starve — they'll spread out over the available range. We don't need a doe season here."

MRS. GEORGE A. "Babe" Saportas, Maryland's top woman horse trainer, dissolved training partnership with William G. Myers on January 1, and they'll maintain separate stables during the 1954 season.

Now it's up to the owners of the horses to decide just how the stable will be split.

Cumberland Grid Player Of The Year Will Be Named Tonight

Nineteen Are Eligible For Annual Award

K. Of C. Event Set For The Maryland Theater At 9 P. M.

Cumberland's scholastic football Player of the Year 1953 will be announced and the gridder chosen will be presented a gold wrist watch at exercises to be conducted tonight at 9 o'clock at the Maryland Theater.

The winner will be chosen from a list of nineteen Cumberland hign school nominees who were named either linemen-of-the-week or back-of-the-week throughout the 1953 campaign. These players were picked by a selection committee representing Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, donor of the annual awards since the 1948 season. The players were chosen for their performances in games played at the local stadium only.

Eighteen players who finish as runners-up will receive suitably engraved miniature gold footballs from the Knights of Columbus.

Nominees For Award

Here are the eligibles for tonight's Player of the Year Award:

Allegany:

Bernard Beerman, Fritz Hadra, Eddie Joyce, Robert Kirtley, George Reynolds and Robert Reiber.

Fort Hill:

Bob Andrews, Dick Bittner, Wayne Couter, Earl Grove, Bill Murphy, Russell Poling and Stanley Teets.

LaSalle:

Bobby Christ, Phil Geatz, Richard Harris, Harold Hudson, Ronald Lennox and Dennis Shuck.

Since the award was instituted, Fort Hill gridders have won it four times in five years. The first winner in 1948 was Earle Bruce, Allegany High back. Lynn Beightol, of Fort Hill, now quarterback at the University of Maryland, won gold wrist watches in 1949 and 1950, Bill Lee, Fort Hill, lineman was the 1951 winner and John McVicker, Sentinels' back, copped the prize in 1952.

72 Named In Six Years

Over six seasons a total of 72 scholastic football players from Allegany, Fort Hill, LaSalle and Ridgeley have been nominated for the award. The list includes 27 from Fort Hill, 24 from Allegany, 18 from LaSalle and three from Ridgeley.

Only players of the week were eligible for the award prior to 1953. Last year the lineman-of-the-week and back-of-the-week idea was inaugurated, thus increasing the number of nominees for the annual prize.

Robert Kirtley, Allegany backfield star, was chosen three times throughout the 1953 season, equalling the performances of Lynn Beightol in 1950 and Richard (Dickie) Beard, also of Fort Hill, in 1951.

Nicholson Is Emcee

The master of ceremonies for tonight's program will be Somerville Nicholson, supervisor of assessments for Allegany County. Nicholson, an All-State football center at Western Maryland College, formerly played with and coached basketball teams at the Central YMCA and was cage mentor at Allegany County High in the days when the school was located on Greene Street. He also played football with the old Cumberland Bulldogs.

Notre Dame Ranked 6th In AP Poll

Kentucky Holds Lead, Duquesne Still 2nd

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP) — Although once-beaten Indiana has been making fresh threats, Kentucky's grip on the top place in The Associated Press basketball rankings isn't likely to be loosened for a while.

By a solid vote of the nation's sports writers and broadcasters, the unbeaten Kentucky Wildcats were returned to the top spot this week with Duquesne still second and Indiana third.

After the returns were in, Indiana, the 1953 NCAA champion, walloped Ohio State, 94-72, Monday night for its 12th victory in 13 starts this season. But that was the last chance the Hoosiers will have to menace Kentucky's lead until Feb. 1. Like Indiana, undefeated Duquesne had to take time out for examinations and has no games scheduled this week.

Kentucky To Play Vols

Kentucky, meanwhile, is listed to play Tennessee at Knoxville Saturday, but off the records that shouldn't be too tough for the Wildcats.

The other members of the "big five" are due for more action this week. Western Kentucky, which moved into fourth place ahead of Oklahoma A. and M. after running its string to 16 straight victories, takes on Tennessee Tech tomorrow and Memphis State Saturday. The Oklahoma Aggies (15-1) play at North Texas State Saturday.

These five teams far outdistanced the rest in this week's balloting. With 127 experts voting, Kentucky drew 42 first-place votes and a total of 1,106 points on the basis of 10 for first place, nine for second, etc. Duquesne, winner of 15 straight, topped 30 of the ballots for a 995 point total and Indiana 16 firsts and 905 points. Western Kentucky drew 769 points to take fourth while Oklahoma A&M collected 697 points.

Irish Ranked Sixth

Then there was a big drop to Notre Dame at 221 and Oklahoma City at 211. Notre Dame, unranked a week ago, jumped to sixth place in the poll after whipping the former holder of that position, Holy Cross.

The Crusaders dropped to eighth after taking their first defeat and George Washington, also beaten for the first time, slid from seventh to tenth. Minnesota remained in the No. 9 spot.

George Washington will get a chance to improve its rating at Virginia's expense Thursday.

Other rankings include Duke, 13th, and Maryland, 14th.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—White Sox ticket manager Tom Maloney, inspired by $27,000 worth of orders, today predicted a record-breaking advance Sox ticket sale for the 1954 season of $750,000 or more.

In less than two weeks, the advance sale has reached $205,000, by far the best start in any White Sox season, Maloney said.

The Sox' all-time high was $660,000 advance for 1953.

Weinmeister May Play Football In Canada

SEATTLE, Jan. 19 (AP) — Arnie Weinmeister, New York's all-league tackle for the last four years, said today he is through with the Giants and may play for the British Columbia Lions. The Vancouver, B. C. clubs makes its bow in the Western Interprovincial Football Union next fall.

The lineman from Seattle, indicated at the end of the National Football League season that he wouldn't return to the Giants.

Weinmeister technically still is the property of the Giants. The NFL club has an option on his services for 1954. But Arnie said the Giants can keep the option because he wasn't going to play for them.

Chicago White Sox Have 18 In Fold

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Southpaw pitcher John Thompson, 32, and outfielder Ed Wight, 27, agreed to 1954 White Sox contract terms today to give the club 18 signed players.

Thompson, a 200-pounder, was drafted from Baltimore's International League club of 1953. He had a 10-4 record and a 3.79 earned run average. Thompson is expected to bolster the Sox bull pen strength.

Wight, 6-2, 200 pounds, entered the Sox farm system when he was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1950. He hit .330 and drove in 70 runs last year for Memphis in the Southern Association.

Triple Crown Races Three Weeks Apart

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—An official of Belmont Park said today the $100,000 added Belmont Stakes, final race in the triple crown for 3-year-olds, probably would be held June 12.

This would mean a 3-week span between the Kentucky derby at Louisville May 1, and the Preakness at Baltimore May 22, and another three weeks between the Preakness and Belmont.

Flowers To Play With Baltimore

Colts Seek Services Of Billy Vessels

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP)— The Baltimore Colts today wooed their second 1953 draft choice, Bernie Flowers of Purdue, from Canadian football and went after their first, Billy Vessels of Oklahoma, who also got across the border.

While announcing that Flowers had signed a 1954 contract, Colt President Don Kellett flew out to Oklahoma to try to convince Vessels to follow suit.

Flowers, an end at Purdue in 1952, was picked on the Canadian Football League All-Star team last season while playing for Ottawa. Vessels, an All-America halfback for Oklahoma two seasons ago, played with Edmonton.

Clem Crowe who coached the Colts in 1950 and was Flowers' coach at Ottawa last year said "unless the National Football League is twice as good as it was, Flowers should be able to put one hand in his pocket and play the position better than anybody the Colts have."

In addition to making another pitch to Vessels to return to the United States, Kellett also will talk to Kaye Vaughn, University of Tulsa tackle in 1952 who also chose Canadian football instead of the Baltimore Colts last year.

Lynchburg Keeps Piedmont Berth

LYNCHBURG, Va., Jan. 19 (AP)—Lynchburg will have professional baseball as usual during the coming season.

The Lynchburg City Council and President Wallace McKenna of the Lynchburg Cardinals today compromised in a battle over rental for Municipal Stadium that threatened to cause transfer of the Lynchburg Piedmont League franchise.

Under terms of the new agreement, the city will receive $2,500 per year rental for the stadium, plus 7½ per cent of the gross receipts from concessions. That move was made by Councilman Charles G. Baber and passed with only Councilman Abe Cohen dissenting.

Previously, the city had received $3,500 flat from the Cardinals with no share of concession sales.

Belardi And Lehman Sign Dodger Pacts

BROOKLYN, Jan. 19 (AP) — First baseman Wayne Belardi and pitcher Ken Lehman signed their Brooklyn contracts today, bringing the Dodgers' list of signed players to five.

Belardi, a lefthanded batter and fielder, hit .239 in 69 games last season as relief for Gil Hodges and as a pinch hitter. He hit a grand slam homer as a pinch hitter.

Lehman, 25, a southpaw, had a 13-9 record with Montreal of the International League last season. He was with the Dodgers briefly in 1952.

Cumberland Grid Player Of The Year Will Be Named Tonight

Nineteen Are Eligible For Annual Award

K. Of C. Event Set For The Maryland Theater At 9 P. M.

Cumberland's scholastic football Player of the Year 1953 will be announced and the gridder chosen will be presented a gold wrist watch at exercises to be conducted tonight at 9 o'clock at the Maryland Theater.

The winner will be chosen from a list of nineteen Cumberland hign school nominees who were named either linemen-of-the-week or back-of-the-week throughout the 1953 campaign. These players were picked by a selection committee representing Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, donor of the annual awards since the 1948 season. The players were chosen for their performances in games played at the local stadium only.

Eighteen players who finish as runners-up will receive suitably engraved miniature gold footballs from the Knights of Columbus.

Nominees For Award

Here are the eligibles for tonight's Player of the Year Award:

Allegany:

Bernard Beerman, Fritz Hadra, Eddie Joyce, Robert Kirtley, George Reynolds and Robert Reiber.

Fort Hill:

Bob Andrews, Dick Bittner, Wayne Couter, Earl Grove, Bill Murphy, Russell Poling and Stanley Teets.

LaSalle:

Bobby Christ, Phil Geatz, Richard Harris, Harold Hudson, Ronald Lennox and Dennis Shuck.

Since the award was instituted, Fort Hill gridders have won it four times in five years. The first winner in 1948 was Earle Bruce, Allegany High back. Lynn Beightol, of Fort Hill, now quarterback at the University of Maryland, won gold wrist watches in 1949 and 1950, Bill Lee, Fort Hill, lineman was the 1951 winner and John McVicker, Sentinels' back, copped the prize in 1952.

72 Named In Six Years

Over six seasons a total of 72 scholastic football players from Allegany, Fort Hill, LaSalle and Ridgeley have been nominated for the award. The list includes 27 from Fort Hill, 24 from Allegany, 18 from LaSalle and three from Ridgeley.

Only players of the week were eligible for the award prior to 1953. Last year the lineman-of-the-week and back-of-the-week idea was inaugurated, thus increasing the number of nominees for the annual prize.

Robert Kirtley, Allegany backfield star, was chosen three times throughout the 1953 season, equalling the performances of Lynn Beightol in 1950 and Richard (Dickie) Beard, also of Fort Hill, in 1951.

Nicholson Is Emcee

The master of ceremonies for tonight's program will be Somerville Nicholson, supervisor of assessments for Allegany County. Nicholson, an All-State football center at Western Maryland College, formerly played with and coached basketball teams at the Central YMCA and was cage mentor at Allegany County High in the days when the school was located on Greene Street. He also played football with the old Cumberland Bulldogs.

Notre Dame Ranked 6th In AP Poll

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP) — Although once-beaten Indiana has been making fresh threats, Kentucky's grip on the top place in The Associated Press basketball rankings isn't likely to be loosened for a while.

By a solid vote of the nation's sports writers and broadcasters, the unbeaten Kentucky Wildcats were returned to the top spot this week with Duquesne still second and Indiana third.

After the returns were in, Indiana, the 1953 NCAA champion, walloped Ohio State, 94-72, Monday night for its 12th victory in 13 starts this season. But that was the last chance the Hoosiers will have to menace Kentucky's lead until Feb. 1. Like Indiana, undefeated Duquesne had to take time out for examinations and has no games scheduled this week.

Kentucky To Play Vols

Kentucky, meanwhile, is listed to play Tennessee at Knoxville Saturday, but off the records that shouldn't be too tough for the Wildcats.

The other members of the "big five" are due for more action this week. Western Kentucky, which moved into fourth place ahead of Oklahoma A. and M. after running its string to 16 straight victories, takes on Tennessee Tech tomorrow and Memphis State Saturday. The Oklahoma Aggies (15-1) play at North Texas State Saturday.

These five teams far outdistanced the rest in this week's balloting. With 127 experts voting, Kentucky drew 42 first-place votes and a total of 1,106 points on the basis of 10 for first place, nine for second, etc. Duquesne, winner of 15 straight, topped 30 of the ballots for a 995 point total and Indiana 16 firsts and 905 points. Western Kentucky drew 769 points to take fourth while Oklahoma A&M collected 697 points.

Irish Ranked Sixth

Then there was a big drop to Notre Dame at 221 and Oklahoma City at 211. Notre Dame, unranked a week ago, jumped to sixth place in the poll after whipping the former holder of that position, Holy Cross.

The Crusaders dropped to eighth after taking their first defeat and George Washington, also beaten for the first time, slid from seventh to tenth. Minnesota remained in the No. 9 spot.

George Washington will get a chance to improve its rating at Virginia's expense Thursday.

Other rankings include Duke, 13th, and Maryland, 14th.

White Sox Report $250,000 Advance Sale

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—White Sox ticket manager Tom Maloney, inspired by $27,000 worth of orders, today predicted a record-breaking advance Sox ticket sale for the 1954 season of $750,000 or more.

In less than two weeks, the advance sale has reached $205,000, by far the best start in any White Sox season, Maloney said.

The Sox' all-time high was $660,000 advance for 1953.

Weinmeister May Play Football In Canada

SEATTLE, Jan. 19 (AP) — Arnie Weinmeister, New York's all-league tackle for the last four years, said today he is through with the Giants and may play for the British Columbia Lions. The Vancouver, B. C. clubs makes its bow in the Western Interprovincial Football Union next fall.

The lineman from Seattle, indicated at the end of the National Football League season that he wouldn't return to the Giants.

Weinmeister technically still is the property of the Giants. The NFL club has an option on his services for 1954. But Arnie said the Giants can keep the option because he wasn't going to play for them.

Chicago White Sox Have 18 In Fold

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Southpaw pitcher John Thompson, 32, and outfielder Ed Wight, 27, agreed to 1954 White Sox contract terms today to give the club 18 signed players.

Thompson, a 200-pounder, was drafted from Baltimore's International League club of 1953. He had a 10-4 record and a 3.79 earned run average. Thompson is expected to bolster the Sox bull pen strength.

Wight, 6-2, 200 pounds, entered the Sox farm system when he was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1950. He hit .330 and drove in 70 runs last year for Memphis in the Southern Association.

Triple Crown Races Three Weeks Apart

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—An official of Belmont Park said today the $100,000 added Belmont Stakes, final race in the triple crown for 3-year-olds, probably would be held June 12.

This would mean a 3-week span between the Kentucky derby at Louisville May 1, and the Preakness at Baltimore May 22, and another three weeks between the Preakness and Belmont.

There is a homicide in the United States on the average of every 79 minutes.

Flowers To Play With Baltimore

Colts Seek Services Of Billy Vessels

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19 (AP)— The Baltimore Colts today wooed their second 1953 draft choice, Bernie Flowers of Purdue, from Canadian football and went after their first, Billy Vessels of Oklahoma, who also got across the border.

While announcing that Flowers had signed a 1954 contract, Colt President Don Kellett flew out to Oklahoma to try to convince Vessels to follow suit.

Flowers, an end at Purdue in 1952, was picked on the Canadian Football League All-Star team last season while playing for Ottawa. Vessels, an All-America halfback for Oklahoma two seasons ago, played with Edmonton.

Clem Crowe who coached the Colts in 1950 and was Flowers' coach at Ottawa last year said "unless the National Football League is twice as good as it was, Flowers should be able to put one hand in his pocket and play the position better than anybody the Colts have."

In addition to making another pitch to Vessels to return to the United States, Kellett also will talk to Kaye Vaughn, University of Tulsa tackle in 1952 who also chose Canadian football instead of the Baltimore Colts last year.

Lynchburg Keeps Piedmont Berth

LYNCHBURG, Va., Jan. 19 (AP)—Lynchburg will have professional baseball as usual during the coming season.

The Lynchburg City Council and President Wallace McKenna of the Lynchburg Cardinals today compromised in a battle over rental for Municipal Stadium that threatened to cause transfer of the Lynchburg Piedmont League franchise.

Under terms of the new agreement, the city will receive $2,500 per year rental for the stadium, plus 7½ per cent of the gross receipts from concessions. That move was made by Councilman Charles G. Baber and passed with only Councilman Abe Cohen dissenting.

Previously, the city had received $3,500 flat from the Cardinals with no share of concession sales.

Belardi And Lehman Sign Dodger Pacts

BROOKLYN, Jan. 19 (AP) — First baseman Wayne Belardi and pitcher Ken Lehman signed their Brooklyn contracts today, bringing the Dodgers' list of signed players to five.

Belardi, a lefthanded batter and fielder, hit .239 in 69 games last season as relief for Gil Hodges and as a pinch hitter. He hit a grand slam homer as a pinch hitter.

Lehman, 25, a southpaw, had a 13-9 record with Montreal of the International League last season. He was with the Dodgers briefly in 1952.

Phils Hold Out

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19 (AP) — Earl Torgeson, Granny Hamner and Jim Konstanty today joined a growing list of Philadelphia Phillies who have returned their proffered 1954 contracts unsigned.

The will of Mrs. Grace M. Fisher, 66, local theater owner, was admitted to probate in Orphans Court yesterday. Mrs. Fisher died Friday.

Earle E. Manges, attorney, and John H. Mosner, vice president of the Second National Bank, obtained letters of administration. Bond for the two men was set at $250,000. This was termed by court attaches as the largest bond in many years for administrators or executors of a will here.

A trust fund is to be set up with this money for the education and maintenance of the granddaughter.

The home at 739 Washington Street is to be retained for the use of the present occupants. The estate is to be divided among Frank L. Fisher, widower, Vivian D. Fisher, a daughter of the deceased, Norine Fisher Dalton and Marjorie G. Fisher. The granddaughter is also to receive two mink fur pieces and two automobiles under terms of the will.

The will of John W. Buser, this city, who died January 14 names his son, Thomas V. Buser, 540 Eastern Avenue, as executor. The estate is to be divided among two sons, Thomas V. and Ralph Buser, and two daughters, Virgie Buser Hartley and Delcie Buser Shyrock.

Peebles Heads Georges Creek Blood Bank

Area Renews Efforts To Reach Its Quota

LONACONING—Robert D. Peebles, of East Main Street, has accepted the chairmanship for the Blood Bank drive for the Barton, Lonaconing and Midland areas.

Blood donors are being sought now for the Monday, February 1, noon to 6 p. m. visit of the Johnstown Mobile Blood unit. It will be stationed at Alvin C. Neat Post No. 5280, Veterans for Foreign Wars home, Lonaconing and hopes to receive 150 pints of blood to reach the quota set for this area.

Walter Stafford, of Barton, has accepted leadership for the Barton area, to be assisted by Mrs. Helen Kroll and Mrs. Earl Metz, of Barton. They will solicit blood donors pledges in their community.

Blue donor cards are distributed throughout the three localities, Midland, Lonaconing and Barton, and these pledge cards will be received at a meeting Thursday, January 21, at 7:30 p. m. at the Red Cross room, Main Street, Lonaconing.

From the pledge cards returned, they will be scheduled to give blood at the VFW home Monday, February 1. The blood is needed for polio serum and our local hospitals.

It is stressed by the Blood Bank committee that blood is free to all residents of Allegany County, through the Johnstown Mobile Blood Unit, wherever the person may be hospitalized. Replacements will be gladly accepted at the nearest blood bank of the county residents.

At Valley High school, posters of the Red Cross Bloodmobile coming to the VFW home, February 1, are placed on the main bulletin boards and faculty members have been issued the pledge cards to be blood donors.

Anyone who wishes to give blood, may secure the blue pledge card from the Red Cross room, Main street, Lonaconing, or by contacting Robert Peebles, chairman, or Mrs. Margaret Evans, publicity chairman for the area blood bank drive.

Representatives from organizations and individuals who are interested in the Blood Bank program are welcome to attend the meeting Thursday evening at the Red Cross room, Main street, Lonaconing.

Five Garrett Firms Plead Guilty; Fined

$3,400 Assessed For Liquor Violations

OAKLAND—Fines totaling $3,400 were levied against five Garrett County business places accused of violating liquor laws.

Licensed only to sell beer, three clubs and two hotels pleaded guilty to charges filed by State's Attorney W. Dwight Stover before Magistrate William O. Bitzer here.

Richard Sheehe and James McNelis, representatives of the Manhattan Hotel at Oakland, each paid $500 for selling whisky, according to Stover. Other defendants were:

Oakland Lodge 786, Loyal Order of Moose, and Friendsville Post 8049, Veterans of Foreign Wars, $600 each; Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion of Oakland, $500, and the Arlington Hotel at Grantsville, represented by Roy Zehner, $700.

The latter four places were charged with having liquor in their possession for the purpose of sale on certain days within the past month, Stover stated.

Stover said other action concerning the revoking of beer licenses is up to the Garrett County Commissioners who act as a licensing board. No date for a hearing was set, Stover remarked, adding that he does not know if further penalties are contemplated.

The arrests were made last Tuesday and Wednesday by Sheriff Paul Fisher an Deputy Edward J. Frantz who secured warrants.

Assisting authorities in probing the case were two unidentified state policemen who reportedly had been in the county in civilian apparel, and who reportedly made purchases which resulted in the arrests.

Ridgeley Also Seeks Similar Cost Report

PIEDMONT — C. B. Mitchell and Edgar C. Richardson, engineers of the Michael Baker Company of Rochester, Pa., conferred with the Mayor and Council of Piedmont, relative to the cost of making a preliminary survey for a sewage disposal system for the city.

This survey would not give any definite figures. The engineers agreed they would send the city officials a proposal stating what the preliminary survey and report would include and approximate cost of such work.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19 (INS) — A sentimental casting by way of kicking off MGM's 30th anniversary is the word from London that beloved Bessie Love will emote before the cameras with Liz Taylor and Stewart Granger in MGM's "Beau Brummel." She just came out of 19 years retirement to play in "Barefoot Contessa" in Rome a few weeks ago.

Bessie was in "Broadway Melody," the MGM musical which in 1929 was the first song-and-dance movie ever to win an Academy Award. But, long before this, Bessie was one of the loveliest actresses of the silent screen.

When her marriage to Bill Hawks went on the rocks, Bessie took their daughter to London and for 19 years devoted herself to the child. Patricia Hawks, now 21, is appearing in "The King and I" in London.

Hot, hot, hot from New York comes word that Cinerama is closing a deal to buy Cole Porter's successful Broadway musical, "Can Can." The deal is on with Si Fabian, and by the time you read this, it's apt to be closed.

I suppose the fact that "Oklahoma" is owned by the Todd-AO may have been partly responsible for this deal.

Suzan Ball is recovering so rapidly that today she was able to be moved from Temple Hospital to the Orchard Grove Sanitorium, a much more comfortable and pleasant place for her to recuperate. If Suzan could know the hundreds of messages that have poured into my office asking about her, it would warm her heart.

Although she has seen no one, with the exception of her family and Dick Long, Dr. Frances Engelman tells me her spirits are remarkable. Her blood count is normal, she's reading papers and books, and best of all, she's already talking about her next picture.

She wants to make her comeback appearance in "The Long Hunter," Robert Buckner's story to be produced by Aaron Rosenberg.

Bright and early this morning Jimmy Stewart was on the telephone from Miami to tell me the sun was shining and he was sitting on the beach. He's there for the premiere of "The Glenn Miller Story."

Jimmy told me that the greatest experience he ever had in his life was when "The Glenn Miller Story" opened in Clarinda, Iowa, Glenn's home town. He said Glenn's 83-year-old mother went to the showing with him and Gloria.

"I've heard applause," said Jimmy, "but never such really heartwarming applause as we had. It's an experience I'll never forget. We were in the Corn Belt in Iowa and, believe me, we've had premieres, but never anything the way the Iowans treated us."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Talked with Virginia Warren, pretty blonde daughter of Chief Justice Earl Warren, at La Rue. She was having dinner with Brad Dexter, Peggy Lee's ex, and they were off to Mocambo to hear Eartha Kitt.

Nedra Clack Broccoli happily told me that she and Cubby are going to adopt a baby in April. Nedra had so much unhappiness when her late husband, Buddy Clark, was killed in a plane crash, and a few months later her only child was killed by an automobile.

The Howard Duff-Gussie Moran romance is all off. Her wealthy eastern friend, Ed Hand, is here in Hollywood to see her.

Any moment now Mrs. Buddy Rich, wife of the drummer, expects her baby. She is the former Marie Allison.

Mrs. Jack Benny severely burned her hand, and especially one finger, when a package of matches exploded in her hand. She said it was one of the most painful experiences she's ever had.

Betsy Von Furstenberg has made way for a pretty model named Ann Wagner, who is now No. 1 in Franchot Tone's affections.

Cecil Beaton gets here Friday after completing a series of lectures. His new book, "The Glass Of Fashion," full of pictures of old friends any very nostalgic, is going big.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

It takes a well-poised, tranquil head to frame alluring, expressive eyes and lips!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

With warm radiance and a pleasant expression you have far greater chance of being thought beautiful than has the woman with perfect features and an exquisite complexion but a "dead pan." An expressionless face, incapable of looking pleasant no matter how beautiful, leaves others as cold as it appears.

Your thoughts and feelings, your voice and words, all are powerful factors in transmitting your emotional reactions. But today, let's just consider the physical means with which to convey expression. These are your lips and eyes.

Your Setting

Just as a lovely picture needs a good frame to set it off, so do eyes and lips that are winningly expressive. The frame or setting for your eyes and lips is your head. And the trick here is to learn to keep your head still!

If it bobs up and down or cocks from side to side as fast as you talk or think, your expression will not register. Eyes especially, with their subtle changes, need a tranquil and serene head if their alluring qualities are to be apparent.

For a week, concentrate on these three factors:

1. There is just one correct position for your head: It should be balanced equally between your shoulders. Tilting it from side to side is a mannerism that betrays lack of poise.

2. There is just one way to carry your head: High — not by thrusting your chin up and not by pushing it back to form a double chin. The secret lies in stretching your neck up and up — and back at the same time!

3. When you must turn your head, always lead with your eyes. Turn your eyes first and then let your head follow. Almost invariably, those unschooled in the art of personal appeal will turn their eyes and head at the same time, minimizing the dynamic force of their facial expression. (Test the principal before your mirror and you'll see the difference!)

Actually it is easy to have a well-poised, tranquil head. And here are some of the benefits that go with it: It prevents or corrects an old-looking neck due to crepey skin and over-stretched throat muscles; it eradicates a dowager's hump or the possibility of developing one.

Best of all, it gives full rein to a radiant, pleasing facial expression with all of its potent appeal!

Tomorrow: The large-hipped figure.

The Captive Independents

What became of the old-fashioned congressman who was as independent as a one-cow dairy?

He wore no man's collar and laundered it himself. He would go either way like a double checker. And was as unattached as a tree without roots.

The last of the doohickies in the upper house is Senator Moorse of Oregon. Who claims to be as independent as a bob-sled on a hill.

But we found Senator Morse started life as a royal northwest Republican. He claims to be an independent but votes Democratic on everything but weather reports.

Which sounds like a man with rubber bars on his cell. But no key to the front door.

Senator Morse's lonesome huddle complicates a Senate split 48-47. That's not countin' Nixon's vote. But sometimes they do.

Morse can break a deadlock like a biscuit. His vote is as definite as a shadow on a sun dial.

Over in the lower house there's Reams of Ohio. Who votes Democratic when the mood music is twittering in the bosky dell. We don't know his politics before he became independent. But he probably buttoned up the back and fanned his soup with his hat.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

Comedian Rewritten

The Milton Berle show— I never thought I'd live to see the day I'd say such a thing—is a terribly, terribly funny show, just about the most consistently funny full hour anywhere on television. Goodman Ace, it seems to me, has done large miracles in transforming Milton into something resembling respectability.

John Crosby

The Berle show was once an over-long night-club act with Mr. B. pretty much getting into everyone else's act. Now it comes pretty close to being a one-hour musical comedy with plot, production numbers, songs, and the rest of it. I suppose one of the reasons I enjoy this sort of rowdy musical is because it has practically vanished from Broadway. Today we get "South Pacific" which is to say a drama with music. It bears about as much relationship to the old-time Bert Lahr musicals as "Getting Gertie's Garter" does to the works of George Bernard Shaw.

So, it's nice that the genre hasn't vanished entirely. Also, it's quite a feat to turn out a musical comedy once a week. I remember, when television first came along, the dire predictions that the writers could not conceivably turn out anything very good once a week. This seemed to be overly pessimistic. Writers can do most anything you demand of them. But you must demand it. Generalities, I realize, are dangerous but the one generality I feel to be fairly secure is that a writer will do as little as possible—if you let him get away with it. If you ask the impossible, he'll do it. (He won't like it — but he'll do it.)

Every TV show should, it seems to me, set its sights impossibly high and then go ahead and do it. The success of the rejuvenated Berle show is not entirely to be credited to Goodman Ace, who is its head writer. Berle has been surrounded by two of the best stooges in the business. One is Arnold Stang who can make me laugh simply by sticking his chin out. Another is Ruth Gilbert, who as Max, Berle's secretary, is one of the most sure-footed laugh getters on television. A couple of years ago, Miss Gilbert played a minor role on a now defunct radio comedy series and consistently got all the laughs away from the star. The writer kept trying to tone her material down so as not to overshadow the star. It couldn't be done. Even the most inane dialogue falling from Miss Gilbert's lips broke up the audience. She's a natural.

Ace and his colleagues are writing what amounts to comedy of character or as close to comedy of character as you're likely to get on TV. The writers play variations on about three jokes and the variations, week after week, are harder to come up with than new jokes. This is the formula that has sustained Jack Benny for a couple of decades and looks as if it will work on Berle, too.

In addition to a crackerjack regular cast, no expense is spared to get guests who fit that week's story line (rather than the old system of procuring a name star without any clear idea as to what he was to do.) Recently, in a sort of satire on Mickey Spillane's novels, the Berle show had Mr. Spillane, Basil Rathbone and Dagmar, a curious assortment of talents which fitted that week's story exactly right.

And, of course, we mustn't underrate Mr. Berle who is magnificently gifted in a dozen ways—provided someone sits on him. Every comedian, it seems to me, should have similar restraints laid on him. Left to themselves, comedians get a lot of painful delusions.

The success of the Berle show ought to dispel Mr. Ace's fear that no one could understand his jokes west of the Hudson. People seem to be enjoying his jokes all over the place now.

Daily Bridge Lesson

NOT AN EXCEPTION

EARLY advice to a tyro to "cover an honor with an honor" is sound for a beginning. A little later you may counsel him to do this "only when doing so promises to develop a later trick for yourself or your partner." A sound third stage is to recognize the exceptions to covering such a lead by the other side, when you are a defender. But be careful. Don't consider every situation an exception to the original rule. Sometimes the instant case may not present an exception.

	♠ J 9 6 ♥ K 7 3 ♦ J 6 ♣ Q J 7 6 3
♠ A Q 10 5 ♥ Q 8 5 ♦ 10 3 2 ♣ 9 8 2	N W E S	♠ 4 3 ♥ J 9 6 4 2 ♦ K 9 5 ♣ 10 5 4
	♠ K 8 7 2 ♥ A 10 ♦ A Q 8 7 4 ♣ A K

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	2 NT
Pass	4 NT	Pass	6 NT

Here was in action the pair which rated opponents by the 4-3-2-1 system, subtracting a point or so from their total count when up against powerful players and adding a bit when facing weak ones. This South rated his opposition as about a queen below average in strength, so considered he had 22 points instead of 20. North did likewise, only he rated them as a king below par, so felt he had at least 11 points, and the pair therefore the equivalent of 33. South thereupon barged into the slam.

Maybe they appraised the defenders accurately, though nothing very helpful developed after the first trick until the eighth. The spade 5 was won by the 6, South's club tops were scored, the heart 10 to the K enabled him to run three more clubs for discards of all his spades, and then the diamond J was led. East, thinking this might be an exception to the covering rule, played low. The Q finesse and the A then felled his K, whereupon two more diamonds and the heart A completed all thirteen tricks.

If East had thought, when the diamond J was led, he would have realized that a cover was important if West held even three headed by the 10, no harm being done if he didn't. That play would have established the 10 and ruined South. He then could have scored nothing by one trick in spades, two each in the red suits and five clubs to be down two. And, if he had not immediately cashed the heart A, but had led a third diamond, West could have won and followed with three spade tricks to down him three.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ Q 9 8 ♥ Q 8 3 ♦ K J 10 5 4 ♣ 9 2
♠ A 4 3 ♥ 7 5 2 ♦ 8 6 3 ♣ K 10 7 4	N W E S	♠ K J 10 5 2 ♥ A 6 ♦ 9 2 ♣ Q J 8 6
	♠ 7 6 ♥ K J 10 9 4 ♦ A Q 7 ♣ A 5 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If East had bid spades, what is the correct defense against South's 4-Hearts?

Comedian Rewritten

The Milton Berle show— I never thought I'd live to see the day I'd say such a thing—is a terribly, terribly funny show, just about the most consistently funny full hour anywhere on television. Goodman Ace, it seems to me, has done large miracles in transforming Milton into something resembling respectability.

John Crosby

The Berle show was once an over-long night-club act with Mr. B. pretty much getting into every one else's act. Now it comes pretty close to being a one-hour musical comedy with plot, production numbers, songs, and the rest of it. I suppose one of the reasons I enjoy this sort of rowdy musical is because it has practically vanished from Broadway. Today we get "South Pacific" which is to say a drama with music. It bears about as much relationship to the old-time Bert Lahr musicals as "Getting Gertie's Garter" does to the works of George Bernard Shaw.

So, it's nice that the genre hasn't vanished entirely. Also, it's quite a feat to turn out a musical comedy once a week. I remember, when television first came along, the dire predictions that the writers could not conceivably turn out anything very good once a week. This seemed to be overly pessimistic. Writers can do most anything you demand of them. But you must demand it. Generalities, I realize, are dangerous but the one generality I feel to be fairly secure is that a writer will do as little as possible—if you let him get away with it. If you ask the impossible, he'll do it. (He won't like it — but he'll do it.)

Every TV show should, it seems to me, set its sights impossibly high and then go ahead and do it. The success of the rejuvenated Berle show is not entirely to be credited to Goodman Ace, who is its head writer. Berle has been surrounded by two of the best stooges in the business. One is Arnold Stang who can make me laugh simply by sticking his chin out. Another is Ruth Gilbert, who as Max. Berle's secretary, is one of the most sure-footed laugh getters on television. A couple of years ago, Miss Gilbert played a minor role on a now defunct radio comedy series and consistently got all the laughs away from the star. The writer kept trying to tone her material down so as not to overshadow the star. It couldn't be done. Even the most inane dialogue falling from Miss Gilbert's lips broke up the audience. She's a natural.

Ace and his colleagues are writing what amounts to comedy of character or as close to comedy of character as you're likely to get on TV. The writers play variations on about three jokes and the variations, week after week, are harder to come up with than new jokes. This is the formula that has sustained Jack Benny for a couple of decades and looks as if it will work on Berle, too.

In addition to a crackerjack regular cast, no expense is spared to get guests who fit that week's story line (rather than the old system of procuring a name star without any clear idea as to what he was to do.) Recently, in a sort of satire on Mickey Spillane's novels, the Berle show had Mr. Spillane, Basil Rathbone and Dagmar, a curious assortment of talents which fitted that week's story exactly right.

And, of course, we mustn't underrate Mr. Berle who is magnificently gifted in a dozen ways—provided someone sits on him. Every comedian, it seems to me, should have similar restraints laid on him. Left to themselves, comedians get a lot of painful delusions.

The success of the Berle show ought to dispel Mr. Ace's fear that no one could understand his jokes west of the Hudson. People seem to be enjoying his jokes all over the place now.

Daily Bridge Lesson

NOT AN EXCEPTION

EARLY advice to a tyro to "cover an honor with an honor" is sound for a beginning. A little later you may counsel him to do this "only when doing so promises to develop a later trick for yourself or your partner." A sound third stage is to recognize the exceptions to covering such a lead by the other side, when you are a defender. But be careful. Don't consider every situation an exception to the original rule. Sometimes the instant case may not present an exception.

	♠ J 9 6 ♥ K 7 3 ♦ J 6 ♣ Q J 7 6 3
♠ A Q 10 5 ♥ Q 8 5 ♦ 10 3 2 ♣ 9 8 2	N W E S	♠ 4 3 ♥ J 9 6 4 2 ♦ K 9 5 ♣ 10 5 4
	♠ K 8 7 2 ♥ A 10 ♦ A Q 8 7 4 ♣ A K

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	4 NT	Pass	6 NT

Here was in action the pair which rated opponents by the 4-3-2-1 system, subtracting a point or so from their total count when up against powerful players and adding a bit when facing weak ones. This South rated his opposition as about a queen below average in strength, so considered he had 22 points instead of 20. North did likewise, only he rated them as a king below par, so felt he had at least 11 points, and the pair therefore the equivalent of 33. South thereupon barged into the slam.

Maybe they appraised the defenders accurately, though nothing very helpful developed after the first trick until the eighth. The spade 5 was won by the 6, South's club tops were scored, the heart 10 to the K enabled him to run three more clubs for discards of all his spades, and then the diamond J was led. East, thinking this might be an exception to the covering rule, played low. The Q finesse and the A then felled his K, whereupon two more diamonds and the heart A completed all thirteen tricks.

If East had thought, when the diamond J was led, he would have realized that a cover was important if West held even three headed by the 10, no harm being done if he didn't. That play would have established the 10 and ruined South. He then could have scored nothing by one trick in spades, two each in the red suits and five clubs to be down two. And, if he had not immediately cashed the heart A, but had led a third diamond, West could have won and followed with three spade tricks to down him three.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ Q 9 8 ♥ Q 8 3 ♦ K J 10 5 4 ♣ 9 2
♠ A 4 3 ♥ 7 5 2 ♦ 8 6 3 ♣ K 10 7 4	N W E S	♠ K J 10 5 2 ♥ A 6 ♦ 9 2 ♣ Q J 8 6
	♠ 7 6 ♥ K J 10 9 4 ♦ A Q 7 ♣ A 5 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If East had bid spades, what is the correct defense against South's 4-Hearts?

BLIND!

If you can't see where you can save as much as $300 by buying your next car from us you'd better have your eyes examined at once. The difference between our prices and those of others is, they try to see how high a price they can get and, we try to see how low we can sell!

We want to sell 500 cars in 1954 and are going to sell them no matter how small the profit. We pay no rent and have no one to support; not even a wife. We defy anyone to meet our prices.

BLIND!

If you can't see where you can save as much as $300 by buying your next car from us you'd better have your eyes examined at once. The difference between our prices and those of others is, they try to see how high a price they can get and, we try to see how low we can sell!

We want to sell 500 cars in 1954 and are going to sell them no matter how small the profit. We pay no rent and have no one to support; not even a wife. We defy anyone to meet our prices.

Corduroy Care

How can you keep corduroy looking fresh and bright? It isn't too easy, says Helen Shelby, clothing specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service. That's because corduroy pile picks up soil easily and holds it tightly. The main point to remember in corduroy care is that the fabric should be washed before it gets too soiled.

Corduroy has a tendency to mat down in areas subjected to pressure or abrasion. However, if the pile is not worn off, the matted condition can be corrected by steaming the fabric. After steaming, hang the garment to dry so it won't touch or rub against anything. Otherwise, the pile will become packed again.

Sometimes, when a spot is removed, the pile may distort, warns Miss Shelby. This will cause a difference in light reflection which may make it appear that the spot is still there.

You don't always know what you are getting when you buy corduroy, so there may be problems. Color isn't always the same in corduroys. When washed or cleaned they may partially or completely lose color. Some dyes bleed excessively in washing. However, a properly dyed fabric can be a serviceable fabric. Miss Shelby adds that decorative designs can limit the serviceability of corduroy fabrics. Lacquer or pigment prints in corduroy may be luxury items, especially when color doesn't hold and the amount of spot and stain removal that may be attempted is limited.

Hamburger steak is said to be the most popular of all American dishes.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Rally Sparked By Railroads Sends Stock Market Ahead

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—A rally focused on the railroads today sent the Stock Market bouncing ahead.

Buyer enthusiasm was based to a great extent on the fact that the rails in the past have many times given the signal for a general advance.

Gains went to between 1 and 2 points in many sections, and the losses were limited.

One of the basic points of support for the market's action was the decision of General Motors to launch a two-year billion dollar expansion program. It was taken as a vote of confidence in the nation's economic future. General Motors common stock was up 1¾ at 63⅞.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 90 cents at $111.70. That is the best mark for the average since April 1 of last year. The average now stands only $4.60 under the 1953-54 peak reached early in January last year.

The industrial component of the average today gained $1.30, railroads were up $1.10, and the utilities were up 10 cents.

Consolidated Vultee was the day's most active issue up 1 at 19¼ with 22,400 shares traded. It was followed by General Motors up 1¾ at 63⅞, New York Central up 1 at 19¾, Oliver Corp. up ⅝ at 11½, and American Radiator up ⅜ at 14⅝.

Corduroy Care

How can you keep corduroy looking fresh and bright? It isn't too easy, says Helen Shelby, clothing specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service. That's because corduroy pile picks up soil easily and holds it tightly. The main point to remember in corduroy care is that the fabric should be washed before it gets too soiled.

Corduroy has a tendency to mat down in areas subjected to pressure or abrasion. However, if the pile is not worn off, the matted condition can be corrected by steaming the fabric. After steaming, hang the garment to dry so it won't touch or rub against anything. Otherwise, the pile will become packed again.

Sometimes, when a spot is removed, the pile may distort, warns Miss Shelby. This will cause a difference in light reflection which may make it appear that the spot is still there.

You don't always know what you are getting when you buy corduroy, so there may be problems. Color isn't always the same in corduroys. When washed or cleaned they may partially or completely lose color. Some dyes bleed excessively in washing. However, a properly dyed fabric can be a serviceable fabric. Miss Shelby adds that decorative designs can limit the serviceability of corduroy fabrics. Lacquer or pigment prints in corduroy may be luxury items, especially when color doesn't hold and the amount of spot and stain removal that may be attempted is limited.

Hamburger steak is said to be the most popular of all American dishes.

Rally Sparked By Railroads Sends Stock Market Ahead

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—A rally focused on the railroads today sent the Stock Market bouncing ahead.

Buyer enthusiasm was based to a great extent on the fact that the rails in the past have many times given the signal for a general advance.

Gains went to between 1 and 2 points in many sections, and the losses were limited.

One of the basic points of support for the market's action was the decision of General Motors to launch a two-year billion dollar expansion program. It was taken as a vote of confidence in the nation's economic future. General Motors common stock was up 1¾ at 63⅞.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 90 cents at $111.70. That is the best mark for the average since April 1 of last year. The average now stands only $4.60 under the 1953-54 peak reached early in January last year.

The industrial component of the average today gained $1.30, railroads were up $1.10, and the utilities were up 10 cents.

Consolidated Vultee was the day's most active issue up 1 at 19¼ with 22,400 shares traded. It was followed by General Motors up 1¾ at 63⅞, New York Central up 1 at 19¾, Oliver Corp. up ⅝ at 11½, and American Radiator up ⅜ at 14⅝.

River Board Asks Action On Pollution

Garbage, Mine Pit Action Is Sought

The Upper Potomac River Board will urge state authorities to take action toward eliminating community dumps which add to the pollution of the river and to press for legislation requiring backfilling of strip mine pits.

J. B. Dowling, sanitarian of the Allegany County Health Department, cited the Piedmont, W. Va., city dump, located on the river halfway between there and Keyser, as an example.

He said some of the refuse finds its way into the river and adds to the pollution.

J. G. Patrick, chief chemist of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's Luke plant, added the dump is an eyesore and a hazard to drivers when garbage is being burned.

Cite Pollution Danger

The board will ask the State Board of Health and the Water Pollution Commission to confer with West Virginia state authorities on the problem.

Dowling said there are many other community dumps in the area which add to the pollution problem.

The board, at the request of Mark W. Roe, chairman, will notify state agencies of the dangers imposed by open pits left after strip mining operations.

J. Henry Schilpp, engineer for the Water Pollution Commission, pointed out the pits will always be a source of acid drainage until they are filled up. Backfilling is required in Pennsylvania, he added.

The pits, Dowling said, would provide ideal dumping grounds for garbage, but are usually too far from towns to be used that way.

Dowling also urged the board to help in the current campaign to clean up sewage in the Potomac River. He said uniform state laws on septic tanks will help elsewhere, as they have in Allegany County.

Data Not Revealed

Schilpp was asked for the results of a pollution survey made by the Water Pollution Control Commission here in October.

He said he was not at liberty to release the information "due to the possibility of court action on the case."

All of the data, he added, will be revealed at a meeting in Baltimore late this month.

This is a joint meeting slated January 28, to be attended by the Board of Health, Cumberland officials, Assistant Attorney General A. T. Hartman and experts from the pollution control board.

Hartman hopes to be able to stipulate the data in the court action the state insists be taken to force Cumberland to build a sewage plant.

Firemen Check Blaze At Local Auto Sales Lot

The aerial ladder truck and pumper of Central Fire Station went to 122 North Mechanic Street yesterday at 4 p. m. where a blaze in a repair shop of Trozzo's Auto Sales was extinguished.

Damage to the interior of the one-room cement block building and equipment was estimated at around $200. Cause of the fire was undetermined, according to firemen.

A business office located about two or three feet from the shop was undamaged. Trozzo said that two auto radios, a hand sweeper and a buffing machine were damaged by the blaze, as well as part of the building's interior.

Tires, polishing material and other equipment were stored in the repair shop. Firemen were at the scene about half an hour as the booster pump line was used.

Damages estimated at about $900 was caused by two separate fires in Cumberland and nearby Bowman's Addition in the past two days.

A two-alarm fire broke out yesterday morning in a second floor closet at the home of Ellsworth V. Rosenmarkle, 107 Wills Creek Avenue, and caused damage estimated at about $400.

Firemen said faulty wiring around a hot air duct in the closet apparently caused the blaze at 9 a. m. when West Side Company 3 received a call to the residence.

Central firemen went out three minutes later and flames were confined to the closet and partition between two bedrooms. Some water damage to the rooms was reported.

Investigation indicated that heat evidently melted wiring around the duct. A section of the wall was torn away to reach the source of the fire.

Rosenmarkle joined his wife and 17-months-old daughter at home shortly after the blaze originated. Three other children, Mary, a student at Allegany, and Robert and David, who attend Mt. Royal school, were in class.

Death Sentence Ruled Out By Jury's Verdict

A Circuit Court jury early today found William E. Lockard guilty of first-degree murder "without capital punishment" in the December 11 slaying of William F. Eline, 53, of Green Point.

Lockard, 39-year-old railroad trackman, showed no visible sign of emotion as Allan C. Fisher, jury foreman, stood and read the verdict at 12:58 a. m., seven hours after the case had gone to the jury.

Harold E. Naughton, one of Lockard's attorneys, asked Associate Judges Morgan C. Harris and George Henderson to poll the jurors.

Lockard sat quietly in the courtroom as the eight men and four women stood in turn and pronounced him sane and guilty. The jury had been instructed to determine his sanity at the time of the crime and of the trial before attempting to decide his guilt.

After hearing the verdict, Naughton indicated he probably would file a motion for a new trial.

The case was handed to the jury at 5:50 p. m. after two days of testimony and 55 minutes of closing argument by the four attorneys in the case.

Jurors were taken to dinner and returned to the Court House at 8:30 p. m. to begin their deliberations in earnest. It was nearly 4½ hours later when they returned the verdict.

Testimony Reread

Apparent confusion over conflicting testimony of two psychiatrists led to a rather unusual development after 11 p. m.

At the request of jurors, attorneys for the state and for the defense allowed Robert V. Thomas, court stenographer, to read the testimony to the members of the jury.

Dr. Richard W. Trevaskis Jr., local psychiatrist who examined the defendant Sunday in an office at the County Jail, testified that he did not think Lockard had a basic understanding of what things are right, what things are wrong.

Rebuttal Witness

In rebuttal, the state called Dr. Mannfred S. Guttmacher, criminal psychologist for the Baltimore Supreme Court, who had sat as a spectator through the two-day trial. Dr. Guttmacher had examined Lockard in Baltimore December 28.

Asked by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher whether Lockard knows the difference between right and wrong, the specialist from Baltimore replied:

"He may not know it is wrong not to file an income tax report but I think he has the capacity to know it is wrong to kill," Dr. Guttmacher answered.

Despite this ultimate conflict, the two medical men were in general agreement that Lockard has inferior intelligence, with an intelligence quotient of only 57.

Getty Argues

Assistant State's Attorney James Getty began the closing argument with a 14-minute explanation to the jury in which he cited legal definitions concerning the difference between first and second degree murder and manslaughter.

He was followed in argument by George H. Hughes Jr., and then Harold E. Naughton, the court-appointed attorneys for Lockard.

"Don't take his life, for God's sake," Naughton concluded.

In the last of the closing arguments Fletcher stated that it should be convincing when Dr. Guttmacher, who he said has the finest reputation in his field in Maryland, testified that Lockard has the capacity to distinguish between right and wrong.

Why would Lockard have torn the bloodstained seat covers off his front seat and placed them in the automobile trunk if he was not aware that he had done wrong?, the state's attorney asked. Why did he throw the rifle into the Potomac River at Wiley Ford if he did not know his act was wrong?

Robbery Motive?

Fletcher argued that the defendant's motive was robbery, saying Lockard took $10 in $10 bills and a cigaret lighter out of Eline's coverall pocket before dumping the body in an alley off Bedford Street not more than 100 yards from Police Headquarters.

"The citizens of Allegany County have a right to know they will not be struck down nor shot," Fletcher told the jury. Asking for a conviction of first degree murder, he said that the jury should serve warning that whoever de-

American Bridge Low Bidder On Potomac Span

28-Foot Roadway Will Be Provided

The American Bridge Company submitted a low bid of $314,910 for the construction of the superstructure of the new Potomac River Bridge between Cumberland and Ridgeley, according to G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission.

Other bids were submitted by the Pittsburgh Des Moines Bridge Company, $331,000, and the Bethlehem Steel Company, $358,000.

The bids were opened yesterday at noon at the State Roads Commission offices in Baltimore, Chaires said. The contract has not been awarded.

Chaires said the contract covers only the erection of the superstructure and does not include the concrete floor, which will be let later under a separate contract.

Aids Snow Removal

The contract, however, will include the installation of a strip of steel grille on each side of the concrete flooring to facilitate snow removal.

The new bridge will be composed of two steel spans, each about 156 feet long for a total length of 312 feet. Sections will set on piers incorporated into the Industrial Dam.

It will provide a 28-foot-wide roadway, with a five-foot pedestrian sidewalk on each side, for a total width of 38 feet.

The bids do not include the final coating of paint, which is to be applied after the concrete flooring is laid.

The contract will allow 80 working days for the erection of the superstructure.

Will Build Approaches

The present bridge, known as the Blue Bridge or the Johnson Street Bridge, is to be removed under a separate contract under the supervision of the Corps of Engineers after the new bridge is opened for traffic.

Approaches will be built by the City of Cumberland and the West Virginia State Road Commission. These are to be expedited to speed the entire contract.

City officials on Monday approved a contract with the E. J. Albrecht Company, contractor for the Industrial Dam, to provide and roll fill for the approach at Riverside Park. Earth taken from the coffer dam will be used.

The Albrecht firm's contract is up in October, but work is far ahead of schedule.

End Of Tragic Sled Party

Playmates Watch Friend Die In Sledding Tragedy

A third grade pupil at West Side Elementary School was drowned yesterday afternoon after he fell through the ice while sledding on the frozen Potomac River near Blue Bridge just below a flood control project under construction near the bridge.

The victim was identified as Walter Edward Smith Jr., 8, of 131 Paca Street, a son of Walter E. Smith Sr. and Frances Litton Smith.

The child was reported to have fallen through the ice into the cold waters about 4:50 p. m.

Efforts to save the struggling boy were made by his three playmates and several other persons in the vicinity.

Police Recover Body

City Police received a call at 5:04 p. m. and within minutes Officers Kenneth W. Morrissey and Richard Lashley were probing the waters with grappling hooks from a boat owned by the E. J. Albrecht Company of Chicago, contractor for the flood work.

About half an hour after the boy had slipped into the river his body was recovered by the two officers and was taken to the Maryland side of the river, where the department's pneolator was used on the victim for about half an hour. All efforts to revive him failed.

The Smith child reportedly had been riding on a sled and fell off it. As he got up, the ice beneath him broke and he plunged into the river. His playmates said he hung on to the ice for a while and then disappeared from sight.

Friend Tried Rescue

One of the boys later said Walter came to the surface, feet first, twice and then sank into the water.

John Leighty, about 11, of 219 South Lee Street, who was playing in the group, said he had pushed the sled toward Smith in an effort to save him, but when the ice began to crack, Leighty went back to the nearby bank.

Meanwhile Howard M. Kuhns, 211 Water Street, was walking in the vicinity of the bridge and heard the boys calling for aid for the strugging victim.

He ran to the scene and attempted to reach the boy but the ice, which was about two inches thick, gave way under him and he was forced to return to shore.

Kuhns said he told some women standing nearby to summon police aid. The two other playmates who witnessed the accident were Jimmy Edwards, 9, and his brother, Richard, 7, who reside at 217 Greene Street.

Forced Back By Breaking Ice

Workers on the flood control project heard the commotion and rushed to the scene. E. E. Gronbach, project manager of the flood work, was reported to have attempted to reach the boy but as the ice broke under him he returned to shore.

A mechanic on the project, Richardson Edmonson, went to the spot where the boy had fallen in, probed the water for about five or ten minutes, and returned to the bank.

The water where the boy drowned was about five to six feet in depth. The boat of the contracting company was used by police to recover the body.

Assisting Morrissey and Lashley were Officers Joseph Stitcher, Warren Brehm, Carl Williams and Robert Gilpin. Bruce Anderson, an employe on the flood control project, was also on the scene when the attempt was made to revive the child. Police Sgt. Clarence C. Roby also went to the scene of the accident.

Crowd Watches Rescue Effort

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who examined the boy's body, said death was caused by shock and asphyxia due to drowning.

Several hundred persons lined Blue Bridge and the Maryland side of the river bank as the body was being retrieved.

The Smith child was born in Baltimore on August 16, 1945 and had lived in Cumberland for the past two years.

Surviving, besides his parents, is a stepmother, Mrs. Thelma G. Smith. The body is at the George Funeral Home.

Chamber Of Commerce Suggests Careful City Fiscal Policy, Hits Parking Proposal

Keep Long-Term Plans In Mind, Report Cautions

No project involving a substantial capital expenditure should be undertaken by the city unless immediately required, and long-term planning should be considered in determining present financial commitments, according to a report approved last night by directors of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Presented by C. William Gilchrist, chairman of the chamber's Civic Development Committee, the report suggested the Mayor and Council would find it helpful if an advisory board on capital expenditures were created.

Composed of people with wide financial experience, the group would study proposed capital expenditures and make recommendations solely from a financial point of view.

Three other observations were made by the committee following a study of the financial picture of the city. They are:

Is Highest In State

The present city, state and county tax on property in the city is $3.23 per $100, the highest in the state. Any rate increase should be undertaken only if absolutely necessary.

Population and employment in the city are decreasing, and these factors should be borne in mind in considering the city's ability to pay.

New issues of bonds required for the city totaling $1,800,000 will almost certainly result in increasing cost of financing, and a rise in interest rates. The cost of these bonds, based on 3 per cent interest, would average $100,080 annually on a 25-year basis, or $118,350 on a 20-year basis.

Service Cost Heavy

The committee pointed out that on June 30, 1953, the city had a net general fund debt of $2,105,254. The net Water Department debt is $2,107,641.39, for a total city indebtedness of $4,212,895.73.

The cost of servicing the general fund debt was $227,806.26—17.3 per cent of city expenditures—and required 33.25 cents on the tax rate.

Servicing water bonds cost $221,497.57, almost 50 per cent of the operating revenue of the department, which last year spent $30,445.82 in excess of income.

The committee pointed out that the $150,000 bond issue to be sold soon for the department will be the last which can be serviced without raising water rates, which have not been boosted since 1930.

The assessable basis of all property taxed in the city is about $71,000,000, including about $50,000,000 in real estate, and $21,000,000 in personal property, and the latter may decrease somewhat.

Credit Could Suffer

The statutory limit of the general debt of the city would permit the debt to rise to about $7,000,000, but top limit to retain good credit standing is 5 per cent of real estate assessments—about $2,500,000.

If the debt exceeds this sum, credit standing will suffer, and higher interest rates could result. City bonds now carry an "A" rating.

The committee listed three bond issues which will be added to the city debt almost at once. These are $350,000 for the Frederick-Bedford Street and related projects, a $150,-

Woman, 43, Dies Of Burns When Fuel Oil Explodes

A former resident of Cumberland whose father will be buried here today was burned to death Monday afternoon when kerosene she was using to light a fire in a wood-burning cook store exploded.

Mrs. Dora L. Robinson, 43, of Langdondale, Pa., (near Hopewell), died about two hours after the mishap in Bedford Memorial Hospital of severe burns of the face, arms and body. Her clothes had caught fire in the explosion.

Relatives said yesterday Mrs. Robinson, who lived in a double frame dwelling in Langdondale, was getting ready to prepare supper in the kitchen of the home about 3:30 p. m. Monday. She was using a can of kerosene to help the fire to burn when sparks caused the fuel to explode, showering her with flaming oil.

Her screams attracted the attention of Thomas Giffin who resides in the same house. Giffin rushed to her aid and extinguished the flame by wrapping Mrs. Robinson in blankets.

Giffin summoned help and Mrs. Robinson was rushed to Bedford Memorial Hospital, where she died of shock and burns.

Mrs. Robinson's father, Walter T. Hager, 83, of 413 North Centre Street, city, died Monday morning at his residence. A stone contractor, Mr. Hager will be buried today in Greenmount Cemetery. Services will be held at 2 p. m. in Stein's Chapel with Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, Mt. Savage, officiating.

Surviving Mrs. Robinson are a son, John B. Robinson, Cumberland, and daughter, Mrs. Senoia Foor, Orbisonia, Pa., eight grandchildren, her mother, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Gill) Hager, Cumberland; a brother, Thomas Hager, Bowman's Addition; five sisters, Mrs. J. B. Boyd, Mrs. Edith Layman, Mrs. Edward Taylor and Mrs. John P. Dent, all of Cumberland, and Mrs. James T. Dent, Washington. Her husband died last July.

Municipal Parking Lot Plan Draws Sharp Criticism

Municipal operation or ownership of parking facilities was opposed in a six-point program for improving Cumberland's downtown parking problem which was approved last ngiht at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

The report was based on a study made by the Chamber's Civic Development Committee, headed by C. William Gilchrist.

The group's study was confined to the area bounded by Bedford Street on the north and Harrison Street on the south, between the two local railroads.

It was pointed out that there were 24,936 vehicles registered in Allegany County in 19[illegible], in contrast to about 15,000 in 1940. This increase, the committee said, has not been followed by similar growth in the busines area.

The purpose of the committee was not to survey all the aspects of the parking problem, but it presented some factors which the committee said it thought were relevant and important. These are the steps the group members suggested would be helpful in improving the situation:

Suggestions Listed

1. Promotion by merchants and lot operators of the Park 'N' Shop plan. 2. An education campaign on the use of lots by the public, as opposed to street space. 3. Stricter control of metered and other street space by police in order to prevent abuse of privileges. The committee commended police in their use of courtesy tickets for out-of-town motorists.

4. Encouragement of delivery service to business places at hours when traffic is at lower volume. 5. Consideration by the police of eliminating all parking at certain points during hours of heaviest traffic volume. 6. The committee does not believe that the city should enter into the off-street parking field at present.

Municipally operated or owned facilities have several factors weighing heavily against them, the group pointed out. First, said the committee, such a system puts the city in competition with private operators, to the disadvantage of

City Water Supplies Drop As Snow Covers Watershed

The snow-covered watershed of Lake Gordon and Lake Koon in nearby Pennsylvania represents a lot of water, but little of it trickled last week into the two big dams which impound water for the Cumberland area.

Lake Koon, the bigger reservoir, impounds 2,300,000,000 gallons of water when full. On Sunday, it was 37 feet, eight inches below the spillway, a drop of about two feet during the week.

Lake Gordon, impounding 1,300,000,000 gallons of water when filled to the brim, was down three feet, six inches, about the same as a week ago.

Water use was 99,670,000 gallons for the week, or about 14,238,000 gallons a day—about two million gallons more daily than a year ago.

Lake Gordon, used primarily as a settling basin, is normally kept full by draining water from Lake Koon as needed.

George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, said that if the level of Koon drops to 42 feet, the city will start using Lake Gordon supplies in quantities.

He said the Lake Koon level has been allowed to go as low as 46 feet, but that that is about as low as it can be to protect the fish, which help to keep the water supply healthy.

If necessary, the rest of the water can be used in extended droughts, but fish must be removed.

Hitchcock said the melting of the snow in the area will replenish the supplies, which have been dropping steadily since August 2.

The Weather

Snows in Cumberland and surrounding territory began melting more rapidly yesterday as the mercury rose to a high of 44 degrees during the day. Low for the 24-hour period was 16 degrees while at 7:30 last night the thermometer at the weather station in Constitution Park read 37. Humidity of 64 per cent at 6 p. m. and a stable barometer foretold cloudy and mild weather today with some showers likely in the evening.

River Board Asks Action On Pollution

Garbage, Mine Pit Action Is Sought

The Upper Potomac River Board will urge state authorities to take action toward eliminating community dumps which add to the pollution of the river and to press for legislation requiring backfilling of strip mine pits.

J. B. Dowling, sanitarian of the Allegany County Health Department, cited the Piedmont, W. Va., city dump, located on the river halfway between there and Keyser, as an example.

He said some of the refuse finds its way into the river and adds to the pollution.

J. G. Patrick, chief chemist of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's Luke plant, added the dump is an eyesore and a hazard to drivers when garbage is being burned.

Cite Pollution Danger

The board will ask the State Board of Health and the Water Pollution Commission to confer with West Virginia state authorities on the problem.

Dowling said there are many other community dumps in the area which add to the pollution problem.

The board, at the request of Mark W. Roe, chairman, will notify state agencies of the dangers imposed by open pits left after strip mining operations.

J. Henry Schilpp, engineer for the Water Pollution Commission, pointed out the pits will always be a source of acid drainage until they are filled up. Backfilling is required in Pennsylvania, he added.

The pits, Dowling said, would provide ideal dumping grounds for garbage, but are usually too far from towns to be used that way.

Dowling also urged the board to help in the current campaign to clean up sewage in the Potomac River. He said uniform state laws on septic tanks will help elsewhere, as they have in Allegany County.

Data Not Revealed

Schilpp was asked for the results of a pollution survey made by the Water Pollution Control Commission here in October.

He said he was not at liberty to release the information "due to the possibility of court action on the case."

All of the data, he added, will be revealed at a meeting in Baltimore late this month.

This is a joint meeting slated January 28, to be attended by the Board of Health, Cumberland officials, Assistant Attorney General A. T. Hartman and experts from the pollution control board.

Hartman hopes to be able to stipulate the data in the court action the state insists be taken to force Cumberland to build a sewage plant.

Firemen Check Blaze At Local Auto Sales Lot

The aerial ladder truck and pumper of Central Fire Station went to 122 North Mechanic Street yesterday at 4 p. m. where a blaze in a repair shop of Trozzo's Auto Sales was extinguished.

Damage to the interior of the one-room cement block building and equipment was estimated at around $200. Cause of the fire was undetermined, according to firemen.

A business office located about two or three feet from the shop was undamaged. Trozzo said that two auto radios, a hand sweeper and a buffing machine were damaged by the blaze, as well as part of the building's interior.

Tires, polishing material and other equipment were stored in the repair shop. Firemen were at the scene about half an hour as the booster pump line was used.

Damages estimated at about $900 was caused by two separate fires in Cumberland and nearby Bowman's Addition in the past two days.

A two-alarm fire broke out yesterday morning in a second floor closet at the home of Ellsworth V. Rosenmarkle, 107 Wills Creek Avenue, and caused damage estimated at about $400.

Firemen said faulty wiring around a hot air duct in the closet apparently caused the blaze at 9 a. m. when West Side Company 3 received a call to the residence.

Central firemen went out three minutes later and flames were confined to the closet and partition between two bedrooms. Some water damage to the rooms was reported.

Investigation indicated that heat evidently melted wiring around the duct. A section of the wall was torn away to reach the source of the fire.

Rosenmarkle joined his wife and 17-months-old daughter at home shortly after the blaze originated. Three other children, Mary, a student at Allegany, and Robert and David, who attend Mt. Royal school, were in class.

Death Sentence Ruled Out By Jury's Verdict

A Circuit Court jury early today found William E. Lockard guilty of first-degree murder "without capital punishment" in the December 11 slaying of William F. Eline, 53, of Green Point.

Lockard, 39-year-old railroad trackman, showed no visible sign of emotion as Allan C. Fisher, jury foreman, stood and read the verdict at 12:58 a. m., seven hours after the case had gone to the jury.

Harold E. Naughton, one of Lockard's attorneys, asked Associate Judges Morgan C. Harris and George Henderson to poll the jurors.

Lockard sat quietly in the courtroom as the eight men and four women stood in turn and pronounced him sane and guilty. The jury had been instructed to determine his sanity at the time of the crime and of the trial before attempting to decide his guilt.

After hearing the verdict, Naughton indicated he probably would file a motion for a new trial.

The case was handed to the jury at 5:50 p. m. after two days of testimony and 55 minutes of closing argument by the four attorneys in the case.

Jurors were taken to dinner and returned to the Court House at 8:30 p. m. to begin their deliberations in earnest. It was nearly 4½ hours later when they returned the verdict.

Testimony Reread

Apparent confusion over conflicting testimony of two psychiatrists led to a rather unusual development after 11 p. m.

At the request of jurors, attorneys for the state and for the defense allowed Robert V. Thomas, court stenographer, to read the testimony to the members of the jury.

Dr. Richard W. Trevaskis Jr., local psychiatrist who examined the defendant Sunday in an office at the County Jail, testified that he did not think Lockard had a basic understanding of what things are right, what things are wrong.

Rebuttal Witness

In rebuttal, the state called Dr. Mannfred S. Guttmacher, criminal psychologist for the Baltimore Supreme Court, who had sat as a spectator through the two-day trial. Dr. Guttmacher had examined Lockard in Baltimore December 28.

Asked by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher whether Lockard knows the difference between right and wrong, the specialist from Baltimore replied:

"He may not know it is wrong not to file an income tax report but I think he has the capacity to know it is wrong to kill," Dr. Guttmacher answered.

Despite this ultimate conflict, the two medical men were in general agreement that Lockard has inferior intelligence, with an intelligence quotient of only 57.

Getty Argues

Assistant State's Attorney James Getty began the closing argument with a 14-minute explanation to the jury in which he cited legal definitions concerning the difference between first and second degree murder and manslaughter.

He was followed in argument by George H. Hughes Jr., and then Harold E. Naughton, the court-appointed attorneys for Lockard.

"Don't take his life, for God's sake," Naughton concluded.

In the last of the closing arguments Fletcher stated that it should be convincing when Dr. Guttmacher, who he said has the finest reputation in his field in Maryland, testified that Lockard has the capacity to distinguish between right and wrong.

Why would Lockard have torn the bloodstained seat covers off his front seat and placed them in the automobile trunk if he was not aware that he had done wrong?, the state's attorney asked. Why did he throw the rifle into the Potomac River at Wiley Ford if he did not know his act was wrong?

Robbery Motive?

Fletcher argued that the defendant's motive was robbery, saying Lockard took $60 in $10 bills and a cigaret lighter out of Eline's coverall pocket before dumping the body in an alley off Bedford Street not more than 100 yards from Police Headquarters.

"The citizens of Allegany County have a right to know they will not be struck down nor shot," Fletcher told the jury. Asking for a conviction of first degree murder, he said that the jury should serve warning that whoever de-

American Bridge Low Bidder On Potomac Span

28-Foot Roadway Will Be Provided

The American Bridge Company submitted a low bid of $314,910 for the construction of the superstructure of the new Potomac River Bridge between Cumberland and Ridgeley, according to G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission.

Other bids were submitted by the Pittsburgh Des Moines Bridge Company, $331,000, and the Bethlehem Steel Company, $358,000.

The bids were opened yesterday at noon at the State Roads Commission offices in Baltimore, Chaires said. The contract has not been awarded.

Chaires said the contract covers only the erection of the superstructure and does not include the concrete floor, which will be let later under a separate contract.

Aids Snow Removal

The contract, however, will include the installation of a strip of steel grille on each side of the concrete flooring to facilitate snow removal.

The new bridge will be composed of two steel spans, each about 156 feet long for a total length of 312 feet. Sections will set on piers incorporated into the Industrial Dam.

It will provide a 28-foot-wide roadway, with a five-foot pedestrian sidewalk on each side, for a total width of 38 feet.

The bids do not include the final coating of paint, which is to be applied after the concrete flooring is laid.

The contract will allow 80 working days for the erection of the superstructure.

Will Build Approaches

The present bridge, known as the Blue Bridge or the Johnson Street Bridge, is to be removed under a separate contract under the supervision of the Corps of Engineers after the new bridge is opened for traffic.

Approaches will be built by the City of Cumberland and the West Virginia State Road Commission. These are to be expedited to speed the entire contract.

City officials on Monday approved a contract with the E. J. Albrecht Company, contractor for the Industrial Dam, to provide and roll fill for the approach at Riverside Park. Earth taken from the coffer dam will be used.

The Albrecht firm's contract is up in October, but work is far ahead of schedule.

End Of Tragic Sled Party

Playmates Watch Friend Die In Sledding Tragedy

A third grade pupil at West Side Elementary School was drowned yesterday afternoon after he fell through the ice while sledding on the frozen Potomac River near Blue Bridge just below a flood control project, under construction near the bridge.

The victim was identified as Walter Edward Smith Jr., 8, of 131 Paca Street, a son of Walter E. Smith Sr. and Frances Litton Smith.

The child was reported to have fallen through the ice into the cold waters about 4:50 p. m.

Efforts to save the struggling boy were made by his three playmates and several other persons in the vicinity.

Police Recover Body

City Police received a call at 5:04 p. m. and within minutes Officers Kenneth W. Morrissey and Richard Lashley were probing the waters with grappling hooks from a boat owned by the E. J. Albrecht Company of Chicago, contractor for the flood work.

About half an hour after the boy had slipped into the river his body was recovered by the two officers and was taken to the Maryland side of the river, where the department's pneolator was used on the victim for about half an hour. All efforts to revive him failed.

The Smith child reportedly had been riding on a sled and fell off it. As he got up, the ice beneath him broke and he plunged into the river. His playmates said he hung on to the ice for a while and then disappeared from sight.

Friend Tried Rescue

One of the boys later said Walter came to the surface, feet first, twice and then sank into the water.

John Leighty, about 11, of 219 South Lee Street, who was playing in the group, said he had pushed the sled toward Smith in an effort to save him, but when the ice began to crack, Leighty went back to the nearby bank.

Meanwhile Howard M. Kuhns, 211 Water Street, was walking in the vicinity of the bridge and heard the boys calling for aid for the strugging victim.

He ran to the scene and attempted to reach the boy but the ice, which was about two inches thick, gave way under him and he was forced to return to shore.

Kuhns said he told some women standing nearby to summon police aid. The two other playmates who witnessed the accident were Jimmy Edwards, 9, and his brother, Richard, 7, who reside at 217 Greene Street.

Forced Back By Breaking Ice

Workers on the flood control project heard the commotion and rushed to the scene. E. E. Gronbach, project manager of the flood work, was reported to have attempted to reach the boy but as the ice broke under him he returned to shore.

A mechanic on the project, Richardson Edmonson, went to the spot where the boy had fallen in, probed the water for about five or ten minutes, and returned to the bank.

The water where the boy drowned was about five to six feet in depth. The boat of the contracting company was used by police to recover the body.

Assisting Morrissey and Lashley were Officers Joseph Stitcher, Warren Brehm, Carl Williams and Robert Gilpin. Bruce Anderson, an employe on the flood control project, was also on the scene when the attempt was made to revive the child. Police Sgt. Clarence C. Roby also went to the scene of the accident.

Crowd Watches Rescue Effort

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who examined the boy's body, said death was caused by shock and asphyxia due to drowning.

Several hundred persons lined Blue Bridge and the Maryland side of the river bank as the body was being retrieved.

The Smith child was born in Baltimore on August 16, 1945 and had lived in Cumberland for the past two years.

Surviving, besides his parents, is a stepmother, Mrs. Thelma G. Smith. The body is at the George Funeral Home.

Chamber Of Commerce Suggests Careful City Fiscal Policy, Hits Parking Proposal

Keep Long-Term Plans In Mind, Report Cautions

No project involving a substantial capital expenditure should be undertaken by the city unless immediately required, and long-term planning should be considered in determining present financial commitments, according to a report approved last night by directors of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Presented by C. William Gilchrist, chairman of the chamber's Civic Development Committee, the report suggested the Mayor and Council would find it helpful if an advisory board on capital expenditures were created.

Composed of people with wide financial experience, the group would study proposed capital expenditures and make recommendations solely from a financial point of view.

Three other observations were made by the committee following a study of the financial picture of the city. They are:

Is Highest In State

The present city, state and county tax on property in the city is $3.23 per $100, the highest in the state. Any rate increase should be undertaken only if absolutely necessary.

Population and employment in the city are decreasing, and these factors should be borne in mind in considering the city's ability to pay.

New issues of bonds required for the city totaling $1,800,000 will almost certainly result in increasing cost of financing, and a rise in interest rates. The cost of these bonds, based on 3 per cent interest, would average $100,080 annually on a 25-year basis, or $118,350 on a 20-year basis.

Service Cost Heavy

The committee pointed out that on June 30, 1953, the city had a net general fund debt of $2,105,254. The net Water Department debt is $2,107,641.39, for a total city indebtedness of $4,212,895.73.

The cost of servicing the general fund debt was $227,806.26—17.3 per cent of city expenditures—and required 33.25 cents on the tax rate.

Servicing water bonds cost $221,497.57, almost 50 per cent of the operating revenue of the department, which last year spent $30,445.82 in excess of income.

The committee pointed out that the $150,000 bond issue to be sold soon for the department will be the last which can be serviced without raising water rates, which have not been boosted since 1930.

The assessable basis of all property taxed in the city is about $71,000,000, including about $50,000,000 in real estate, and $21,000,000 in personal property, and the latter may decrease somewhat.

Credit Could Suffer

The statutory limit of the general debt of the city would permit the debt to rise to about $7,000,000, but top limit to retain good credit standing is 5 per cent of real estate assessments—about $2,500,000.

If the debt exceeds this sum, credit standing will suffer, and higher interest rates could result. City bonds now carry an "A" rating.

The committee listed three bond issues which will be added to the city debt almost at once. These are $350,000 for the Frederick-Bedford Street and related projects, a $150,-

Woman, 43, Dies Of Burns When Fuel Oil Explodes

A former resident of Cumberland whose father will be buried here today was burned to death Monday afternoon when kerosene she was using to light a fire in a wood-burning cook store exploded.

Mrs. Dora L. Robinson, 43, of Langdondale, Pa., (near Hopewell), died about two hours after the mishap in Bedford Memorial Hospital of severe burns of the face, arms and body. Her clothes had caught fire in the explosion.

Relatives said yesterday Mrs. Robinson, who lived in a double frame dwelling in Langdondale, was getting ready to prepare supper in the kitchen of the home about 3:30 p. m. Monday. She was using a can of kerosene to help the fire to burn when sparks caused the fuel to explode, showering her with flaming oil.

Her screams attracted the attention of Thomas Giffin who resides in the same house. Giffin rushed to her aid and extinguished the flame by wrapping Mrs. Robinson in blankets.

Giffin summoned help and Mrs. Robinson was rushed to Bedford Memorial Hospital, where she died of shock and burns.

Mrs. Robinson's father, Walter T. Hager, 83, of 413 North Centre Street, city, died Monday morning at his residence. A stone contractor, Mr. Hager will be buried today in Greenmount Cemetery. Services will be held at 2 p. m. in Stein's Chapel with Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, Mt. Savage, officiating.

Surviving Mrs. Robinson are a son, John B. Robinson, Cumberland, and daughter, Mrs. Senoia Foor, Orbisonia, Pa., eight grandchildren, her mother, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Gill) Hager, Cumberland; a brother, Thomas Hager, Bowman's Addition; five sisters, Mrs. J. B. Boyd, Mrs. Edith Layman, Mrs. Edward Taylor and Mrs. John P. Dent, all of Cumberland, and Mrs. James T. Dent, Washington. Her husband died last July.

Municipal Parking Lot Plan Draws Sharp Criticism

Municipal operation or ownership of parking facilities was opposed in a six-point program for improving Cumberland's downtown parking problem which was approved last night at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

The report was based on a study made by the Chamber's Civic Development Committee, headed by C. William Gilchrist.

The group's study was confined to the area bounded by Bedford Street on the north and Harrison Street on the south, between the two local railroads.

It was pointed out that there were 24,936 vehicles registered in Allegany County in 1953, in contrast to about 15,000 in 1940. This increase, the committee said, has not been followed by similar growth in the business area.

The purpose of the committee was not to survey all the aspects of the parking problem, but it presented some factors which the committee said it thought were relevant and important. These are the steps the group members suggested would be helpful in improving the situation:

Suggestions Listed

1. Promotion by merchants and lot operators of the Park 'N' Shop plan. 2. An education campaign on the use of lots by the public, as opposed to street space. 3. Stricter control of metered and other street space by police in order to prevent abuse of privileges. The committee commended police in their use of courtesy tickets for out-of-town motorists.

4. Encouragement of delivery service to business places at hours when traffic is at lower volume. 5. Consideration by the police of eliminating all parking at certain points during hours of heaviest traffic volume. 6. The committee does not believe that the city should enter into the off-street parking field at present.

Municipally operated or owned facilities have several factors weighing heavily against them, the group pointed out. First, said the committee, such a system puts the city in competition with private operators, to the disadvantage of

The snow-covered watershed of Lake Gordon and Lake Koon in nearby Pennsylvania represents a lot of water, but little of it trickled last week into the two big dams which impound water for the Cumberland area.

Lake Koon, the bigger reservoir, impounds 2,300,000,000 gallons of water when full. On Sunday, it was 37 feet, eight inches below the spillway, a drop of about two feet during the week.

Lake Gordon, impounding 1,300,000,000 gallons of water when filled to the brim, was down three feet, six inches, about the same as a week ago.

Water use was 99,670,000 gallons for the week, or about 14,238,000 gallons a day—about two million gallons more daily than a year ago.

Lake Gordon, used primarily as a settling basin, is normally kept full by draining water from Lake Koon as needed.

George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, said that if the level of Koon drops to 42 feet, the city will start using Lake Gordon supplies in quantities.

He said the Lake Koon level has been allowed to go as low as 46 feet, but that that is about as low as it can be to protect the fish, which help to keep the water supply healthy.

If necessary, the rest of the water can be used in extended droughts, but fish must be removed.

Hitchcock said the melting of the snow in the area will replenish the supplies, which have been dropping steadily since August 2.

The Weather

Snows in Cumberland and surrounding territory began melting more rapidly yesterday as the mercury rose to a high of 44 degrees during the day. Low for the 24-hour period was 16 degrees while at 7:30 last night the thermometer at the weather station in Constitution Park read 37. Humidity of 64 per cent at 6 p. m. and a stable barometer foretold cloudy and mild weather today with some showers likely in the evening.
